ROGERS 'ENCOURAGED' ... Hanoi Hasn't Rejected Offer

•The New York Times

Washington — Secretary of State William P. Rogers said Thursday that despite Hanoi's "publicly incoherent," he was "somewhat encouraged" by the absence of a North Vietnamese rejection of President Nixon's latest Vietnam peace plan.

Offering an optimistic assessment of the give and take at the Paris session, Rogers said that not only had the enemy not rejected the eight-point plan, made public by Nixon Tuesday night, but "they have been asking a few questions about what we mean."

Rogers said he had just spoken by phone with Ambassador William Porter, the head of the American delegation to the Paris talks, who gave him a briefing on Thursday's session at which he outlined Nixon's peace plan. The plan had first been offered privately to the North Vietnamese in October by Henry A. Kissinger, Nixon's national security affairs adviser.

The secretary spoke to a national foreign policy conference for editors and broadcasters organized by the State Department. Newsmen and news executives from 40 states were at the department for the start of the two-day session.

In answer to a question, Rogers said it was natural to inquire if the administration's disclosure of the secret eight-point plan would "speed up or delay the possibilities of a negotiated settlement."

"My own view is that if there is any inclination at all on the part of the other side to negotiate a settlement — and I think that is in doubt — then the statement by the President of the other night, which was so effective, and I think will have the effect of unifying the American people. And if they are convinced of that, I think they will be more inclined to work out a negotiated settlement," he said.

Reporting on Thursday's Paris session, he said:

"I am somewhat encouraged by the fact that they have not rejected our proposal in Paris this morning. There has been a good deal of incoherence about it, but it hasn't been rejected."

"And secondly, they have been asking a few questions about what we mean, and how could they be sure that the electoral process would be fair."

"Now, that is a good sign," he said.

"That is exactly what negotiations are supposed to do, supposed to provide an opportunity for each side to ask the other, 'What do you mean?' and, 'How can we be sure,' and so forth. 'Let's work it out,'" he added.

He Enlarges

Continuing to enlarge on this theme, Rogers said:

"Now, if they should get in that frame of mind, so that they want to actually negotiate, that would be fine. It is possible that we could work out a settlement. It is a perfectly natural question for them to say 'Well, how can we be sure that the election will be fair?' Now, it seems to me we have to say, 'Well, what do you want to do to provide fairness?'"

Rogers' apparent optimism about the Paris talks was in contrast to widespread skepticism in Washington diplomatic circles about the prospects for a negotiated settlement.

Most specialists on Vietnam have long believed that Hanoi would not agree to anything but a plan by which the Nixon administration forces out the current Saigon leadership. The decision to make the Nixon Plan public makes the likelihood of a negotiated accord even more remote, these specialists assert.

Turning Railroad Into Boxcar Repair Service Called 'Fiasco'

Washington (UPI) — A man once under federal grand jury investigation for unauthorized possession of railroad boxcars was accused Thursday of turning a small Florida railroad into a boxcar repair service.

He was identified as Joseph C. Bonanno, who was not charged following the grand jury inquiry but was ordered to pay rent on the boxcars in his possession when federal agents raided his facility last spring.

Bonanno is a businessman whose address was listed as Essex Falls, N.J. He is no known relation of Joseph "Joe Bonanno" Bonanno, the reputed Mafia chieftain once based in New Jersey.

Rep. Harley O. Staggers, D-W.Va., chairman of the House Commerce Committee, berated the Interstate Commerce Commission for granting Bonanno's petition to take control of the rail line in just three days, at a time when the grand jury inquiry was still under way.

'Tis Season For Red Ink

Washington (UPI) — Rep. Andrew Jacobs Jr., D-Ind., said Thursday he has introduced legislation to require that any federal budget proposing deficit spending be printed completely in red ink.

"This is a fiasco," fumed Staggers at a committee hearing.

He said there had been no rail service on the 27-mile Marianna and Blountstown Railroad, a freight feeder line in the Florida Panhandle, since early December, partly because the tracks were choked with 118 boxcars being refurbished.

Staggers said workers on the Florida line were repainting old boxcars with the name of the Maryland & Pennsylvania Railroad so they could be leased at a higher daily rate than before on the interstate rail system.

"Why aren't they working on the tracks?" a red-faced Staggers shouted at ICC Chairman George Stafford, who testified before Staggers' special commerce subcommittee on investigations along with a dozen other agency officials.

The ICC witnesses said Bonanno's request to purchase control of the Marianna and Blountstown was approved Sept. 10 without knowledge he was still being investigated by the grand jury.

In his home in northern New Jersey, Bonanno said the boxcars were on a sideline of the small Florida railroad and were not blocking the main line.

"We are servicing our customers," Bonanno said, but he said the tracks of the line are so bad that trains keep derailing. It will take six months to repair them, he said.

"If I have enough time, I'll get that track in good shape," he said. "Our objective is to give our customers service, and to run a profitable railroad, which we could do if Mr. Staggers would only leave me alone, instead of harassing me."

He said he would be happy to testify before Staggers' committee.

No criminal charges were brought against Bonanno, but he was ordered by a federal judge to pay $150,000 to Penn Central for rent of rail cars in his possession when FBI agents raided the tiny LaSalle & Bureau County Railroad in Illinois last March.

Marked Over

A number of Penn Central boxcars were found to have been marked over with LS&BC insignia, and it was later learned that about 350 boxcars had been shipped to LS&BC, where Bonanno operated a railroad repair shop under the names Diversified Properties, Inc., and Magna Earth Enterprises. Bonanno denied any wrongdoing, saying he had bought some boxcars whose leases to Penn Central had expired.

Budget Unit Tries 'Group Therapy'

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

Eight members of the sharply divided Appropriations Committee engaged in a form of group therapy Thursday as they talked over differences which brought five of them to the flash point of mutiny.

No formal action was taken at the hour-long session.

The committee meeting was called by Sen. Fern Hubbard Orme of Lincoln, the vice chairman, over the objections of Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings. (See story on Page 3.)

But Marvel attended the meeting along with all committee members except Sen. Robert Clark of Sidney.

Legislative fiscal analyst Marlin Rein was also on hand, at the request of Mrs. Orme, and a secretary recorded the proceedings. Mrs. Orme presided.

Despite differences in philosophy, Mrs. Orme said, "there is not any reason we shouldn't get together. The people of the state think we should be meeting. We should talk."

The committee had not met for two weeks.

Marvel had divided the group into two subcommittees to study personnel policy and penal reform despite the desire of at least five members to meet and consider further action on the operational budget bill.

Earlier this week, the Legislature pulled the bill out of the committee and took it to the floor for debate before the committee majority could make further changes.

"In a democracy, the majority should rule," Sen. John Savage of Omaha told Marvel.

"I thought the purpose of the chairman was to conduct meetings, not rule with an iron fist. We are nine members, all equally important."

Marvel told Mrs. Orme she "must assume as much responsibility for stalling as I do. There were many instances of it."

"You, among others, many times refused to bring this bill out."

As for delayed committee work on capital construction requests, Marvel said he was waiting — at the request of some committee members — to see Gov. J. James Exon's recommendations for capital improvements.

Sen. Ramey Whitney of Chappell said he for one asked Marvel to withhold committee action until members could "see what the governor has in mind."

Savage said the committee was never budget bill. "It isn't completed, is it?" he asked, permitted to finish its work on the operational bill.

"It's complete, in my opinion," Marvel said.

"Several things were never determined," Mrs. Orme said. "It was not a completed bill."

Sen. Harris Calls For Move Against 'Shared Monopolies'

(c) Washington Star

Washington — The Consumer Federation of America's annual assembly opened here Thursday with the spotlight on the economy, Phase Two and concentration of wealth.

The keynote speaker, Sen. Fred R. Harris, D-Okla., told consumer activists from around the country that the Federal Trade Commission's move this week to break up the big firms in the breakfast cereal industry is only "a drop in the bucket."

Harris said the FTC and the Justice Department must move against other "shared monopolies" such as the auto, steel and drug industries.

Between 500 and 700 delegates were expected at the meetings, representing 31 million people in 192 organizations belonging to CFA.

Harris, a former presidential candidate who dropped out Nov. 10 for lack of funds, told the assembly that inordinate concentration of income and power is at the heart of the country's problems.

In an address prepared for delivery, he asserted that shared monopolies dominate a third of U.S. manufacturing. A shared monopoly was defined as one in which four or fewer companies control 70% or more of sales.

Prices set by shared monopolies are 20% higher than if there were real competition, the senator said.

"The auto industry is right now in violation of the Sherman antitrust act by its follow-the-leader pricing policies," Harris said. "So is the steel industry, the aluminum industry, the farm machinery industry and on and on. But the Justice Department has never moved against them."

Although he said it has not gone far enough, Harris praised the FTC for its announcement Monday that it wants to decentralize the breakfast cereal industry.

The senator said the rise of consumerism has made possible the election of "true people's advocates" like Lt. Gov. Henry E. Howell Jr. of Virginia. Howell will address the consumer assembly Friday.

CFA President Don S. Willner, an Oregon state senator, is retiring to run for the U.S. Senate in the Oregon Democratic primary. Willner is seeking the seat held by Sen. Mark Hatfield, D-Ore.

Corn Plantings To Dip

Washington (AP) — Farmers intend to reduce corn plantings by 4% this year following a price-depressing record crop of 5.5 billion bushels harvested in 1971, according to a special survey announced Thursday by the Agriculture Department.

The survey, made in 35 major producing states, showed farmers intend to plant 70 million acres to corn in 1972, compared with 72.9 million planted in the same states last year.

Officials said the surveyed states normally produce more than 98% of the nation's corn.

The estimate of 70 million acres this year compares with a goal expressed privately by USDA policymakers of 64 million acres.

Nebraska's indicated corn acreage for 1972 is 5,839,000 acres, 98% of the acres planted in 1971.

Don't Be A Fool, Make A Curling Tool

Thomas, 73, a retired farmer living in Pleasant Dale, takes a tin can and cuts the sides into thin strips. He bends and curls the strips to form legs and chair backs.

He covers his chair seats and table tops with velvet, although he adds a bit of foam rubber to pad the chairs.

Where does he get his materials?

"Some of the cans I picked up off my front yard. People come by and throw them, you know," Thomas said.

"I got the velvet from neighbor girls," he said. "Most of it is left over from bridesmaids gowns."

The padding for his chairs is discarded bits of rubber from upholstering shops. The only materials he buys are thread and glue.

His tools are a scissors, serrated shears, needle-nose pliers and tape measure. He also made a special curling tool by hacksawing a deep notch in a nail and whittling a wooden handle.

"I got the idea from another old fellow," Thomas said. "My wife worked in a nursing home and brought one of the chairs home."

Thomas doesn't sell his furniture, and emphatically says he won't, but he's had more than enough requests from friends and relatives to keep him busy.

"I've made a lot of friends. I've got more girl friends than Carter's got pills," he said.

Thomas has been making the furniture for two or three years. He and his wife, Edna, agree that an estimate of 200 pieces completed wouldn't be a bad guess, although he kept no records.

Doll musicians are sitting on some of Thomas's chairs. He received a letter from a lady in Omaha who had a doll orchestra and wanted the chairs for part of her display.

Thomas said it probably takes about seven hours to make a table and four chairs.

"I start working, then maybe I stop and dream a little and start working again," he said.

"I've spent many an hour at it, he said. "I think that's about half of what's wrong with old people. They don't do anything."

Thomas says in his poem:

A hacksaw, a snips, a piece of wood
Don't be a fool

Bitter Cold Continuing

Bitter cold temperatures continued across Nebraska Thursday with Valentine's 16 below the state's coldest spot for the second consecutive day.

Lincoln's low temperature Thursday was eight below. By mid-afternoon it warmed up to zero, but by 6 p.m. the mercury was back to two below.

Light snow fell most of the day in the Capital City amounting to an inch of snow on the ground Thursday night.

The State Department of Roads said snowpacked streets in both Lincoln and Omaha were causing motorists some trouble. Elsewhere in the state highways were reported in normal condition.

Somewhat warmer weather is expected to return to the state by Saturday when the temperature rises to the teens, the National Weather Service forecasts.

And by Tuesday temperatures will be in the 30s, according to the extended forecast.

Appropriations Committee Budget Dispute Turns Into Revolution

The Appropriations Committee's heated budget dispute turned into a revolution Thursday.

With the consent of a majority of five members and over the objections of Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings, Sen. Fern Hubbard Orme of Lincoln summoned the committee into session Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Orme is vice chairman of the budget unit.

Her action and Marvel's protestation that the meeting could only be unofficial and informal since it was not called by the chairman touched off a confused floor debate which ended abruptly with a 20-19 vote to adjourn.

"You have to face the problem ultimately," Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha told his colleagues.

"You have only left the issue hanging in the air."

But Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, chairman of the Rules Committee, said he believes a committee majority may call an official meeting and take formal action without the consent of the chairman.

While the rules are silent on that particular point, Warner said, legislative precedent would lend authority to the committee's actions.

The sudden mutiny of the Appropriations Committee majority — frustrated by a legislative decision earlier this week to wrest the operational budget bill from their hands—burst into the open as senator's prepared for next week's budget debate.

Gov. J. James Exon formally submitted his operational budget proposals to the lawmakers in bill form so they may be considered along with the bill extracted from the committee.

Marvel, who signed the governor's bills as committee chairman in conformance with legislative rules, won consent to place them on the floor for "open discussion" rather than sending them to the committee for consideration.

Then Sen. William Swanson of Lincoln gained 25-6 approval for an unofficial meeting of the Legislature Tuesday morning to hear "a full explanation of where the major differences between the two budgets lie."

Gus Lieske, the governor's director of administrative services, will be invited to present Exon's views, Swanson said.

"We can hear from representatives of the Budget Committee the legislative fiscal analyst and others," he said. Marvel supported the suggestion.

Senators will then be in position to begin formal floor consideration of the budget Wednesday, Swanson said.

And the first issue they should settle, Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff insisted, is whether appropriations by program should be allocated for guidance only or whether spending limits should be attached to each program.

Exon and the insurgent majority of five committee members favor spending flexibility for state agencies within their total budget allotment.

Marvel, with the apparent support of three members of the committee, wants spending ceilings attached to most programs within state agency budgets.

The governor's budget bills, LB1477 and LB1478, list program appropriations "for information only" and further give state administrators "authority to grant (salary) increases commensurate with the best interests of their programs, of their agencies and of the state."

LB1477 appropriates funds

for salary hikes on the basis of an average 4% increase.

The governor's operational budget proposal for fiscal 1972-73 calls for $195.4 million in appropriations from the state tax-supported general fund. The committee bill's roughly comparable figure is $196.5 million.

Marvel has scheduled a committee meeting for next Monday, the first called by him since Jan. 13.

But Mrs. Orme informed all committee members, including Marvel, that she was calling the committee together, with the consent of a majority of its members, Thursday afternoon.

Marvel then took the floor to say it was his "painful duty" to suggest that, even though

"some are unhappy they cannot get their way," they have "no authority to proceed."

Mrs. Orme said "a majority wants to meet" and would do so.

Sen. John Savage of Omaha, one of the majority, said the Legislature's earlier decision to take the bill from the committee against the expressed wishes of its majority "dealt a terrible blow" to the committee system.

"This committee should be allowed to complete the business it was created to do," he said.

"If a majority wants to meet to do so, it should be allowed to do so."

Savage said he may have failed to win legislative approval for his position earlier this week because he is a relatively inexperienced legislator.

"More experienced members of the committee went around buttonholing other senators and crying on their shoulders big crocodile tears," Savage said.

Another committee member, Sen. Dave Stahmer of Omaha, said it is "not out of place to ask that the committee get on with its work."

It has thus far failed to take any formal action on a capital construction budget, he said.

Chambers said it may prove necessary to abolish the committee and turn budgetary decisions over to the Legislature itself acting as a committee-of-the-whole.

Education Support Proposal Cut In Half By Committee

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Constitutional Revision Committee whittled down Sen. Terry Carpenter's constitutional amendment billing the state for education from all costs to one-half, before putting off final action on the bill.

The committee also voted to wash down the drain two constitutional amendments sponsored by Milligan Sen. Richard Maresh.

LB1109 which would have made state loans available to villages wishing to construct secondary sewage treatment sank on a 5 to 1 vote.

The other Maresh amendment, LB1196, would have exempted doctors settling in counties less than 2,000 people 5 years free of state income tax. It too was torpedoed.

Maresh told his fellow senators that in Clay County there are 8,262 people but only 1 doctor who is 67-years-old. Something, he said, must be done to keep doctors in rural Nebraska.

Under the amended Carpenter bill, LB1080, the state would pay one-half of the costs for the operation of public elementary and secondary schools.

However, the state would not assume the tab for land acquisition, building construction, improvements and repair or debt service. This would have to continue to be funded through local sources — bonds and property taxes.

Carpenter said his bill was prompted by recent court decisions in Texas, California and New Jersey which questioned the unequal application of property taxes to support school districts.

Nebraska, which ranks high in the nation for dependence on local support for schools, could be in danger because of an equal property tax levels between school districts.

The courts have said the disproportionate tax load violates the equal protection clause in the 14th Amendment. As yet, the tax structure has not been challenged in state court, but Carpenter indicated one is expected to be filed shortly in Papillion.

The Scottsbluff lawmaker told the senators that his measure might mean a 2½-3½% hike in the state's income tax to finance the measure. In terms of dollars, Carpenter said he had no idea what the figure would be.

John Lynch, of the Nebraska State Education Association, told the senators that he favored the bill in principle but said a constitutional amendment is not the way to accomplish the redistribution of taxes.

"If the amendment was referred to the voters and rejected, the issue would return to the Legislature. The Legislature should make some effort to meet the constitutional requirements," he said.

"If the issue was passed, it doesn't insure taxes and opportunities in education would be equal."

"The Legislature has the authority to do what the courts said we should do. This matter shouldn't be referred to the people."

Recreation Unit Proposal Killed

The Legislature's Agriculture and Recreation Committee Thursday killed a bill which would have created a Nebraska Recreation Board.

The committee decision to kill the measure, LB1287, was done at the request of its sponsor, Sen. William F. Swanson of Lincoln.

"I think there was much merit in this idea," he told the committee, "but I don't think we're quite ready for it as yet."

However, he also told the committee he plans to introduce a resolution in the Legislature calling for an interim study of the matter.

Hitchhikers, Bicyclists Back Bills At Hearing

By The Associated Press

Hitchhikers and bicycling enthusiasts assembled before the Legislature's Public Works Committee Thursday to applaud bills legalizing hitchhiking and providing for bike trails and footpaths along Nebraska roads.

Both the hitchhiking bill, LB1227, and the biking measure, LB1217, were introduced by Sen. John De Camp of Neligh. The committee held the bills without action.

Also held with no action after Thursday's session were bills levying a special tax on metal-studded snow tires and permitting Lancaster and Douglas counties to restrict traffic on county roads.

In its original form, DeCamp's LB1227 would set up a licensing system under which hitchhikers in Nebraska would have to pay $1.50 for a hitchhiking license before they could legally thumb rides.

But De Camp presented the committee Thursday with an amended version of the bill which would simply remove a current prohibition against hitchhiking. It would only allow hitchhiking where it would not endanger driving and would permit policemen to stop and check hitchhikers' identification.

Several young hitchhiking advocates appeared in favor of the bill, noting that hitchhiking is becoming an accepted mode of transportation and criticizing the current law.

Only one opponent, representing the Nebraska School Bus Drivers Association, appeared to testify on the bill. He said that in addition to the driving hazard hitchhikers present, he "once picked up a nice fellow in a Michigan State University sweater and he put a gun in my ribs."

A host of biking enthusiasts turned out to support De Camp's biking bill, under which

1% of highway construction funds would go to build bike and foot trails along streets and roads.

The bill was opposed by the association of county officials, the Nebraska Petroleum Council and other highway user organizations.

"We'd be opening a Pandora's box with this type of legislation," said Charles Chase of the Petroleum Council. He said that the measure would unfairly divert highway user tax revenues to "non-highway purposes."

Also held without action was Omaha Sen. John Savage's LB1236, which proposes a $3 tax on studded snow tires.

The theory of the bill was supported by Omaha Public Works Director Gene E. Jordan, although he said that Omaha statistics show the damage wreaked per snow tire at closer to $7.40.

Legislature Again Refuses To Alter Election Proposal

The legislature, for the second time in three days, refused Tuesday to amend a pending bill so that elected officials who are in mid-term would need to resign their offices to seek another elected office.

Long and heavy debate went into consideration of motions to return the bill at issue, LB661, to select file for amendment.

At present, legislators may seek another office in the middle of their four-year terms with assurance that if not elected, they can continue to fill out their four-year term in the Legislature. LB661, in current form, extends that privilege to other office holders as well.

Two state senators who are in mid-term, Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff and John De Camp of Neligh, currently are candidates for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate.

Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha sought unsuccessfully Thursday to prohibit all constitutional and statutory office holders, even legislators, from seeking another office without resigning. An alternative Proud amendment not affecting legislators also was rejected.

A proposal by Sen. Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox to make the LB661 provision effective in 1973, not before also was defeated.

Committee Holds Bill Hiking Lobbying Fees

By The Associated Press

A proposal to increase by five times the registration fee for lobbyists at the Nebraska Legislature was heard and held Thursday by the Legislature's Miscellaneous Subjects Committee.

Also heard and held by the committee were bills to create a state arena board to oversee the North Platte Wild West Arena, instruct the Nebraska Educational Television Network to produce a documentary film on state government, require counties to pay for uniforms for sheriff's officers, and create a statewide teletypewriter communications network.

Sen. William Swanson of Lincoln sponsored LB1218, providing that lobbyists' fees be raised from $5 to $25 and providing the fee shall cover a two-year period.

Legislative clerk Vincent Brown said 355 lobbyists registered during the 1971 session and 295 have registered this year, producing $1,775 and $1,475, in revenue, respectively.

However, he explained, secretarial costs for the lobbyists' system run to $3,500 annually and thus cost more than the registration fee brought in, Brown told the committee.

Sen. Ellen Craft of North Platte sponsored the measure, LB1328, to set up the six-member arena board.

Asst. Game and Parks Commission Director Richard Spady testified on behalf of the measure, saying such a board is needed to run the arena.

The state tourism function has been transferred from the commission to the Economic Development Department.

Spady explained, and the board would be able to direct the activities of the arena.

Avoca Sen. Calvin Carsten's LB1192, providing the sheriff's uniforms, was supported by several law enforcement groups.

Carsten also proposed the teletypewriter system in LB1197, which would tie into the state telecommunications network. He said it would aid law enforcement officers.

Former Legislative Clerk Hugo Srb spoke in favor of LB1180, the proposal by Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan to require the documentary film. Srb said the film could aid students in learning about Nebraska government.

Warner Calls Exon Stand On School Aid 'Real Hoax'

Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly Thursday charged Gov. J. J. Exon's stand against increased local school aid is the "real" tax hoax of this or any other year.

Warner said he was "amazed" by Exon's statements that the Legislature is "wasting its time" discussing the support of public elementary and secondary schools.

"The fact that several bills have been introduced during this session, in itself, is evidence of the seriousness of this problem which the citizens of our state face," he said.

And the "hoax" of the matter is, Warner said, that Exon has said increased state aid to local schools would not provide a more equitable means of financing education as well as provide a property tax break.

"For the governor to say that to increase state aid to schools does not result in greater equity in the support of education as well as property tax relief is the real 'tax hoax' of 1972 or any other year," the lawmaker said.

Warner said it may be that the "governor does not understand" the whole situation.

Committee OKs Six Appointments

The Legislature's Committee on Committees Thursday unanimously recommended that the Legislature approve a series of six appointments made last year by Gov. J. J. Exon to various state boards.

Three appointments were to the State Highway Advisory Commission including W. D. Newberry of Kearney, Thane Davis of Hyannis, and Joseph Lipton of Omaha.

The other trio included Ed Crowley of Omaha to the Public Welfare and Institutions Advisory Committee, Neil Peterson of Omaha to the State Personnel Board, and Julius Novak of Omaha to the Motor Vehicle Dealers License board.

Landlord Bill Revival Nixed

An unsuccessful attempt was made in the Legislature Thursday to revive a bill which would have set down procedures to be followed by landlords who accept security deposits on rentals.

The request to bring the bill, LB1097, to the floor despite a decision by the Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee to kill it, was made by Sen. Wallace Barnett of Lincoln.

Barnett, the bill's sponsor, said there may be some weaknesses in the measure, but said at least some version is needed.

Hearing Slated On Platte River Study

A resolution which would direct that a current Platte River basin study concern itself also with the effects of basin development on the Sandhills area of Nebraska, including the Loup River basin, will receive a public hearing before a legislative committee.

Introduced Wednesday by Sen. Rudolf Kokes of Ord and others, Resolution 24 was called up for adoption Thursday. But at the suggestion of Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter and others, lawmakers directed that it be aired publicly before a standing committee.

Hijacker Slain By FBI Pictured As A 'Loser'

Poughkeepsie, N.Y. (UPI) — A Brockton, Mass., father of seven who was shot and killed early Thursday after hijacking a Mohawk Airlines plane was pictured as a "loser" who was heavily in debt because of high family medical bills.

An FBI agent killed Henrik Von George, 45, with a shotgun blast at close range as he attempted to escape from Dutchess County Airport with $200,000 ransom money and stewardess Eileen McAllister, 30, of New York as a hostage. He was struck in the chest and throat.

Thus ended a 9½-hour drama that included air surveillance of the hijacked F227 propjet by four U.S. Air Force jet interceptors—now a standard operating procedure in such cases—and another F227 Mohawk plane carrying FBI agents.

Von George, using the last name Grate, boarded the plane in Albany where he reportedly had come for a job interview. Neighbors in Brockton and in Peekskill, N.Y., where he lived until 1970, said Von George had always moved from job to job.

Mrs. Von George said in

Brockton that her husband, an honorably discharged Army veteran, had been unemployed and "left here Tuesday to go to New York to get a job."

When living in Peekskill he had run a small newsstand in downtown Poughkeepsie, where he had previously worked in a department store.

One acquaintance said Von George was always out of money and rumored to be a gambler.

One of his children, Grly, 8, underwent open heart surgery in Boston last summer, adding to his burden of debt. Recently he had to cancel his life insurance policy because he could not meet the premiums.

"I guess his motive was money," said Sheriff Lawrence Quinlan. "The crew said he was calm through the whole thing and he was apparently rational enough—sharp enough to have the whole thing planned out in advance."

Thirty minutes after the plane left Albany for New York, Von George pulled a gun—later found to be a starter's pistol carrying a blank—pointed it at Miss McAllister and told her he wanted to go to Westchester County Airport near White Plains, N.Y. He said he was carrying an impact-type bomb bomb.

Capt. Carl Reith flew him there and Von George permitted the 42 passengers to disembark. Then he demanded two parachutes and $200,000 ransom.

Chutes Rigged
The parachutes — carefully rigged with homing devices to track the hijacker — were flown from Maguire Air Force Base, N.J., within two hours, but it took hours longer to trip time-lapse devices at the First National City Bank of New York and the money did not arrive until 12:37 a.m.

During Von George's long wait in the back of the plane with Miss McAllister, the hijacker also asked for cold-weather clothing for the stewardess and indicated he planned to force her to jump with him. The airport tower told Reith, who was barricaded in the cockpit with first officer William O'Hara, that it would be next to impossible to jump from an F227 without being struck by the tail.

"Anyone who thinks he can chute out of this plane has to be a little on the sick side. He's really a big dreamer," O'Hara said.

When the plane finally took off at 1:59 a.m., Von George ordered it to fly to Pittsfield, Mass., but once there he ordered Reith to continue flying to Poughkeepsie. The plane was directed to a darkened part of the airport, where capture of Von George would be easier to accomplish, and the F227 carrying FBI agents landed behind it where it could not be seen by the hijacker.

Car Wanted
Reith had radioed ahead that Von George wanted a car waiting at Dutchess County Airport and that he would keep Miss McAllister prisoner.

"When he told me to take my suitcase, I knew I wasn't coming back," she said later.

As Von George and the stewardess entered the waiting car, an FBI agent rushed from the shadows of the plane, went to the passenger side and identified himself. He said the hijacker fired the starter's pistol before the agent could push Miss McAllister aside to reach Von George.

The agent fired one blast from his shotgun at 4:04 a.m. and Von George's body rolled through the open door to the tarmac. The agent immediately removed the "bomb" which Von George had placed on the front seat beside him, but it turned out to be two canteens filled with water and wrapped in parts of woolen blankets.

The ransom money was recovered from the back seat.

In addition to his widow, Barbara, to whom he had been married 19 years, Von George is survived by his children Michael, 17, Thomas, 16, Cynthia, 15, Henrik, 11, Gary, 8, Timothy, 4, Barbara, 2,

80 Below In Siberia

Moscow (P) — The temperature fell to 79.6 degrees below zero Thursday in Yakutsk, northeastern Siberia, Tass reported. It was comparatively springlike in Moscow, 4 below.

The coldest temperature ever recorded in Siberia was 90.4 below at Oymyakon Feb. 6, 1933, and at Verkhoyansk Jan. 3, 1885, and Feb. 5 and 7, 1892. A reading of 126.9 below was recorded in Anarctica Aug. 24, 1960.

Reds Criticize Plan

Paris (P) — North Vietnam and the Viet Cong unleashed a barrage of criticism Thursday against every major point of President Nixon's peaceplan but stopped short of outright rejection.

S. Viets Stumble On Enemy Camp

Saigon (P) — South Vietnamese troops stumbled on to a base camp occupied by a company of enemy soldiers in the central highlands, touching off on Thursday one of the sharpest battles since a North Vietnamese buildup began there two months ago.

South Vietnamese headquarters said 25 North Vietnamese were killed, 20 of them by air strikes, in the ensuing battle. The base camp was found 13 miles southeast of Tan Canh in the general area of the Ben Het border base.

The number of South Vietnamese casualties was not disclosed.

Mahon Suggests Taxes Be Raised

Washington (P) — Administration officials seeking a lid on spending at the lofty level of President Nixon's $246.3 billion budget ran into a congressional suggestion Thursday that taxes be raised — "if not this year then certainly next."

The proposal came from Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, at the opening of hearings on Nixon's deficit-loaded fiscal 1973 budget. Mahon said the "escalating spending splurge" is shaking public confidence.

Nixon Tells Congress Controls On Wages, Controls Will Remain

©The New York Times

Washington — Price and wage controls will remain indefinitely until "reasonable price stability can be maintained without controls," President Nixon told Congress Thursday.

"How long that will take," the President said, "no one can say."

The President made his statement in his economic report to Congress, which accompanies the annual report of the Council of Economic Advisers.

In their reports the President and the Council said essentially the same thing in different ways: controls will be maintained until Americans stop through such things as labor contracts and business pricing policy, as if inflation were going to be permanent. Thus, the test of the end of controls will be the end of what is called "inflationary psychology."

Brief

Nixon in his brief message again emphasized that "the great problem" of the economy is to reduce unemployment from its current level of 6% of the labor force. He said he was "determined to reduce that number significantly in 1972."

In its relatively detailed forecast of the economy, the Council put the probable growth of the gross national product this year at $98 billion,

Indicators Show Gain

Washington (P) — The government's leading business indicators turned in a solid gain last month, providing new evidence the economy will be strong this year, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

The leading-indicators index advanced by 2.2% in December, and the November increase, originally reported at a weak 0.2% was actually a respectable 0.9%, the department said.

The government says that the index, compiled each month, is a good gauge of whether the economy is ready to move up or down.

Leak Won't Delay Mission To Moon

Washington (P) — The Space Agency said Thursday that the time required to make repairs to a fuel leak on the Apollo 16 spacecraft command module will not delay the scheduled April 16 Moon mission launch date.

"Preparations of the space vehicle will be back on the original schedule," said a brief announcement from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

or 9.4%, with unemployment declining to "the neighborhood" of 5% by the end of the year. The gross national product is the dollar value of all goods and services produced in the country in a year.

The report said this picture was "not one of takeoff into a cyclical boom."

Of the expected total growth, the council said that about 6 percentage points would be "real" and about 3½ points would be a result of inflation. The inflation rate will decline as the year progresses, the council said.

For last year, 2.7 points of the growth in the gross national product was considered "real" and 4.7 points was attributed to inflation.

The forecast emphasized a number of "uncertainties," and noted the administration's "readiness to take additional steps" if necessary to bring about the projected expansion in output and jobs. However, the report said, "the possibility that, with the policy now in place, the economy will rise even more rapidly than we foresee today is a strong reason for not seeking to stimulate the economy more now."

Conservative

In two important respects, the forecast was relatively conservative. It projected no reduction in the recent unusually high rate of consumer saving, and thus did not rely upon a booming burst of consumer spending.

And, in the key case of business inventory accumulation, the report projected an increase from the unusually low level of 1971 but, again, the expected rise of $8 billion was not of boomlike proportions.

The President said 1972 "begins on a note of much greater confidence than prevailed 6 or 12 months ago." He said, "Output is rising at a rate which will boost employment rapidly and eat into unemployment."

The issue of the duration of price and wage controls has aroused much speculation, some confusion, and some apparent difference in statements by various officials.

Thursday's report by the Council of Economic Advisers did not settle the question, but it gave the clearest picture yet of the administration's policy. Indefinite controls were not ruled out, although the clear aim is to end them.

Much History

Much of the Council's report was devoted to a history of the events leading up to the President's announcement Aug. 15 imposing a wage-price freeze, suspending convertibility between the dollar and gold and proposing new tax cuts to stimulate the economy. The report contained the most complete account yet of the reasoning that lay behind the administration's decisions.

Great emphasis was placed on the international side of the problem.

The report said the need to act to improve the nation's balance of international payments finally "tipped the scales" in the long debate on price-wage policy and led directly to the wage-price freeze.

Well-Traveled Singer Mahalia Jackson Dies

Chicago (P) — Mahalia Jackson, gospel singer and recording artist who performed throughout the world, died Thursday of a heart seizure, hospital attendants said.

Born in a levee shack on the Mississippi River near New Orleans, La., Miss Jackson rose from washerwoman to international fame singing gospel songs.

Her name appeared on marquee of Carnegie Hall in New York to the capitals of Europe.

Since 1964, Miss Jackson had been in and out of hospitals, suffering mainly from what doctors said was complete exhaustion from her demanding itinerary.

Miss Jackson entered Little Company of Mary Hospital Jan. 19. Attendants said she was suffering from an intestinal obstruction associated with heart disease. She died in the intensive care unit.

She had become ill on a European tour several months ago and was ordered home by doctors.

Hospital attendants said she was in a semiconscious state the last two days and died without any of her friends or admirers at the bedside.

Viet Communists Insist On Two Demands

(c) New York Times News Service
Paris — Replying to the eight-point U.S. peace plan, the Vietnamese Communists insisted Thursday at the Paris talks that the United States must set a date for total military withdrawal and oust the present Saigon government before there can be a Vietnam settlement. (More on Page 2.)

Rogers 'Encouraged'

Washington — Secretary of State Rogers said the failure of the North Vietnamese to

Tokyo, Moscow To Negotiate

Tokyo — Japan and the Soviet Union, in a communique issued at the end of a week-long visit to Tokyo by Andrei Gromyko, the Soviet foreign minister, said they would begin

Quiz Of Irvings Sought

Zurich — The FBI has been asked by Swiss law-enforcement officials to interview Clifford Irving, the novelist, and his wife in

Pro-Gay Bill Killed

New York — Meeting in executive session, the City Council committee on general welfare voted 7 to 5 with one abstention to kill a controversial bill to prohibit discrimination against homosexuals in jobs, housing and public accommodations.

Hijacker Slain By FBI Pictured As A 'Loser'

Poughkeepsie, N.Y. (UPI) — A Brockton, Mass., father of seven who was shot and killed early Thursday after hijacking a Mohawk Airlines plane was pictured as a "loser" who was heavily in debt because of high family medical bills.

An FBI agent killed Henrik Von George, 45, with a shotgun blast at close range as he attempted to escape from Dutchess County Airport with $200,000 ransom money and stewardess Eileen McAllister, 30, of New York as a hostage. He was struck in the chest and throat.

Thus ended a 9½-hour drama that included air surveillance of the hijacked F227 propjet by four U.S. Air Force jet interceptors—now a standard operating procedure in such cases—and another F227 Mohawk plane carrying FBI agents.

Von George, using the last name Grate, boarded the plane in Albany where he reportedly had come for a job interview. Neighbors in Brockton and in Peekskill, N.Y., where he lived until 1970, said Von George had always moved from job to job.

Mrs. Von George said in

Brockton that her husband, an honorably discharged Army veteran, had been unemployed and "left here Tuesday to go to New York to get a job."

When living in Peekskill he had run a small newsstand in downtown Poughkeepsie, where he had previously worked in a department store.

One acquaintance said Von George was always out of money and rumored to be a gambler.

One of his children, Grly, 8, underwent open heart surgery in Boston last summer, adding to his burden of debt. Recently he had to cancel his life insurance policy because he could not meet the premiums.

"I guess his motive was money," said Sheriff Lawrence Quinlan. "The crew said he was calm through the whole thing and he was apparently rational enough—sharp enough to have the whole thing planned out in advance."

Thirty minutes after the plane left Albany for New York, Von George pulled a gun—later found to be a starter's pistol carrying a blank—pointed it at Miss McAllister and told her he wanted to go to Westchester County Airport near White Plains, N.Y. He said he was carrying an impact-type bomb.

Capt. Carl Reith flew him there and Von George permitted the 42 passengers to disembark. Then he demanded two parachutes and $200,000 ransom.

Chutes Rigged

The parachutes—carefully rigged with homing devices to track the hijacker—were flown from Maguire Air Force Base, N.J., within two hours, but it took hours longer to trip time-lock devices at the First National City Bank of New York and the money did not arrive until 12:37 a.m.

During Von George's long wait in the back of the plane with Miss McAllister, the hijacker also asked for cold-weather clothing for the stewardess and indicated he planned to force her to jump with him. The airport tower told Reith, who was barricaded in the cockpit with first officer William O'Hara, that it would be next to impossible to jump from an F227 without being struck by the tail.

"Anyone who thinks he can chute out of this plane has to be a little on the sick side. He's really a big dreamer," O'Hara said.

When the plane finally took off at 1:59 a.m., Von George ordered it to fly to Pittsfield, Mass., but once there he ordered Reith to continue flying to Poughkeepsie. The plane was directed to a darkened part of the airport, where capture of Von George would be easier to accomplish, and the F227 carrying FBI agents landed behind it where it could not be seen by the hijacker.

Car Wanted

Reith had radioed ahead that Von George wanted a car waiting at Dutchess County Airport and that he would keep Miss McAllister prisoner.

"When he told me to take my suitcase, I knew I wasn't coming back," she said later.

As Von George and the stewardess entered the waiting car, an FBI agent rushed from the shadows of the plane, went to the passenger side and identified himself. He said the hijacker fired the starter's pistol before the agent could push Miss McAllister aside to reach Von George.

The agent fired one blast from his shotgun at 4:04 a.m. and Von George's body rolled through the open door to the tarmac. The agent immediately removed the "bomb" which Von George had placed on the front seat beside him, but it turned out to be two canteens filled with water and wrapped in parts of woolen blankets.

The ransom money was recovered from the back seat.

In addition to his widow, Barbara, to whom he had been married 19 years, Von George is survived by his children Michael, 17, Thomas, 16, Cynthia, 15, Henrik, 11, Gary, 8, Timothy, 4, Barbara, 2,

Mahon Suggests Taxes Be Raised

Washington (AP) — Administration officials seeking a lid on spending at the lofty level of President Nixon's $246.3 billion budget ran into a congressional suggestion Thursday that taxes be raised — "if not this year then certainly next."

The proposal came from Rep. George H. Mahon, D-Tex., chairman of the House Appropriations Committee, at the opening of hearings on Nixon's deficit-loaded fiscal 1973 budget. Mahon said the "escalating spending splurge" is shaking public confidence.

Nixon Tells Congress Controls On Wages, Controls Will Remain

(The New York Times)

Washington — Price and wage controls will remain indefinitely until "reasonable price stability can be maintained without controls," President Nixon told Congress Thursday.

"How long that will take," the President said, "no one can say."

The President made his statement in his economic report to Congress, which accompanies the annual report of the Council of Economic Advisers.

In their reports the President and the Council said essentially the same thing in different ways: controls will be maintained until Americans stop through such things as labor contracts and business pricing policy, as if inflation were going to be permanent. Thus, the test of the end of controls will be the end of what is called "inflationary psychology."

Brief

Nixon in his brief message again emphasized that "the great problem" of the economy is to reduce unemployment from its current level of 6% of the labor force. He said he was "determined to reduce that number significantly in 1972."

In its relatively detailed forecast of the economy, the Council put the probable growth of the gross national product this year at $98 billion, or 9.4%, with unemployment declining to "the neighborhood" of 5% by the end of the year. The gross national product is the dollar value of all goods and services produced in the country in a year.

The report said this picture was "not one of takeoff into a cyclical boom."

Of the expected total growth, the council said that about 6 percentage points would be "real" and about 3½ points would be a result of inflation. The inflation rate will decline as the year progresses, the council said.

For last year, 2.7 points of the growth in the gross national product was considered "real" and 4.7 points was attributed to inflation.

The forecast emphasized a number of "uncertainties," and noted the administration's "readiness to take additional steps" if necessary to bring about the projected expansion in output and jobs. However, the report said, "the possibility that, with the policy now in place, the economy will rise even more rapidly than we foresee today is a strong reason for not seeking to stimulate the economy more now."

Conservative

In two important respects, the forecast was relatively conservative. It projected no reduction in the recent unusually high rate of consumer saving, and thus did not rely upon a booming burst of consumer spending.

And, in the key case of business inventory accumulation, the report projected an increase from the unusually low level of 1971 but, again, the expected rise of $8 billion was not of boomlike proportions.

The President said 1972 "begins on a note of much greater confidence than prevailed 6 or 12 months ago." He said, "Output is rising at a rate which will boost employment rapidly and eat into unemployment."

The issue of the duration of price and wage controls has aroused much speculation, some confusion, and some apparent difference in statements by various officials.

Thursday's report by the Council of Economic Advisers did not settle the question, but it gave the clearest picture yet of the administration's policy. Indefinite controls were not ruled out, although the clear aim is to end them.

Much History

Much of the Council's report was devoted to a history of the events leading up to the President's announcement Aug. 15 imposing a wage-price freeze, suspending convertibility between the dollar and gold and proposing new tax cuts to stimulate the economy. The report contained the most complete account yet of the reasoning that lay behind the administration's decisions.

Indicators Show Gain

Washington (AP) — The government's leading business indicators turned in a solid gain last month, providing new evidence the economy will be strong this year, the Commerce Department said Thursday.

The leading-indicators index advanced by 2.2% in December, and the November increase, originally reported at a weak 0.2% was actually a respectable 0.9%, the department said.

The government says that the index, compiled each month, is a good gauge of whether the economy is ready to move up or down.

Leak Won't Delay Mission To Moon

"Preparations of the space vehicle will be back on the original schedule," said a brief announcement from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration.

Appropriations Committee Budget Dispute Turns Into Revolution

By DON WALTON
Star Staff Writer

The Appropriations Committee's heated budget dispute turned into a revolution Thursday.

With the consent of a majority of five members and over the objections of Chairman Richard Marvel of Hastings, Sen. Fern Hubbard Orme of Lincoln summoned the committee into session Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Orme is vice chairman of the budget unit.

Her action and Marvel's protestation that the meeting could only be unofficial and informal since it was not called by the chairman touched off a confused floor debate which ended abruptly with a 20-19 vote to adjourn.

"You have to face the problem ultimately," Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha told his colleagues.

"You have only left the issue hanging in the air."

But Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly, chairman of the Rules Committee, said he believes a committee majority may call an official meeting and take formal action without the consent of the chairman.

While the rules are silent on that particular point, Warner said, legislative precedent would lend authority to the committee's actions.

The sudden mutiny of the Appropriations Committee majority — frustrated by a legislative decision earlier this week to wrest the operational budget bill from their hands — burst into the open as senator's prepared for next week's budget debate.

Gov. J. James Exon formally submitted his operational budget proposals to the lawmakers in bill form so they may be considered along with the bill extracted from the committee.

Marvel, who signed the governor's bills as committee chairman in conformance with legislative rules, won consent to place them on the floor for "open discussion" rather than sending them to the committee for consideration.

Then Sen. William Swanson of Lincoln gained 25-6 approval for an unofficial meeting of the Legislature Tuesday morning to hear "a full explanation of where the major differences between the two budgets lie."

Gus Lieske, the governor's director of administrative services, will be invited to present Exon's views, Swanson said.

"We can hear from representatives of the Budget Committee the legislative fiscal analyst and others," he said. Marvel supported the suggestion.

Senators will then be in position to begin formal floor consideration of the budget Wednesday, Swanson said.

And the first issue they should settle, Sen. Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff insisted, is whether appropriations by program should be allocated for guidance only or whether spending limits should be attached to each program.

Exon and the insurgent majority of five committee members favor spending flexibility for state agencies within their total budget allotment.

Marvel, with the apparent support of three members of the committee, wants spending ceilings attached to most programs within state agency budgets.

The governor's budget bills, LB1477 and LB1478, list program appropriations "for information only" and further give state administrators "authority to grant (salary) increases commensurate with the best interests of their programs, of their agencies and of the state."

LB1477 appropriates funds

for salary hikes on the basis of an average 4% increase.

The governor's operational budget proposal for fiscal 1972-73 calls for $195.4 million in appropriations from the state tax-supported general fund.

Marvel has scheduled a committee meeting for next Monday, the first called by him since Jan. 13.

But Mrs. Orme informed all committee members, including Marvel, that she was calling the committee together, with the consent of a majority of its members, Thursday afternoon.

Marvel then took the floor to say it was his "painful duty" to suggest that, even though

"some are unhappy they cannot get their way," they have "no authority to proceed."

Mrs. Orme said "a majority wants to meet" and would do so.

Sen. John Savage of Omaha, one of the majority, said the Legislature's earlier decision to take the bill from the committee against the expressed wishes of its majority "dealt a terrible blow" to the committee system.

"This committee should be allowed to complete the business it was created to do," he said.

"If a majority wants to meet to do so, it should be allowed to do so," Savage said he may have failed to win legislative approval for his position earlier this week because he is a relatively inexperienced legislator.

"More experienced members of the committee went around buttonholing other senators and crying on their shoulders big crocodile tears," Savage said.

Another committee member, Sen. Dave Stahmer of Omaha, said it is "not out of place to ask that the committee get on with its work."

It has thus far failed to take any formal action on a capital construction budget, he said.

Chambers said it may prove necessary to abolish the committee and turn budgetary decisions over to the Legislature itself acting as a committee-of-the-whole.

Education Support Proposal Cut In Half By Committee

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

The Constitutional Revision Committee whittled down Sen. Terry Carpenter's constitutional amendment billing the state for education from all costs to one-half, before putting off final action on the bill.

The committee also voted to wash down the drain two constitutional amendments sponsored by Milligan Sen. Richard Maresh.

LB1109 which would have made state loans available to villages wishing to construct secondary sewage treatment sank on a 5 to 1 vote.

The other Maresh amendment, LB1106, would have exempted doctors settling in counties less than 2,000 people 5 years free of state income tax. It too was torpedoed.

Maresh told his fellow senators that in Clay County there are 8,262 people but only 1 doctor who is 67-years-old. Something, he said, must be done to keep doctors in rural Nebraska.

Under the amended Carpenter bill, LB1080, the state would pay one-half of the costs for the operation of public elementary and secondary schools.

However, the state would not assume the tab for land acquisition, building construction, improvements and repair or debt service. This would have to be funded through local sources — bonds and property taxes.

Carpenter said his bill was prompted by recent court decisions in Texas, California and New Jersey which questioned the unequal application of property taxes to support school districts.

Nebraska, which ranks high in the nation for dependence on local support for schools, could be in danger because of unequal property tax levels between school districts.

The courts have said the disproportionate tax load violates the equal protection clause in the 14th Amendment. As yet, the tax structure has not been challenged in state court, but Carpenter indicated one is expected to be filed shortly in Papillion.

The Scottsbluff lawmaker told the senators that his measure might mean a 2 1/2-3 1/2% hike in the state's income tax to finance the measure. In terms of dollars, Carpenter said he had no idea what the figure would be.

John Lynch, of the Nebraska State Education Association, told the senators that he favored the bill in principle but said a constitutional amendment is not the way to accomplish the redistribution of taxes.

"If the amendment was referred to the voters and rejected, the issue would return to the Legislature. The Legislature should make some effort to meet the constitutional requirements," he said.

"If the issue was passed, it doesn't insure taxes and opportunities in education would be equal."

"The Legislature has the authority to do what the courts said we should do. This matter shouldn't be referred to the people."

Recreation Unit Proposal Killed

The Legislature's Agriculture and Recreation Committee Thursday killed a bill which would have created a Nebraska Recreation Board.

The committee decision to kill the measure, LB1287, was done at the request of its sponsor, Sen. William F. Swanson of Lincoln.

"I think there was much merit in this idea," he told the committee, "but I don't think we're quite ready for it as yet."

However, he also told the committee he plans to introduce a resolution in the Legislature calling for an interim study of the matter.

Hitchhikers, Bicyclists Back Bills At Hearing

By The Associated Press

Hitchhikers and bicycling enthusiasts assembled before the Legislature's Public Works Committee Thursday to applaud bills legalizing hitchhiking and providing for bike trails and footpaths along Nebraska roads.

Both the hitchhiking bill, LB1227, and the biking measure, LB1217, were introduced by Sen. John De Camp of Neligh. The committee held the bills without action.

Also held with no action after Thursday's session were bills levying a special tax on metal-studded snow tires and permitting Lancaster and Douglas counties to restrict traffic on county roads.

In its original form, DeCamp's LB1227 would set up a licensing system under which hitchhikers in Nebraska would have to pay $1.50 for a hitchhiking license before they could legally thumb rides.

But De Camp presented the committee Thursday with an amended version of the bill which would simply remove a current prohibition against hitchhiking. It would only allow hitchhiking where it would not endanger driving and would permit policemen to stop and check hitchhikers' identification.

Several young hitchhiking advocates appeared in favor of the bill, noting that hitchhiking is becoming an accepted mode of transportation and criticizing the current law.

Only one opponent, representing the Nebraska School Bus Drivers Association, appeared to testify on the bill. He said that in addition to the driving hazard hitchhikers present, he "once picked up a nice fellow in a Michigan State University sweater and he put a gun in my ribs."

A host of biking enthusiasts turned out to support De Camp's biking bill, under which

1% of highway construction funds would go to build bike and foot trails along streets and roads.

The bill was opposed by the association of county officials, the Nebraska Petroleum Council and other highway user organizations.

"We'd be opening a Pandora's box with this type of legislation," said Charles Chase of the Petroleum Council. He said that the measure would unfairly divert highway user tax revenues to "non-highway purposes."

Also held without action was Omaha Sen. John Savage's LB1236, which proposes a $3 tax on studded snow tires.

The theory of the bill was supported by Omaha Public Works Director Gene E. Jordan, although he said that Omaha statistics show the damage wreaked per snow tire at closer to $7.40.

Legislature Again Refuses To Alter Election Proposal

The legislature, for the second time in three days, refused Tuesday to amend a pending bill so that elected officials who are in mid-term would need to resign their offices to seek another elected office.

Long and heavy debate went into consideration of motions to return the bill at issue, LB661, to select file for amendment.

At present, legislators may seek another office in the middle of their four-year terms with assurance that if not elected, they can continue to fill out their four-year term in the Legislature. LB661, in current form, extends that privilege to other office holders as well.

Two state senators who are in mid-term, Terry Carpenter of Scottsbluff and John De Camp of Neligh, currently are candidates for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate.

Sen. Richard Proud of Omaha sought unsuccessfully Thursday to prohibit all constitutional and statutory office holders, even legislators, from seeking another office without resigning. An alternative Proud amendment not affecting legislators also was rejected.

A proposal by Sen. Wayne Ziebarth of Wilcox to make the LB661 provision effective in 1973, not before also was defeated.

Committee OKs Six Appointments

The Legislature's Committee on Committees Thursday unanimously recommended that the Legislature approve a series of six appointments made last year by Gov. J. J. Exon to various state boards.

Three appointments were to the State Highway Advisory Commission, including W. D. Newberry of Kearney, Thane Davis of Hyannis, and Joseph Lipton of Omaha.

The other two included Ed Crowley of Omaha to the Public Welfare and Institutions Advisory Committee, Nels Petersen of Omaha to the State Personnel Board, and Julius Novak of Omaha to the Motor Vehicle Dealers License Board.

Bills Introduced

By Associated Press

Bills introduced in the Legislature Thursday:

LB1477 (Marvel, at governor's request) — Appropriating operational funds for state government for fiscal year beginning July 1.

LB1478 (Marvel, at governor's request) — Appropriating operational funds for non-state agencies for fiscal year beginning July 1.

LB1479 (Retirement Committee) — Providing that the state auditor shall audit county employees' retirement system.

LB1480 (Retirement Systems Committee) — Providing that the state auditor shall audit school employees' retirement system.

Committee Holds Bill Hiking Lobbying Fees

By The Associated Press

A proposal to increase by five times the registration fee for lobbyists at the Nebraska Legislature was heard and held Thursday by the Legislature's Miscellaneous Subjects Committee.

Also heard and held by the committee were bills to create a state arena board to oversee the North Platte Wild West Arena, instruct the Nebraska Educational Television Network to produce a documentary film on state government, require counties to pay for uniforms for sheriff's officers, and create a statewide teletypewriter communications network.

Sen. William Swanson of Lincoln sponsored LB1218, providing that lobbyists' fees be raised from $5 to $25 and providing the fee shall cover a two-year period.

Legislative clerk Vincent Brown said 355 lobbyists registered during the 1971 session and 295 have registered this year, producing $1,775 and $1,475, in revenue, respectively.

However, he explained, secretarial costs for the lobbyists' system run to $3,500 annually and thus cost more than the registration fee brought in, Brown told the committee.

Sen. Ellen Craft of North Platte sponsored the measure, LB1328, to set up the six-member arena board.

Asst. Game and Parks Commission Director Richard Spady testified on behalf of the measure, saying such a board is needed to run the arena.

The state tourism function has been transferred from the commission to the Economic Development Department. Spady explained, and the board would be able to direct the activities of the arena.

Avoca Sen. Calvin Carsten's LB1192, providing the sheriff's uniforms, was supported by several law enforcement groups.

Carsten also proposed the teletypewriter system in LB1197, which would tie into the state telecommunications network. He said it would aid law enforcement officers.

Former Legislative Clerk Hugo Srb spoke in favor of LB1180, the proposal by Sen. Richard Maresh of Milligan to require the documentary film. Srb said the film could aid students in learning about Nebraska government.

Warner Calls Exon Stand On School Aid 'Real Hoax'

Sen. Jerome Warner of Waverly Thursday charged Gov. J. J. Exon's stand against increased local school aid is the "real" tax hoax of this or any other year.

Warner said he was "amazed" by Exon's statements that the Legislature is "wasting its time" discussing the support of public elementary and secondary schools.

"The fact that several bills have been introduced during this session, in itself, is evidence of the seriousness of this problem which the citizens of our state face," he said.

Warner said it may be that the "governor does not understand" the whole situation.

And the "hoax" of the matter is, Warner said, that Exon has said increased state aid to local schools would not provide a more equitable means of financing education as well as provide a property tax break.

"For the governor to say that to increase state aid to schools does not result in greater equity in the support of education as well as property tax relief is the real 'tax hoax' of 1972 or any other year," the lawmaker said.

Warner said it may be that the "governor does not understand" the whole situation.

Landlord Bill Revival Nixed

An unsuccessful attempt was made in the Legislature Thursday to revive a bill which would have set down procedures to be followed by landlords who accept security deposits on rentals.

The request to bring the bill, LB1097, to the floor despite a decision by the Banking, Commerce and Insurance Committee to kill it, was made by Sen. Wallace Barnett of Lincoln.

Barnett, the bill's sponsor, said there may be some weaknesses in the measure, but said at least some version is needed.

The lawmakers, however, voted 19-16 on the request. To revive a bill from a committee killing requires at least 25 votes.

Hearing Slated On Platte River Study

A resolution which would direct that a current Platte River basin study concern itself also with the effects of basin development on the Sandhills area of Nebraska, including the Loup River basin, will receive a public hearing before a legislative committee.

Introduced Wednesday by Sen. Rudolf Kokes of Ord and others, Resolution 24 was called up for adoption Thursday. But at the suggestion of Scottsbluff Sen. Terry Carpenter and others, lawmakers directed that it be aired publicly before a standing committee.

Many Contracts Secretly Okayed

•The New York Times

Washington — The committee that oversees construction pay has secretly approved 100 to 200 labor contracts since November in what officials concede was an effort to hide the size of pay increases well above guidelines set by the Pay Board.

Staff members on the Pay Board and the Construction Industry Stabilization Committee say the board requested the secrecy because it thought that news of the construction settlements was undermining efforts to establish pay increases of 5.5% for most unions and 7% for exceptions.

One Pay Board official lays it all to a misunderstanding, and says the secrecy now will be ended.

The Construction Committee, set up last spring to regulate pay in the construction industry, now works under the general guidelines of the Pay Board, which was established in the fall.

Even union leaders conceded that spiraling construction pay, which was averaging 19% in first-year pay-and-benefit gains, had gotten out of hand and had become the trigger for large demands from other unions.

In the months since it was established, the Construction Committee says it has brought the settlements down to the 10% range.

But while Construction Committee members considered this a significant improvement, Pay Board officials reportedly felt that public announcements of such settlements — still twice the 5.5% yardstick for most other unions and sometimes more — would upset the stabilization program as a whole.

In fact, the Pay Board has granted increases to powerful unions far in excess of any of its guidelines.

The Construction Committee says it does not have any average for contracts approved since Dec. 3. At first, the Construction Committee said it just would not release the details of the new contracts, blaming the Pay Board. But Thursday, the committee offered to take any single contract out of its files and show it to a newsman if requested. Prior to December, the committee had sent out a detailed weekly list of all contract approvals.

Pay Board spokesmen first said there was no formal order to the Construction Committee to hold back information.

But Arnold Weber, a Pay Board member, said later "apparently there was a big misunderstanding on this."

He acknowledged that the board had told the Construction Committee, "If anything comes up, let us know. Apparently that was confused into thinking they can't get information out because the heavies said no."

But there is another interpretation from staff members of both groups: that the Pay Board was trying to emphasize its guidelines and that continued publicity given to construction contract approvals of double or triple the guideline figures, it was thought, would be damaging.

Some Construction Committee members also felt the publicity overemphasized the size of the settlement in the building trades and not that the size of the settlements was being lowered from past years. At that point the Pay Board asked the Construction Committee to make no news releases without prior approval or consultation with, which in effect meant no more news on the contract settlements.

Thursday, new rules were agreed upon by the board and committee calling for the Construction Committee to work within the Pay Board's guidelines wherever possible. The board was supposed to do that anyway, so it is not known whether this will have any effect on the size of construction pay settlements.

And members of both groups said that in the future the Construction Committee would be able to make routine news announcements, presumably the weekly resumes on contract approvals, without checking with the Pay Board first.

Mayor Plans Meeting On Release Of Report

In the latest development concerning the release of the Human Rights Commission investigation into alleged police brutality, Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said Thursday that he will meet with the City Council Friday morning to consider the immediate release of the report.

Mayor Schwartzkopf noted that he has been advised by City Attorney Dick Wood that release of the report would not be affected by current court action against the subject of the report, Cleveland Randolph.

In a letter to the Mayor, Wood concluded that the city would be "ill advised" to not release the report in view of charges by some Lincolners that the city government is "whitewashing" the report.

However, Mayor Schwartzkopf pointed out that he has not received any letters or visits from people who have charged that the report is being suppressed. He added that some of the individuals involved were "just seeking publicity."

At a meeting between the Council and mayor last week Schwartzkopf said that he had recommended the report not be made public until a decision is handed down in the Randolph case.

The group wanted to hold another session to finish reviewing the report and its recommendations before making it public.

However the mayor said Thursday he would release the report on his own timetable.

Randolph's arrest and his subsequent allegations that he was beaten by police officers when he was taken into custody was the cause of the detailed study made by the Human Rights Commission. Randolph's municipal court trial on resisting arrest charges was held Jan. 4th and 5th.

LTS Favors Stuewig & Associates Proposal

The Lincoln Transportation System (LTS) Board Thursday reviewed several public relations firms' proposals for promoting the city's bus system and recommended that Stuewig & Associates, Inc., be chosen for the job.

LTS chairman Robert Campbell said that a public relations campaign is needed to increase ridership on the buses and to "sell" the city's new bus fleet, which will be arriving in April.

Initial expenditure for one year of service was set at $7,500, with $5,000 going for the firm's management services and the remaining $2,500 going for actual media and production expenses.

Board member Mrs. Jan Gauger reported that letters were mailed to all the city's public relations firms to determine which ones would be interested in promoting LTS. Six firms sent back proposals.

The final decision on which firm will be chosen is up to LTS manager Jerald Rae and city Finance Director Jim Mallon.

In other action the Board agreed to support the concept of federal subsidization of a city-owned bus service. A telegram will be sent to Rep. Charles Thone to advise him of the Board's support.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf told the Board that he had talked to Rep. Thone on his recent trip to Washington, D.C., at which time Thone said Congress is considering enacting legislation subsidizing municipally-owned bus systems. Mayor Schwartzkopf said he would also send a telegram to Thone.

Warehouse Fire Suit Filed

Omaha — A $3 million suit was filed in Douglas County District Court Thursday as the result of a warehouse fire in Norfolk four years ago.

The General Wholesale Cooperative Co., owner of the warehouse, asked for the award from the Central Telephone and Utilities Corp., a Kansas Concern, and Northern Propane Gas Co. of Omaha.

The suit alleges that a gas leakage in a combined heating and air conditioning unit caused the Jan. 29, 1968, fire which destroyed the warehouse and its contents.

The utilities corporation sold the unit to General Wholesale and Northern Propane supplied the gas, the suit said.

The Eagle Star Insurance Co., Ltd., which insured the building and its contents, asked for $2,560,000 in a separate suit.

Meyerson Plans A Meeting With Housing Groups

Interim Student Affairs Dean Ely Meyerson Thursday said he expected to meet early next week with representatives of a coalition of low-income housing groups unhappy with student housing at the University of Nebraska.

The groups have contended that the Lincoln campuses have not provided adequate housing for students, who have then rented apartments and housing units that would otherwise be available for low-income tenants.

Meyerson said he and Bea Richmond, a spokesman for the housing groups, are "in agreement a meeting is sound."

He said the housing groups and his office were trying Thursday to schedule a meeting convenient to all parties.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Nebraska's Senator Carl Curtis hasn't hurt his re-election chances this past week. Apparently well aware of the unrest among farmers, Curtis voted with the losing side in an effort to force a 25 per cent increase in government crop support prices.

The action came as a Senate committee voted down a House-passed measure to force the higher prices. But Curtis has not stopped. He is now proposing that the Department of Agriculture adopt a kind of sliding scale of support prices, a move that may contain a lot of merit.

Currently, government controls peg the price of corn at $1.05 a bushel, less than it will cost a lot of farmers to produce that corn. The new Curtis idea is to hike that price by 10 or 15 cents on a percentage of farm acre allotments.

Thus, a farmer with a 100-acre corn allotment might get $1.05 under government guarantees for that 100 acres plus 15 cents per bushel on 90 acres. Presumably, one of the advantages of the program would be its built-in safeguard against increased production as a result of the higher support price.

One of the problems of the price support program is that it also tends to determine the grain market price — the price for grain paid in commercial channels. If you simply increased the support price for all corn and wheat, the tendency would be to increase the price in the market place.

The higher the price goes in the market place, the more farmers are encouraged to get out of the government program and go it alone. The result of this and other efforts to improve production is the problem of surpluses.

This was explained as the reason for opposition to the straight 25 per cent hike in support prices. It is the reason given for opposition to the bill by Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz. Curtis, however, voted in the committee against Butz and the Nixon administration in favor of the 25 per cent hike.

The approach Curtis has now come up with would seem to leave Butz without any opposition ground to stand on. This it would certainly do if, after careful study, it was shown that the partial increase in government supports would not spur excessive grain production.

Butz has also said that a 25 per cent hike in grain support prices would destroy the important export market. The experts will have to determine if the Curtis approach runs that same risk.

If the export grain could be taken from that produced at the lower support level, the export picture would be unchanged. If the two price support programs would simply average out for exports at a price between the high and low figure, that would bring a net increase in export prices and make foreign sales a little more difficult.

It is equally true, however, that growing corn for export at a loss is even worse than not exporting it at all. If we have to export at a loss, then we would be better off not to export. It is a little ridiculous for Butz to be relying upon an export program that is draining American agriculture and subsidizing foreign nations.

Perhaps the 25 per cent increase that had been approved by the House was unrealistic, although it would still have left farmers a long way behind the rest of the economy in terms of income. The change suggested by Curtis is far more modest and it is difficult to see how any reasonable person could oppose it.

One imagines that Curtis knows he could be in trouble this year in seeking another term in the Senate. It is believed that all farm belt representatives are going to have a hard time with the farm scene as it now stands.

President Nixon, as he has done, can cite convincing looking figures until he is green in the face but the fact remains that corn and wheat growers continue to exist at near-poverty levels and hundreds of farmers are going broke every month.

Improved farm credit, as useful as it might be, is not the answer to things. Farmers simply have to make a reasonable profit on their crops and there is no substitute for that reality.

WM. B. DICKINSON, JR.

Poetry Now Moving Up To A New Prominence

WASHINGTON — "The experience of a poem is the experience both of a moment and of a lifetime," wrote T. S. Eliot. This is probably as good an explanation as any for the intensity of the poetic experience in the lives of those who cherish the subtle pleasures of verse.

Traditionally, however, the craving for poetry has been a minority phenomenon. Now it is on the threshold of attaining a mass following. Normally a reading will draw a fervid little audience of 150-200 people. The sponsors of the big night in Madison Square Garden hope to attract 10,000 people at up to $10 a seat.

Part of the appeal clearly is in the big name — a Russian poet-of-protest Yevgeny Yevtushenko, who reportedly has instant recognition with sales clerks at Saks Fifth Avenue. Other bards on the bill include James Dickey, Stanley Kunitz and former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy. McCarthy's credentials as muse will be somewhat suspect among critics who recall his lines: "I'm an existential runner. Indifferent to space. I'm running here in place."

And how much poetry is left in a verse after it has been translated from Russian into English? The temptation is great to conclude that a show biz mentality is threatening to turn taste into mass-cult.

As far back as 1933 T. S. Eliot saw "generation after generation of untrained readers (of poetry) being taken by the sham and the adulterate in its own time—indeed preferring them, for they are more easily assimilable than the genuine article." Could Oscar Wilde have been right when he complained that the public "always feels perfectly at its ease when a mediocrity is talking to it?"

The big name in poetry at the moment is that of American Sylvia Plath. Her celebration rests on three thin collections and the fact that she took her own life in London nine winters ago at the age of 30. Her works are the biggest sellers in the field of serious poetry since Dylan Thomas.

Irving Howe of "Harper's" cautions against allowing "one's irritation with her devotees to spill over into response to her work." But the glamour of fatality hangs over her name and obscures the essential brilliance and astringency of her verse: "The woman is perfected. Her dead body wears the smile of accomplishment. The illusion of a Greek necessity flows in the scrolls of her toga. Her bare feet seem to be saying: 'We have come so far it is over.' Little wonder that novelist-critic Paul West has likened reading Plath to 'standing on the San Andreas fault or crawling on a glass roof.' Her later poems, he notes, 'tell us how close you can go before you fall in.'"

Robert Lowell recalls Sylvia Plath as a young girl who in 1959 used to drop in on his poetry seminar at Boston University. But somehow none of her work sank very deep into Lowell's awareness. "I sensed her abashment and distinction," he wrote later, "and never guessed her later appalling and triumphant fulfillment."

Obscurity and an early death are not necessarily the price of true greatness in the arts. But Charles IX of France (1550-74) may have had something when he claimed that poets, like horses, "are to be fed — not fattened." Poetry at its best will remain a private pleasure rather than a public celebration.

'Another Day, Another Announcement'

(Herblock is on vacation)

Licensing Measure Proposed

State Sen. John DeCamp, who has entertained the Unicameral this session with the introduction of some rather colorful and out-of-the-ordinary legislation, is going to change his hitchhiker licensing bill by striking the permit fee provision and is proposing that all Nebraska highways be opened up to hitchhikers.

We're not too sure whether DeCamp is attempting to aid the hitchhiker or frustrate him. With respect to the licensing of hitchhikers—fee or no fee—the bill would give birth to a migraine-size administrative headache, but it certainly would, if enforced, impede the flow of transient pedestrian traffic on the state's roadways.

Permitting hitchhiking, on the Interstate in particular, presents a number of obvious problems, most of them related to safety. Vehicle-pedestrian conflicts during nighttime and the potential that exists for accidents when vehicles are pulling on and off the shoulders should serve as sufficient examples. All in all, it would be better if DeCamp's hitchhiking measure didn't find its way out of committee.

Another bill relating to licenses, Sen. Gerald Stromer's LB1087, has some merit. It would require the licensee's picture to be part of the Nebraska motor vehicle operator's license.

Stromer is concerned about the need for reliable identification. Motor Vehicles Director John Kissack, while declaring himself neutral on the subject, estimated that the initial cost of the new licensing procedure would be $295,000, which could be made up by increasing the license fee by $1.

The license with a picture of the person to whom it was issued would serve as a more reliable piece of identification than now exists. It would be helpful in business and legal transactions and it would deter the transfer of a license from one person to another for illegal purposes.

Prospects Brighter In Europe

Although specifically not rejecting President Nixon's latest peace offer, communist "negotiators" in Paris wasted no time in denouncing nearly every aspect of it and Nixon as well for what they see as a callow, political appeal to world opinion. That reaction, distressing as it is, was to be expected.

To be expected, too, was Sec. of State William Roger's reaction to communist rejection of free elections in South Vietnam. The U.S., he said, will not accept a communist government in Saigon. Nor will the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong accept a freely-elected one. The situation in Indochina remains as it was before the President went on the air Tuesday night.

There was evidenced a small flicker of hope in another area of the world this week, however. The Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact allies Wednesday proposed a mutual cutback in the armed forces of both East and West in Europe — home armies as well as foreign forces.

The Warsaw Pact countries "think the conference (to negotiate mutual force reductions) can be convened in 1972... and several West European states are of the same opinion," the Soviets and their allies said in a declaration ending an East European summit meeting in Prague, Czechoslovakia. European observers said the proposal for a mutual East-West cutback of troops was the most precise so far issued by the Soviet bloc and it was described as "conciliatory."

While the Soviet bloc doubtless have very practical reasons for wanting a troop cutback, so should the West. Some officials of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization reportedly fear that mutual force reductions would reduce the number of American and Soviet troops in Europe but would expose Western Europe to possible danger from a Soviet home army that is much closer than American forces in the United States. That is a geographical reality, but it doesn't appear to be nearly so important in the light of a nuclear deterrence.

If the western bloc is motivated by fear alone, all hopes for a sane reduction of forces in Europe will be lost.

McGovern Alternative To Military Build-Up Would Start Back Logically From Zero Base

NEW YORK — "Strong military defenses are not the enemy of peace, they are the guardians of peace," said President Nixon in his State of the Union message, as preface to his announcement that he would ask for an increase in the defense budget.

Undoubtedly, the Russians see it the same way, at least as regards their defenses, but the real question is not strength, but how much strength?

It could be forcefully asserted that, in the United States as anywhere else, "military defenses" could be built to the point of impoverishing society otherwise; and if that were the case, those who commanded such a force would almost surely be powerful enough and of such a mind to make it the enemy rather than the guardian of peace.

It could also be argued that more and more men, more and more weapons, more and more money, do not necessarily result in more and more strength. Putting two divisions or two aircraft carriers where one is scarcely needed is a build-up of fat rather than muscle.

Most arguments are often made against the American military establishment into which Nixon now wants to pour more money for more weapons. That makes all the more interesting an "alternative national defense posture" proposed by Sen. George McGovern, who hopes to succeed Nixon and put his "alternative" into effect in fiscal 1975.

In estimated 1975 dollars, the McGovern military budget would be $54.8 billion dollars, against the $75.5 billion that the fiscal year 1972 military budget would cost in 1975 dollars. But the most interesting thing about the "alternative" is the so-called "zero base" from which it was compiled.

Most budgeting derives from the previous year's totals; that is, if the military establishment spends X-billion in a given year, when it starts to work on the following year's budget it adds or subtracts from X-billion whatever the new year's conditions seem to warrant. This means that many of the same underlying assumptions carry over from year to year, some long after they have any real meaning.

McGovern and the military specialists who helped him did not follow this practice. Instead, they made their own assumptions about the dangers and problems the military forces will confront in 1975, and drew their own conclusions from those assumptions. Instead of moving up or down from X-billions of dollars, they were able to start from a base of zero and budget only what to them seemed necessary.

Thus, for instance, current military forces include one land division and one carrier task force allocated to a possible Latin American contingency. McGovern's "alternative" would assign only a land division; "in light of the special relationship dictated by the proximity of the region to the United States" the senator saw no reason for a carrier task force "because of the virtual assurance that land bases will be available, at much lower cost, in the event that air forces are required."

This process of starting from scratch does not seem—at least to a non-expert — to have resulted in mere foolhardy budget-cutting. On the question of American troops in Europe, for instance, McGovern concluded that in the absence of mutual troop reductions negotiated with Warsaw Pact countries, eight American divisions should remain "available for service" with NATO as at present. But he also concluded that, given rapid redeployment capabilities and the numerical superiority, NATO would have in the initial stages of a conflict, two and a third American divisions could be pulled back to this continent.

That would leave two American divisions in Europe, enough to commit the United States to its defense; and it would require six divisions to be kept available in this country for redeployment to Europe. One of these would be

New Open Meetings Bill

A legislative bill that looks as if it could pretty well cover the waterfront on the matter of open meetings for public bodies is LB1332, introduced in the current session by Sen. George Syas of Omaha.

The proposal, if endorsed by the Legislature and okayed by the governor, appears to have enough teeth to force boards and committees to live up to the spirit of the law now on the books by tightening the letter of the law.

For example, while the University of Nebraska Board of Regents' practice of meeting informally before it meets in formal session is a violation of the spirit of the law, it may not violate the letter.

The law is much too vague on what ought to be considered a "convened meeting," and that seems to be its main weakness.

But Syas' bill would take care of that, in my opinion, with a section that says:

"All meetings at which all members of any governing body shall be required by law to be notified or actually shall have been notified, which are held for any of the purposes of briefing, discussion, or the formulation of tentative policy or the taking of final action, shall be deemed to be a convened meeting of such governing body open to attendance by the public."

That wouldn't leave much question about it.

Another weakness in the current statute is that it leaves the impression that as long as formal action on any matter comes during a public session, the bill's provisions have been met.

Thus, for example, the regents could meet informally to discuss matters and then meet publicly for the purpose merely of casting votes.

But LB1332 would require

Milan Wall Defining 'Convened'

advance notice of the meeting and the planned agenda, and then call for a "full discussion by the members of the governing bodies and their administrative staffs, of facts, reasons, or opinions relating to the relative desirability or alternative policies or courses of action possible or under consideration in the formulation of governmental policy or in the expenditure of public funds."

And all of that would have to take place in a convened meeting open to the public.

Perhaps it's unfair to keep pointing the finger at the regents, but among the boards I see operate, it's probably the best example (maybe that should be "worst").

It has not, generally, been willing to give the public a peek, much less a good look, at major impact policies or budget proposals before the board is ready to take final action on them, for example.

And the board has been known to suffer from some kind of fear about letting the public see proposals (even for minor appointments) before it has a chance to act on them.

On the other hand, I have to admit (and do so gladly) that the regents have improved in some respects during the past year.

They've been more willing to discuss things in public meetings. And they've even been willing to let the public see them disagree (horror of horrors... disagreement in a democratic society).

Perhaps they'll abandon the informal meeting practice before the law forces them to do so.

So that the regents don't think I'm just pickin' on them, we ought to remember that there are other boards which operate pretty secret-like most of the time.

And, it's important to note, change will not come without the interest of the administrative staffs that work for the boards, plus the interest of the public.

The latter is especially a key, I believe, and a recent discussion by members of the Lincoln Board of Education points it up.

That board, which operates as totally open as any I know of, has been meeting at night in various school buildings this winter to give local residents a chance to show up.

But a couple of school board members said the other day they'd vote to stop the nighttime meeting practice if more citizens don't show up at them.

It'll take more interest than that to promote accountability by such boards, and we ought to applaud those boards that open things up even without the visible interest.

Among those which ought to be praised are several other groups I see operate that may not even come within the jurisdiction of a Nebraska open meetings law.

Those groups include the Lincoln Foundation, the Lincoln Hospital and Health Council, and the Lincoln General Hospital Board of Trustees.

All of them, however, do benefit from the public trust and from public funds.

Other similar bodies, in fact all bodies which benefit in such ways, should follow suit.

Lincoln, Neb.

The farmer wants parity that he is not getting. The working man wants parity both in what he is paid and in what he buys. This country is capable of producing and providing for all its citizens. Yet we have poverty. We have all sorts of government programs and they don't seem to cure the ills. Could it be that certain classes are getting more than their fair share?

The farmer appears to be unable to solve his economic problems by himself and also together with the government. Perhaps he should join together with his city brother who finds himself in a similar situation, and the two groups work out the problem.

Governor's Ticket

Lincoln, Neb.

What gives Governor Exon the right to get a warning ticket for going through a stop sign at 14th and R when other people and myself get tickets for going through stop signs?

I received a ticket on January 13 for going through a stop sign at 11th and G, going one mile per hour. I'm guilty of going through: I'm not complaining about the ticket.

There is only one way of looking at it. We both went through stop signs. We both should get the same penalty. He is no different from anybody else. I just got back from paying my fine of $13. It's too bad he gets off free. I guess it pays to be supreme ruler.

I don't find this fault of Governor Exon, but the fault of the city and their Police Department. From now on, let's treat everybody equally on ticket violations or not give any, at all.

ROGER YANT
Waverly, Neb.

Recently I noticed in The Star that Gov. J. Exon had been stopped by the police for violating a stop sign. The Star stated that the governor explained to the officer that he failed to see the stop sign, and he was given a warning ticket—the kind one signs and mails in with no punishment or fine or court costs involved.

After 35 years of accident-free driving, I was recently stopped for passing a stop sign at a railroad crossing on North 66 in Haveleek. However, I was less fortunate than the governor and received a violation ticket when I told the officer I failed to see the sign.

This was my first ticket. I asked the city prosecutor to reduce the citation to a warning, but he said this was impossible, since the officer reported that I had slowed to 10-15 miles per hour at the crossing. I was obliged to pay eight dollars court costs and a five-dollar fine and sign a guilty plea that will count for two points on the 12-point driver's license revocation program.

I have learned since then that the police "hang out" at a drive-in near this stop sign during rush hours. I'm sure they're able to hand out a lot of tickets.

I think a study should be made by the city traffic department of the location of these stop sign violations. Perhaps additional warnings should be placed at certain signs where violations are heaviest. Signs reading "Stop Ahead" could be posted and the street could be painted in white letters "Stop Ahead" and "Stop."

The object of law-enforcement should be compliance with the law, not the giving of tickets, the collecting of fines and the intimidation of the motoring public.

Dog-Racing

Lincoln, Neb.

On the noon news on January 24, it was announced that another pitch was made to the Legislature for money to build a new horse-racing plant at the fairgrounds.

It is surely needed but why should the state of Nebraska be the benefactor when the return isn't worth it? The state realizes about $250,000 a year revenue from the horse-racing at the fairgrounds. The $2½ million they are asking is 10 years without taxes. Also the first million dollars exempt from taxes over 10 years is another $400,000 at the present rate of four per cent. This is actually asking the state to give them about three million dollars.

Yet a year ago the state was offered a source of revenue which could and would give the state several million dollars a year and no strings attached. I'm referring to LB915, the dog-racing bill which was killed in committee by a five-to-two margin.

I'm firmly convinced that there are several nonprofit organizations that back horse-racing that could come to the horsemen's rescue without the state's losing out the money!

If the Legislature grants this, it will be the largest wool-pulling over the eyes that the people of Nebraska will ever witness.

Editor's Note: State Fair Board officials point out that in addition to the pari-mutuel tax the state receives from its horse-racing meet, the racing meet also pays the major share of the expense involved in conducting the State Fair, thus leaving it with little or no money to make improvements on its own.

IN PERSPECTIVE

By WILLIAM O. DOBLER

Nebraska's Senator Carl Curtis hasn't hurt his re-election chances this past week. Apparently well aware of the unrest among farmers, Curtis voted with the losing side in an effort to force a 25 per cent increase in government crop support prices.

The action came as a Senate committee voted down a House-passed measure to force the higher prices. But Curtis has not stopped. He is now proposing that the Department of Agriculture adopt a kind of sliding scale of support prices, a move that may contain a lot of merit.

Currently, government controls peg the price of corn at $1.05 a bushel, less than it will cost a lot of farmers to produce that corn. The new Curtis idea is to hike that price by 10 or 15 cents on a percentage of farm acre allotments.

Thus, a farmer with a 100-acre corn allotment might get $1.05 under government guarantees for that 100 acres plus 15 cents per bushel on 90 acres. Presumably, one of the advantages of the program would be its built-in safeguard against increased production as a result of the higher support price.

One of the problems of the price support program is that it also tends to determine the grain market price — the price for grain paid in commercial channels. If you simply increased the support price for all corn and wheat, the tendency would be to increase the price in the market place.

The higher the price goes in the market place, the more farmers are encouraged to get out of the government program and go it alone. The result of this and other efforts to improve production is the problem of surpluses.

This was explained as the reason for opposition to the straight 25 per cent hike in support prices. It is the reason given for opposition to the bill by Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz. Curtis, however, voted in the committee against Butz and the Nixon administration in favor of the 25 per cent hike.

The approach Curtis has now come up with would seem to leave Butz without any opposition ground to stand on. This it would certainly do if, after careful study, it was shown that the partial increase in government supports would not spur excessive grain production.

Butz has also said that a 25 per cent hike in grain support prices would destroy the important export market. The experts will have to determine if the Curtis approach runs that same risk.

If the export grain could be taken from that produced at the lower support level, the export picture would be unchanged. If the two price support programs would simply average out for exports at a price between the high and low figure, that would bring a net increase in export prices and make foreign sales a little more difficult.

It is equally true, however, that growing corn for export at a loss is even worse than not exporting it at all. If we have to export at a loss, then we would be better off not to export. It is a little ridiculous for Butz to be relying upon an export program that is draining American agriculture and subsidizing foreign nations.

Perhaps the 25 per cent increase that had been approved by the House was unrealistic, although it would still have left farmers a long way behind the rest of the economy in terms of income. The change suggested by Curtis is far more modest and it is difficult to see how any reasonable person could oppose it.

One imagines that Curtis knows he could be in trouble this year is seeking another term in the Senate. It is believed that all farm belt representatives are going to have a hard time with the farm scene as it now stands.

President Nixon, as he has done, can cite convincing looking figures until he is green in the face but the fact remains that a corn and wheat growers continue to exist at near-poverty levels and hundreds of farmers are going broke every month.

Improved farm credit, as useful as it might be, is not the answer to things. Farmers simply have to make a reasonable profit on their crops and there is no substitute for that reality.

Poetry Now Moving Up To A New Prominence

WASHINGTON — "The experience of a poem is the experience both of a moment and of a lifetime," wrote T. S. Eliot. This is probably as good an explanation as any for the intensity of the poetic experience in the lives of those who cherish the subtle pleasures of verse.

Traditionally, however, the craving for poetry has been a minority phenomenon. Now it is on the threshold of attaining a mass following. Normally a reading will draw a fervid little audience of 150-500 people. The sponsors of the big night in Madison Square Garden hope to attract 10,000 people at up to $10 a seat.

Part of the appeal clearly is in the big name — Russian poet-of-protest Yevgeny Yevtushenko, who reportedly has instant recognition with sales clerks at Saks Fifth Avenue. Other bards on the bill include James Dickster, Stanley Kunitz and former Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy. McCarthy's credentials as muse will be somewhat suspect among critics who recall his lines: "I'm an existential runner. Indifferent to space. I'm running here in place."

And how much poetry is left in a verse after it has been translated from Russian into English? The temptation is great to conclude that a show biz mentality is threatening to turn taste into mass-cult.

As far back as 1933 T. S. Eliot saw "generation after generation of untrained readers (of poetry) being taken in by the sham and the adulterate in its own time—indeed preferring them, for they are more easily assimilable than the genuine article." Could Oscar Wilde have been right when he complained that the public "always feels perfectly at its ease when a mediocrity is talking to it?"

The big name in poetry at the moment is that of American Sylvia Plath. Her celebration rests on three thin collections and the fact that she took her own life in London nine winters ago at the age of 30. Her works are the biggest sellers in the field of serious poetry since Dylan Thomas.

Irving Howe of "Harper's" cautions against allowing "one's irritation with her devotees to spill over into response to her work." But the glamour of fatality hangs over her name and obscures the essential brilliance and astuteness of her verse: "The woman is perfected. Her dead body wears the smile of accomplishment. The illusion of a Greek necessity flows in the scrolls of her toga. Her bare feet seem to be saying: 'We have come so far it is over.' Little wonder that novelist-critic Paul West has likened reading Plath to 'standing on the San Andreas fault or crawling on a glass roof.' Her later poems, he notes, 'tell us how close you can go before you fall in.'"

Robert Lowell recalls Sylvia Plath as a young girl who in 1959 used to drop in on his poetry seminar at Boston University. But somehow none of her work sank very deep into Lowell's awareness. "I sensed her abashment and distinction," he wrote later, "and never guessed her later appalling and triumphant fulfillment."

Obscurity and an early death are not necessarily the price of true greatness in the arts. But Charles IX of France (1550-74) may have had something when he claimed that poets, like horses, "are to be fed — not fattened." Poetry at its best will remain a private pleasure rather than a public celebration.

Licensing Measure Proposed

State Sen. John DeCamp, who has entertained the Unicameral this session with the introduction of some rather colorful and out-of-the-ordinary legislation, is going to change his hitchhiker licensing bill by striking the permit fee provision and is proposing that all Nebraska highways be opened up to hitchhikers.

We're not too sure whether DeCamp is attempting to aid the hitchhiker or frustrate him. With respect to the licensing of hitchhikers—fee or no fee—the bill would give birth to a migraine-size administrative headache, but it certainly would, if enforced, impede the flow of transient pedestrian traffic on the state's roadways.

Permitting hitchhiking, on the Interstate in particular, presents a number of obvious problems, most of them related to safety. Vehicle-pedestrian conflicts during nighttime and the potential that exists for accidents when vehicles are pulling on and off the shoulders should serve as sufficient examples. All in all, it would be better if DeCamp's hitchhiking measure didn't find its way out of committee.

Another bill relating to licenses. Sen. Gerald Stromer's LB1087, has some merit. It would require the licensee's picture to be part of the Nebraska motor vehicle operator's license.

Stromer is concerned about the need for reliable identification. Motor Vehicles Director John Kissack, while declaring himself neutral on the subject, estimated that the initial cost of the new licensing procedure would be $295,000, which could be made up by increasing the license fee by $1.

The license with a picture of the person to whom it was issued would serve as a more reliable piece of identification than now exists. It would be helpful in business and legal transactions and it would deter the transfer of a license from one person to another for illegal purposes.

Prospects Brighter In Europe

Although specifically not rejecting President Nixon's latest peace offer, communist "negotiators" in Paris wasted no time in denouncing nearly every aspect of it and Nixon as well for what they see as a callow, political appeal to world opinion. That reaction, distressing as it is, was to be expected.

To be expected, too, was Sec. of State William Roger's reaction to communist rejection of free elections in South Vietnam. The U.S., he said, will not accept a communist government in Saigon. Nor will the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong accept a freely-elected one. The situation in Indochina remains as it was before the President went on the air Tuesday night.

There was evidenced a small flicker of hope in another area of the world this week, however. The Soviet Union and its Warsaw Pact allies Wednesday proposed a mutual cutback in the armed forces of both East and West in Europe — home armies as well as foreign forces.

The Warsaw Pact countries "think the conference to negotiate mutual force reduc-

I received a ticket on

January 13 for going through a stop sign at 11th and G, going one mile per hour. I'm guilty of going through: I'm not complaining about the ticket.

There is only one way of looking at it. We both went through stop signs. We both should get the same penalty. He is no different from anybody else. I just got back from paying my fine of $13. It's too bad he gets off free. I guess it pays to be supreme ruler.

I don't find this fault of Governor Exon, but the fault of the city and their Police Department. From now on, let's treat everybody equally on ticket violations or not give any, at all.

Dog-Racing

Lincoln, Neb.
On the noon news on January 24, it was announced that another pitch was made to the Legislature for money to build a new horse-racing plant at the fairgrounds.

It is surely needed but why should the state of Nebraska be the benefactor when the return isn't worth it? The state realizes about $250,000 a year revenue from the horse-racing at the fairgrounds. The $21 million they are asking is 10 years without taxes. Also the first million dollars exempt from taxes over 10 years is another $400,000 at the present rate of four per cent. This is actually asking the state to give them about three million dollars.

Yet a year ago the state was offered a source of revenue which could and would give the state several million dollars a year and no strings attached. I'm referring to LB915, the dog-racing bill which was killed in committee by a five-to-two margin.

I'm firmly convinced that there are several nonprofit organizations that back horse-racing that could come to the horsemen's rescue without the state's doling out the money!

If the Legislature grants this, it will be the largest wool-pulling over the eyes that the people of Nebraska will ever witness.

INTERESTED CITIZEN

Editor's Note: State Fair Board officials point out that in addition to the pari-mutuel tax the state receives from its horse-racing meet, the racing meet also pays the major share of the expense involved in conducting the State Fair, thus leaving it with little or no money to make improvements on its own.

Many Contracts Secretly Okayed

Washington — The committee that oversees construction pay has secretly approved 100 to 200 labor contracts since November in what officials concede was an effort to hide the size of pay increases well above guidelines set by the Pay Board.

Staff members on the Pay Board and the Construction Industry Stabilization Committee say the board requested the secrecy because it thought that news of the construction settlements was undermining efforts to establish pay increase guidelines of 5.5% for most unions and 7% for exceptions.

One Pay Board official lays it all to a misunderstanding, and says the secrecy now will be ended.

The Construction Committee, set up last spring to regulate pay in the construction industry, now works under the general guidelines of the Pay Board, which was established in the fall.

Even union leaders conceded that spiraling construction pay, which was averaging 19% in first-year pay-and-benefit gains, had gotten out of hand and had become the trigger for large demands from other unions.

In the months since it was established, the Construction Committee says it has brought the settlements down to the 10% range.

But while Construction Committee members considered this a significant improvement, Pay Board officials reportedly felt that public announcement

He is a past president of the Cornhusker Council of Boy Scouts of America, vice chairman of a national committee for Education of orphans of veterans for the American Legion and past Outstanding Legionnaire of the Year.

Judge Carter was appointed Associate Justice of the Nebraska Supreme Court in 1935. He retired in 1971.

In 1947 he was appointed by President Harry Truman to serve as Judge on the Fifth Military Tribunal at Nuernberg, Germany.

He is a member of the Lancaster County, Scottsbluff, Western Nebraska, Nebraska and American Bar Associations.

Judge Carter is past national president of the American Inter-Professional Institute and past referee on the Railway Adjustment Board.

He was a member of the Judicial Council at its first meeting in 1939 and became chairman of the council in 1950. He served in that capacity until his retirement last year.

Principal speaker at the noon meeting was Judge John E. Newton of the Nebraska Supreme Court. Judge Newton praised Judge Carter's years of service to his fellow man.

Meyerson Plans A Meeting With Housing Groups

Interim Student Affairs Dean Ely Meyerson Thursday said he expected to meet early next week with representatives of a coalition of low-income housing groups unhappy with student housing at the University of Nebraska.

The groups have contended that the Lincoln campuses have not provided adequate housing for students, who have then rented apartments and housing units that would otherwise be available for low-income tenants.

Meyerson said he and Bea Richmond, a spokesman for the housing groups, are "in agreement a meeting is sound."

He said the housing groups and his office were trying Thursday to schedule a meeting convenient to all parties.

Mayor Plans Meeting On Release Of Report

In the latest development concerning the release of the Human Rights Commission investigation into alleged police brutality, Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said Thursday that he will meet with the City Council Friday morning to consider the immediate release of the report.

Mayor Schwartzkopf noted that he has been advised by City Attorney Dick Wood that release of the report would not be affected by current court action against the subject of the report, Cleveland Randolph.

In a letter to the Mayor, Wood concluded that the city would be "ill advised" to not release the report in view of charges by some Lincolinites that the city government is "whitewashing" the report.

However, Mayor Schwartzkopf pointed out that he has not received any letters or visits from people who have charged that the report is being suppressed. He added that some of the individuals involved were "just seeking publicity."

At a meeting between the Council and mayor last week Schwartzkopf said that Wood had recommended the report not be made public until a decision is handed down in the Randolph case.

The group wanted to hold another session to finish reviewing the report and its recommendations before making it public.

However, the mayor said Thursday he would release the report "on my own timetable."

Randolph's arrest and his subsequent allegations that he was beaten by police officers when he was taken into custody was the cause of the detailed study made by the Human Rights Commission. Randolph's municipal court trial on resisting arrest charges was held Jan. 4th and 5th.

LTS Favors Stuewig & Associates Proposal

The Lincoln Transportation System (LTS) Board Thursday reviewed several public relations firms' proposals for promoting the city's bus system and recommended that Stuewig & Associates, Inc., be chosen for the job.

LTS chairman Robert Campbell said that a public relations campaign is needed to increase ridership on the buses and to "sell" the city's new bus fleet, which will be arriving in April.

Initial expenditure for one year of service was set at $7,500, with $5,000 going for the firm's management services and the remaining $2,500 going for actual media and production expenses.

Board member Mrs. Jan Gauger reported that letters were mailed to all the city's public relations firms to determine which ones would be interested in promoting LTS. Six firms sent back proposals.

The final decision on which firm will be chosen is up to LTS manager Jerald Rae and city Finance Director Jim Mallon.

In other action the Board agreed to support the concept of federal subsidization of a city-owned bus service. A telegram will be sent to Rep. Charles Thone to advise him of the Board's support.

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf told the Board that he had talked to Rep. Thone on his recent trip to Washington, D.C., at which time Thone said Congress is considering enacting legislation subsidizing municipally-owned bus systems. Mayor Schwartzkopf said he would also send a telegram to Thone.

Warehouse Fire Suit Filed

Omaha (P) — A $3 million suit was filed in Douglas County District Court Thursday as the result of a warehouse fire in Norfolk four years ago.

The General Wholesale Cooperative Co., owner of the warehouse, asked for the award from the Central Telephone and Utilities Corp., a Kansas Concern, and Northern Propane Gas Co. of Omaha.

The suit alleges that a gas leakage in a combined heating and air conditioning unit caused the Jan. 29, 1968, fire which destroyed the warehouse and its contents.

The utilities corporation sold the unit to General Wholesale and Northern Propane supplied the gas, the suit said.

The Eagle Star Insurance Co., Ltd., which insured the building and its contents, asked for $2,560,000 in a separate suit.

Development Posing Many Unique Problems To Sandhills Area

The following story, the second in a two-part series, was written as an assignment in the University of Nebraska School of Journalism Depth Reporting class. The author is a senior from Lincoln.

By TIM HERGENRADER
The Nebraska Sandhills, a potential 20,000-square mile desert, remained virtually uninhabited from their formation thousands of years ago until the arrival of the white settlers. Inhabited now, they are still largely undeveloped. And in danger.

The settlers learned that the Sandhills did not adapt to farming because of the loosely-bound sandy soil. They learned that removing the grass cover could result in disaster.

The Sandhills' fragile environment, dependent upon the grass cover, is faced with changes that could alter or even destroy it.

Development Begun
Because of new farming methods and the lack of better lands, agricultural development of the area has begun.

Experts think the Sandhills' economic potential is tremendous. Most of them agree irrigation of grains and native grasses will increase in the area as a supplement to cattle-raising operations.

But irrigation and agricultural development, which means the application of fertilizers, herbicides and pesticides, could present dangers to this unique area.

"It is dangerous without knowing the full implications," according to Gilbert L. Adrian, the Hastings College Biology department.

Adrian thinks that with irrigation some natural grasses might be lost. There is a possibility that with irrigation "a change from warm to cool season grasses might occur," he says.

Ideal Cattle Grazing
Warm season grasses reach their peak during the warm months. The grasses then provide ideal cattle grazing and also protect the soil from the wind. The Sandhills remain stable because of these natural grasses that cover the soil. Without this cover the Sandhills could become a wasteland.

There appear to be two main concerns with agricultural development of the Sandhills. These are proper management and knowledge of what effects this development will have on the environment.

Irrigation success depends upon "proper management," according to Vincent Dreezen, director, Conservation and Survey Division, University of Nebraska. He adds, "There is nothing to insure proper management."

Irrigation failure, on the other hand, means economic losses for those who fail and irreparable damage to the area.

"We don't know how to irrigate in the Sandhills," Dreezen claims. "Irrigation is new, but honestly, Nebraska is doing as efficient a job as anyone."

"Large Scale Problems"
He adds, "Large scale problems come with large irrigation projects." What are the problems?

One problem facing the O'Neill area on the eastern edge of the Sandhills is a lack of water. Since irrigation began in earnest in Holt County, the water table has dropped as much as 20 feet, according to the Nebraska Soil and Water Commission's "Framework Study." Some wells in the area during peak pumping times pump air, not water.

Dewey W. Teel, Holt County extension agent, points out that artesian wells go dry during the irrigating season. The Chambers public well has gone dry at times, he adds.

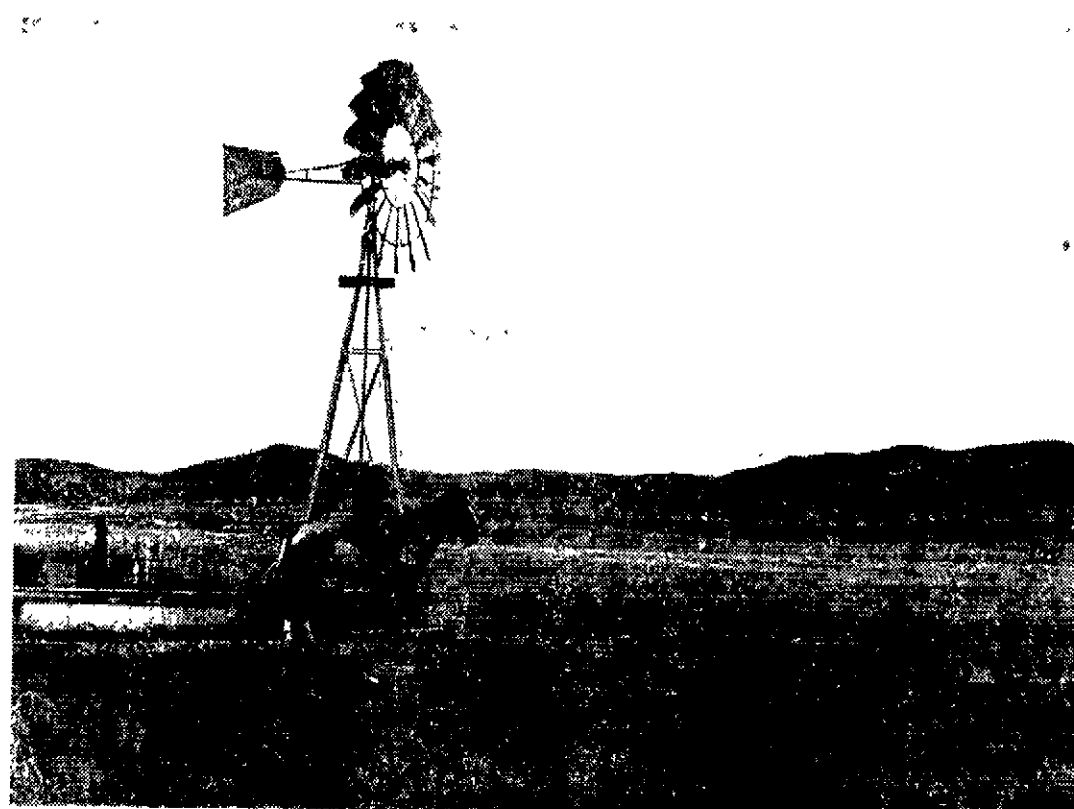

Groundwater in Holt County is being used faster than nature can recharge the supply. The same thing is happening in the Alliance area, the Lavaca Flats Unit and Mirage Flats Area in the western part of the state, according to the Framework Study.

J. B. Grady, vice president of the O'Neill National Bank thinks a canal will be necessary to insure continued development in the O'Neill area.

Experts Cannot Agree
The canal he refers to is a proposed canal from the Norden Reservoir on the Niobrara River west of O'Neill. This proposed reservoir has met with resistance from environmental groups. Experts cannot agree on the ramifications of placing a large reservoir in the Sandhills.

Underlying the Sandhills are aquifers of sands, sandstones and gravels. Rainwater quickly seeps down through the loose sands and is stored in these water-holding formations. It is estimated that there are 1,875,000,000 acre-feet of water in storage in Nebraska, the majority of which is stored in the Sandhills.

Many Nebraskans think the state has an unlimited water supply. According to the Framework Study, however,

FAMED SANDHILLS... may be facing dangerous changes.

"Contrary to wishful thinking, Nebraska's natural resources (water) are limited in amount compared to potential needs."

While the heart of the Sandhills remains relatively undeveloped, the potential for development is there. According to Dr. Leslie F. Sheffield, coordinator of the Irrigation Development Program for the University of Nebraska, "The potential is tremendous."

Potential problems also are tremendous if precautions aren't taken—and they haven't been taken, so far, according to Gerald Svoboda, head of Watershed Planning, Soil and Water Commission. He says there are laws on water usage but "there are no teeth in the laws."

Serious Problems
Lowering the water table in the Sandhills could not only mean building more reservoirs to supplement groundwater supplies, it could dry up some Sandhills lakes—presenting serious problems for the wildlife that depend on these lakes.

Dotting the Sandhills are lakes with a combined area of about 65,800 surface acres. The biggest is about 2,300 acres.

Some of the lakes are fed by rainfall and run-off from the surrounding area. Others represent the top of the water table. In the eastern Sandhills, the lakes are mostly fresh water. To the west, the lakes become progressively more alkaline.

These alkaline lakes have sealed bottoms that prevent groundwater from penetrating the lakes and vice versa. During the summer many of these lakes are almost dry.

The fresh water lakes support fish and waterfowl. The more alkaline lakes do not in addition to the fresh water lakes, waterfowl abound on wet-meadows. These meadows are areas that are perennially wet and are also evidence of the water table.

Concentrated irrigation projects could lower the water table, eliminating the wet-meadows, lowering some of the larger fresh water levels and eliminating some of the smaller fresh water lakes.

Potential Danger
Agricultural run-off, presents another potential danger to the lakes. Because this run-off is usually rich in organic materials, eutrophication is speeded up. Eutrophication is a natural process whereby the nutrient content of a body of water is enriched. It is also irreversible.

Plants and algae, due to the increased organic materials being introduced into the water from the run-off, thrive and eventually can fill the lake, depriving fish and other favorable inhabitants of the lake of oxygen.

According to the Framework Study, fertilizers, herbicides and pesticides used without discretion present the potential of polluting the underground and surface water supplies.

The Sandhills are particularly susceptible to groundwater pollution because of the nature of the soil. Water, carrying the pollutants, finds its way rapidly into the underground supply.

Many people think there will be an increase in cattle-feeding operations in the Sandhills. Feedlots constitute a potential water pollution problem when placed near a watercourse (river or stream). Feedlot run-off carries large amounts of oxygen-demanding material into these watercourses. With large amounts of these materials being fed into a watercourse, entire fish populations can be lost.

Population Increasing
Another source of pollution is human wastes. The Sandhills traditionally have had a low population density. The study, however, predicts that the population will continue to increase. The amount of increase will depend upon development of the area. The O'Neill area's 18% increase in the last census indicates how rapidly the population grows when there is agricultural development.

The Sandhills are faced with potentially serious pollution problems from agriculture, livestock feeding operations and an increasing population. No one knows the extent of future agricultural development of the Sandhills, but this development is the key to everything. With this development problems begin to mount.

Dreezen "would like to see some of the Sandhills set aside as national parks." The Framework Study concurs—some areas are best served by leaving them as they are.

The dangers are there—elimination of the grass cover, pollution of the rivers and lakes and underground water supplies, misuse of these water supplies, the loss of some lakes and, in general, destruction of a natural wildlife habitat.

If control technology is not developed, good management practices not followed and an ecological awareness not adopted, the Sandhills as they are—rolling hills of lush grasses alive with a myriad of creatures—will be nothing more than a desert.

NRD Rules Not Expected To Change Role Of Soil Conservation Service

By DOMINICK COSTELLO

Farm Editor

The role of the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) in Nebraska is not expected to change very much under the new Natural Resource Districts, NRD, according to Tim Myers, state conservat-

Myers warned district conservationists that there might be some transition problems from the local districts. "We want to make the transition as smooth as possible and want to avoid a lag in conservation efforts during the uncover period," he said.

Myers believes that the SCS will have to take over existing projects, including educational tours. Soil conservation Week and the educational programs carried with school children.

"Drop In Interest"

The farmer who wants a pond constructed or a race or waterway won't see much difference under NRD but unless the educational program is continued there may be a drop in interest in conservation projects," Myers warned.

The SCS services are being pointed to the breaking point in additional demands without additional personnel or present programs. "We need money for extra people and in the freeze came along a lid on hiring and we can't even promote anyone, much less hire additional people," Myers said.

Myers said the extra workload stemmed in part from the state program to end livestock pollution of water by Dec. 31, 1972, and from expanded Rural Environmental Protective Assistance Program (REAP) funds just released by President Nixon.

Works Very Well

"The NRD's could help solve the personnel problem if they would hire some technicians to work with us on these programs. Some soil districts have done this to speed up the soil mapping programs in the state. This has worked very well," Myers said.

An SCS official from Washington, D.C., praised Nebraska as a state that is solving its environmental problems.

Verne Bolhurst, from the District Management Division of the SCS office in Washington said, "Nebraska is well ahead of the nation in pollution control. The principle used in your livestock pollution law is one that other states will eventually use in establishing their pollution laws."

"The principal of the creator of a pollutant solving the problem he creates is a good one and it will eventually be applied to city effluents as well as to agricultural problems," he predicted.

Under the Nebraska law, the effluent from a feedlot must be adequately treated before it leaves the land of the feedlot owner.

Bolhurst predicted that the demands on Nebraska for agricultural production would double. "With more land going into recreation, housing, roads and other uses, you will become increasingly important as a food producing area," he said.

"Stopping the movement of sediment in water is the most important project conservationists have because the dirt fills our streams, ruins our lakes and more important because it carries along with it chemicals and fertilizers that create pollution problems."

"Keep that sediment, the dirt, where it is and you solve most pollution problems related to agriculture because the chemicals and fertilizers attach themselves to the soil particles... keep the soil where it is and the chemicals stay there, too," he said.

Bolhurst said "a major source of sediment outside of agriculture is that period of time between alfalfa and houses in a developing area. Developers need to be conscious of this problem," he said.

Fund Cutoff Appears Likely At Newman Grove Hospital Across Nebraska

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Newman Grove Sen. Thomas Kennedy's impassioned plea to a federal official to keep medicare funds coming into his town's small hospital fell on deaf ears Thursday.

However, Kennedy remained undaunted and indicated he will take his battle with HEW to the Congress.

Richard Arnett, HEW regional administrator in Kansas City, told Kennedy "the decision has been made that the Newman Grove hospital does not meet standards for medicare."

Decision Expected
Although Arnett said he sympathized with the 10-bed hospital's plight, he said he expects a decision on Feb. 1 from HEW headquarters in Baltimore that the hospital does not come under a federal law enacted 1 year ago which relaxed requirements for small hospitals regarding the medicare funds.

Such a fund drain, Kennedy said, would force the hospital to close its doors since the majority of its patients are medicare recipients. Exactly how much the funds account for, Kennedy, who is also chairman of the hospital's board of directors, could not say.

"There is no doubt in my mind that there will be a fund cut-off, but we're prepared to appeal an adverse decision," he said.

Alternate Plan
Kennedy also disclosed an alternative route he will pursue to save the Newman Grove Hospital.

He told reporters after a public confrontation with Arnett in the governor's hearing room that a hearing has been tentatively scheduled before the Senate Finance Committee on Feb. 23 in Washington.

The 57-year-old senator hopes such a meeting (which Sen. Carl T. Curtis will attend) will either result in an extension of the medicare provision for small hospitals to his facility or else in new legislation.

Ready For Change
"If we have to change the law, then we're prepared to do it," he stated.

Gov. J. James Exon, who had previously expressed his support for the hospital's cause, told Arnett that he felt the problem was not with the law but with HEW.

"It seems we are in a typical situation where federal officials continue to look for reasons to close down the hospitals rather than for reasons to keep them open," Exon said.

Referring to some 7 inspections of the facility made by federal officials since October, Exon commented: "Maybe we haven't been harrassed, but the facts make me think we have been. The problem is not with the law but your interpretation of it—that's the crux of the difference."

4 Senators Attend

Four other state senators stepped out of the Legislature's session to attend the meeting. Gen. Sen. Herb Nore told Arnett, "If two people in my town had to go 16 miles to another hospital instead of our own when they had a heart attack they wouldn't be alive today."

"What are we going to do—just let these people die?"

The problem at Newman Grove originally arose because the hospital could not afford to have a registered nurse on duty 24 hours a day. Federal officials threatened a fund shut-off unless the situation was rectified.

Burleson Amendment
Through Sens. Curtis and Hruska, Kennedy was able to have the requirements amended so that rural hospitals could continue to be funded without a full-time RN. This measure became known as the Burleson Amendment.

Since then HEW officials have said the Newman Grove facility does not come under the revision because a hospital is in a community 16 miles away. The amendment applies, Arnett said, only if there is no hospital in the vicinity.

The federal officials also maintain that the two full-time registered nurses the hospital has hired in the meantime are not qualified—one is 87 years old.

Alternatives Offered For Grain Reserve Bill

Two alternatives were offered Thursday to the feed grains reserve bill that would have established a stockpile of feed grains and wheat raised the loan rates for farm stored grains by 25% under the federal farm programs.

The proposal was killed in a 10 to 4 vote in the Senate Agriculture Committee Wednesday.

Senator Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn. has proposed a new measure which would tighten acreage controls and increase cotton allotments in an effort to placate southern senators who opposed the bill.

Nebraska's Senator Carl Curtis wrote to Secretary of Agriculture Earl Butz suggesting that Butz use his authority to raise the price of wheat and feed grains by 10 to 15 cents a bushel.

Under the Curtis plan, a farmer who grew 100 acres of corn in 1971 would set aside an additional 10% of his crop land and be paid $1.05 per bushel for his yield on the 10 acres not planted, but would receive $1.15 to $1.20 a bushel for the corn grown on the 90 acres.

Curtis told Butz, "This plan should avoid the additional plantings which you fear would result if loan rates were increased by 25%."

Reactions from Nebraskan's varied.

"I think Senator Curtis should be commended for his efforts to improve income," said Elton Berck, president of the Nebraska Farmers Union.

Roland Nelson of Meade, president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau said "The immediate result of the increase in price supports offered by the defeated bill would have been to strengthen present market prices. The effect in years to come would certainly mean lower farm prices, lower income and greatly restricted production. I regard the defeat of this bill as a victory for the farmers in the state and the nation," he said.

Former Governor Norbert Tiemann, now president of the Coalition for Rural America said, "Either the Curtis or the Humphrey proposal is acceptable if it raises farm income. It was the southerners who defeated the bill. Our livestock people ought to consider that southern producers are increasing their livestock production at the expense of our grain producers. This is eventually going to hurt the livestock producers here."

"It is about time Nixon came up with one of those surprises of his for farmers in an evening TV speech. Someone had better come up with something and they better do it soon," he said.

Chamber OKs Publicity Change

In order to provide a "more effective" means of publicizing chamber events and promoting Lincoln's image, the Lincoln Chamber of Commerce board of directors approved a reorganization of the chamber's publicity arm.

An 11-member Public Relations Council will replace the former Publicity and Public Relations Committee and it will be assisted by a 50-member task force, which will provide the manpower for accomplishing various public relations projects.

Three public relations divisions will be set up — one to coordinate all efforts the chamber might undertake to promote the Capital City at all levels; an internal public relations division that will concern itself with the chamber membership and services offered those members and a third division devoted to all activities related to the chamber's community image.

Reorganization Chairman Paul Jensen asked for the change in order to provide for a "broader base in the membership to get things done."

A "more effective" means of publicizing chamber events will result, he said.

The reorganization was approved unanimously by the chamber board.

Directors also approved an operational budget of $304,432 for 1972. The budget for last year was $273,514. The increase will be offset by an increase in dues approved last December.

Other chamber business: The Junior Chamber announced that a two-month drive for 100 new members will be undertaken immediately, with special emphasis on recruiting in the ranks of blue collar workers, teachers and minority groups.

—An orientation for current chamber board members will be held on Feb. 7 at 4 p.m. in the board room of the First National Bank and Trust Co.

Development Posing Many Unique Problems To Sandhills Area

The following story, the second in a two-part series, was written as an assignment in the University of Nebraska School of Journalism Depth Reporting class. The author is a senior from Lincoln.

By TIM HERGENRADER

The Nebraska Sandhills, a potential 20,000-square mile desert, remained virtually uninhabited from their formation thousands of years ago until the arrival of the white settlers. Inhabited now, they are still largely undeveloped. And in danger.

The settlers learned that the Sandhills did not adapt to farming because of the loosely-bound sandy soil. They learned that removing the grass cover could result in disaster.

The Sandhills' fragile environment, dependent upon the grass cover, is faced with changes that could alter or even destroy it.

Development Begun

Because of new farming methods and the lack of better lands, agricultural development of the area has begun.

Experts think the Sandhills' economic potential is tremendous. Most of them agree irrigation of grains and native grasses will increase in the area as a supplement to cattle-feeding operations.

But irrigation and agricultural development, which means the application of fertilizers, herbicides and pesticides, could present dangers to this unique area.

"It is dangerous without knowing the full implications," according to Gilbert L. Adrian of the Hastings College Biology Department.

Adrian thinks that with irrigation some natural grasses might be lost. There is a possibility that with irrigation "a change from warm to cool season grasses might occur," he says.

Ideal Cattle Grazing

Warm season grasses reach their peak during the warm months. The grasses then provide ideal cattle grazing and also protect the soil from the wind. The Sandhills remain stable because of these natural grasses that cover the soil. Without this cover the Sandhills could become a wasteland.

There appear to be two main concerns with agricultural development of the Sandhills. These are proper management and knowledge of what effects this development will have on the environment.

Irrigation success depends upon "proper management," according to Vincent Dreezen, director, Conservation and Survey Division, University of Nebraska. He adds, "There is nothing to insure proper management."

Irrigation failure, on the other hand, means economic losses for those who fail and irreparable damage to the area.

"We don't know how to irrigate in the Sandhills," Dreezen claims. "Irrigation is new, but honestly, Nebraska is doing as efficient a job as anyone."

"Large Scale Problems"

He adds, "Large scale problems come with large irrigation projects." What are the problems?

One problem facing the O'Neill area on the eastern edge of the Sandhills is a lack of water. Since irrigation began in earnest in Holt County, the water table has dropped as much as 20 feet, according to the Nebraska Soil and Water Commission's "Framework Study." Some wells in the area during peak pumping times pump air, not water.

Dewey W. Teel, Holt County extension agent, points out that artesian wells go dry during the irrigating season. The Chambers public well has gone dry at times, he adds.

Groundwater in Holt County is being used faster than nature can recharge the supply. The same thing is happening in the Alliance area, the Lavaca Flats Unit and Mirage Flats Area in the western part of the state, according to the Framework Study.

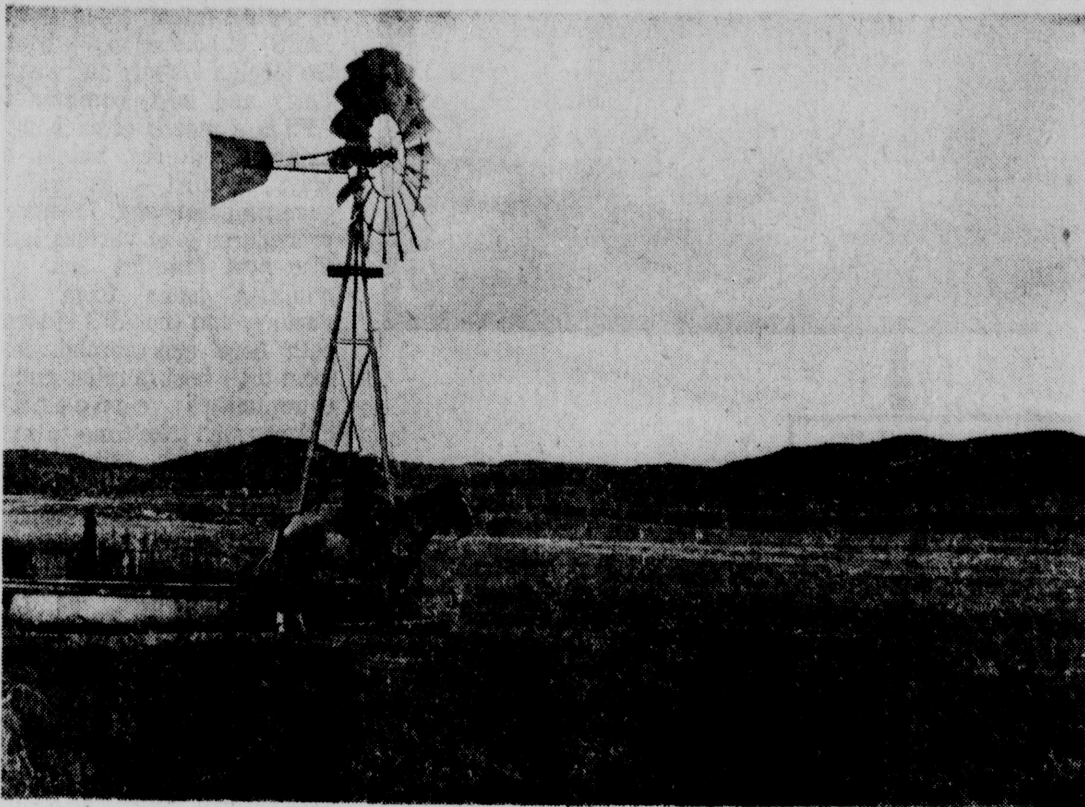

J. B. Grady, vice president of the O'Neill National Bank thinks a canal will be necessary to insure continued development in the O'Neill area.

Experts Cannot Agree

The canal he refers to is a proposed canal from the Norden Reservoir on the Niobrara River west of O'Neill. This proposed reservoir has met with resistance from environmental groups. Experts cannot agree on the ramifications of placing a large reservoir in the Sandhills.

Underlying the Sandhills are aquifers of sands, sandstones and gravels. Rainwater quickly seeps down through the loose sands and is stored in these water-holding formations. It is estimated that there are 1,875,000,000 acre-feet of water in storage in Nebraska, the majority of which is stored in the Sandhills.

Many Nebraskans think the state has an unlimited water supply. According to the Framework Study, however,

FAMED SANDHILLS ... may be facing dangerous changes.

"Contrary to wishful thinking, Nebraska's natural resources (water) are limited in amount compared to potential needs."

While the heart of the Sandhills remains relatively undeveloped, the potential for development is there. According to Dr. Leslie F. Sheffield, coordinator of the Irrigation Development Program for the University of Nebraska, "The potential is tremendous."

Potential problems also are tremendous if precautions aren't taken—and they haven't been taken, for that, according to Gerald Svoboda, head of Watershed Planning, Soil and Water Commission. He says there are laws on water usage but "there are no teeth in the laws."

Serious Problems

Lowering the water table in the Sandhills could not only mean building more reservoirs to supplement groundwater supplies, it could dry up some Sandhills lakes—presenting serious problems for the wildlife that depend on these lakes.

Dotting the Sandhills are lakes with a combined area of about 65,800 surface acres. The biggest is about 2,300 acres.

Some of the lakes are fed by rainfall and run-off from the surrounding area. Others represent the top of the water table. In the eastern Sandhills, the lakes are mostly fresh water. To the west, the lakes become progressively more alkaline.

These alkaline lakes have sealed bottoms that prevent groundwater from penetrating the lakes and vice versa. During the summer many of these lakes are almost dry.

The fresh water lakes support fish and waterfowl. The more alkaline lakes do not. In addition to the fresh water lakes, waterfowl abound on wet-meadows. These meadows are areas that are perennially wet and are also evidence of the water table.

Concentrated irrigation projects could lower the water table, eliminating the wet-meadows, lowering some of the larger fresh water levels and eliminating some of the smaller fresh water lakes.

Potential Danger

Agricultural run-off, presents another potential danger to the lakes. Because this run-off is usually rich in organic materials, eutrophication is speeded up. Eutrophication is a natural process whereby the nutrient content of a body of water is enriched. It is also irreversible.

Plants and algae, due to the increased organic materials being introduced into the water from the run-off, thrive and eventually can fill the lake, depriving fish and other favorable inhabitants of the lake of oxygen.

According to the Framework Study, fertilizers, herbicides and pesticides used without discretion present the potential of polluting the underground and surface water supplies.

The Sandhills are particularly susceptible to groundwater pollution because of the nature of the soil. Water, carrying the pollutants, finds its way rapidly into the underground supply.

Many people think there will be an increase in cattle-feeding operations in the Sandhills. Feedlots constitute a potential water pollution problem when placed near a watercourse (river or stream). Feedlot run-off carries large amounts of oxygen-demanding material into these watercourses. With large amounts of these materials being fed into a watercourse, entire fish populations can be lost.

Population Increasing

Another source of pollution is human wastes. The Sandhills traditionally have had a low population density. The study, however, predicts that the population will continue to increase. The amount of increase will depend upon development of the area. The O'Neill area's 18% increase in the last census indicates how rapidly the population grows when there is agricultural development.

The Sandhills are faced with potentially serious pollution problems from agriculture, livestock feeding operations and an increasing population. No one knows the extent of future agricultural development of the Sandhills, but this development is the key to everything. With this development problems begin to mount.

Dreezen "would like to see some of the Sandhills set aside as national parks." The Framework Study concurs — some areas are best served by leaving them as they are.

The dangers are there — elimination of the grass cover, pollution of the rivers and lakes and underground water supplies, misuse of these water supplies, the loss of some lakes and, in general, destruction of a natural wildlife habitat.

If control technology is not developed, good management practices not followed and an ecological awareness not adopted, the Sandhills as they are — rolling hills of lush grasses alive with a myriad of creatures — will be nothing more than a desert.

WOMEN JOIN NATIONAL GUARD

The Nebraska Air National Guard Thursday became the first National Guard unit in the nation to enlist three women at the same time. Sworn in by Gov. J. James Exon were Leslie Doughty, 20, of Livingston, Mont.; Chris Sherman, 24, of Lincoln and Jody Urbauer, 23, of Davenport, from left. The women the first females enlisted into the Nebraska Guard, will attend six weeks of basic training at Lackland Air Force Base, San Antonio, Tex., and then go to Biloxi, Miss., for an 11 week school at Keesler Air Force Base. (Star Photo.)

NRD Rules Not Expected To Change Role Of Soil Conservation Service

By DOMINICK COSTELLO
Farm Editor

The role of the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) in Nebraska is not expected to change very much under the new Natural Resource Districts, NRD, according to Keith Myers, state conservationist.

Myers warned district conservationists that there might be some transition problems when the NRD districts take over from the local districts. "We want to make the transition as smooth as possible and we want to avoid a lag in conservation efforts during the changeover period," he said.

Myers believes that the NRD's will have to take over existing projects, including promotional tours, Soil Stewardship Week and the educational programs carried out with school children.

"Drop In Interest"

"The farmer who wants a farm pond constructed or a terrace or waterway won't notice much difference under the NRD but unless the educational program is continued there may be a drop in interest in conservation projects," Myers warned.

The SCS services are being strained to the breaking point with additional demands without additional personnel under present programs. "We had money for extra people and then the freeze came along with a lid on hiring and we can't even promote anyone, much less hire additional people," Myers said.

Myers said the extra workload stemmed in part from the state program to end livestock pollution of water by Dec. 31, 1972, and from expanded Rural Environmental Protective Assistance Program (REAP) funds just released by President Nixon.

Works Very Well

"The NRD's could help solve the personnel problem if they would hire some technicians to work with us on these programs. Some soil districts have done this to speed up the soil mapping programs in the state. This has worked very well," Myers said.

An SCS official from Washington, D.C., praised Nebraska as a state that is solving its environmental problems.

Verne Bolhurst, from the District Management Division of the SCS office in Washington said, "Nebraska is well ahead of the nation in pollution control. The principle used in your livestock pollution law is one that other states will eventually use in establishing their pollution laws."

"The principal of the creator of a pollutant solving the problem he creates is a good one and it will eventually be applied to city effluents as well as to agricultural problems," he predicted.

Under the Nebraska law, the effluent from a feedlot must be adequately treated before it leaves the land of the feedlot owner.

Bolhurst predicted that the demands on Nebraska for agricultural production would double. "With more land going into recreation, housing, roads and other uses, you will become increasingly important as a food producing area," he said.

"Stopping the movement of sediment in water is the most important project conservationists have because the dirt fills our streams, ruins our lakes and more important because it carries along with it chemicals and fertilizers that create pollution problems."

"Keep that sediment, the dirt, where it is and you solve most pollution problems related to agriculture because the chemicals and fertilizers attach themselves to the soil particles ... keep the soil where it is and the chemicals stay there, too," he said.

Bolhurst said "a major source of sediment outside of agriculture is that period of time between alfalfa and houses in a developing area. Developers need to be conscious of this problem," he said.

Fund Cutoff Appears Likely At Newman Grove Hospital Across Nebraska

By BOB GUENTHER
Star Staff Writer

Newman Grove Sen. Thomas Kennedy's impassioned plea to a federal official to keep medicare funds coming into his town's small hospital fell on deaf ears Thursday.

However, Kennedy remained undaunted and indicated he will take his battle with HEW to the Congress.

Richard Arnett, HEW regional administrator in Kansas City, told Kennedy "the decision has been made that the Newman Grove hospital does not meet standards for medicare."

Decision Expected

Although Arnett said he sympathized with the 10-bed hospital's plight, he said he expects a decision on Feb. 1 from HEW headquarters in Baltimore that the hospital does not come under a federal law enacted 1 year ago which relaxed requirements for small hospitals regarding the medicare funds.

Such a fund drain, Kennedy said, would force the hospital to close its doors since the majority of its patients are medicare recipients. Exactly how much the funds account for, Kennedy, who is also chairman of the hospital's board of directors, could not say.

"There is no doubt in my mind that there will be a fund cut-off, but we're prepared to appeal an adverse decision," he said.

Alternate Plan

Kennedy also disclosed an alternative route he will pursue to save the Newman Grove Hospital.

He told reporters after a public confrontation with Arnett in the governor's hearing room that a hearing has been tentatively scheduled before the Senate Finance Committee on Feb. 23 in Washington.

The 57-year-old senator hopes such a meeting (which Sen. Carl T. Curtis will attend) will either result in an extension of the medicare provision for small hospitals to his facility or else in new legislation.

Ready For Change

"If we have to change the law, then we're prepared to do it," he stated.

Gov. J. James Exon, who had previously expressed his support for the hospital's cause, told Arnett that he felt the problem was not with the law but with HEW.

"It seems we are in a typical situation where federal officials continue to look for reasons to close down the hospitals rather than for reasons to keep them open," Exon said.

Referring to some 7 inspections of the facility made by federal officials since October, Exon commented:

"Maybe we haven't been harrassed, but the facts make me think we have been. The problem is not with the law but your interpretation of it — that's the crux of the difference."

4 Senators Attend

Four other state senators stepped out of the Legislature's session to attend the meeting.

Genoa Sen. Herb Nore told Arnett, "If two people in my town had to go 16 miles to another hospital instead of our own when they had a heart attack they wouldn't be alive today."

"What are we going to do — just let these people die?"

The problem at Newman Grove originally arose because the hospital could not afford to have a registered nurse on duty 24 hours a day. Federal officials threatened a fund shut-off unless the situation was rectified.

Burleson Amendment

Through Sens. Curtis and Hruska, Kennedy was able to have the requirements amended so that rural hospitals could continue to be funded without a full-time RN. This measure became known as the Burleson Amendment.

Since then HEW officials have said the Newman Grove facility does not come under the revision because a hospital is in a community 16 miles away. The amendment applies, Arnett said, only if there is no hospital in the vicinity.

The federal officials also maintain that the two full-time registered nurses the hospital has hired in the meantime are not qualified—one is 87 years old.

Alternatives Offered For Grain Reserve Bill

Two alternatives were offered Thursday to the feed grains reserve bill that would have established a stockpile of feed grains and wheat raised the loan rates for farm stored grains by 25% under the federal farm programs.

The proposal was killed in a 10 to 4 vote in the Senate Agriculture Committee Wednesday.

Senator Hubert Humphrey, D-Minn. has proposed a new measure which would tighten acreage controls and increase cotton allotments in an effort to placate southern senators who opposed the bill.

Nebraska's Senator Carl Curtis wrote to Secretary of Agriculture Earl Buttz suggesting that Buttz use his authority to raise the price of wheat and feed grains by 10 to 15 cents a bushel.

Under the Curtis plan, a farmer who grew 100 acres of corn in 1971 would set aside an additional 10% of his crop land and be paid $1.05 per bushel for his yield on the 10 acres not planted, but would receive $1.15 to $1.20 a bushel for the corn grown on the 90 acres.

Curtis told Buttz, "This plan should avoid the additional plantings which you fear would result if loan rates were increased by 25%."

Reactions from Nebraskan's varied.

"I think Senator Curtis should be commended for his efforts to improve income," said Elton Berek, president of the Nebraska Farmers Union.

Roland Nelson of Meade, president of the Nebraska Farm Bureau said "The immediate result of the increase in price supports offered by the defeated bill would have been to strengthen present market prices. The effect in years to come would certainly mean lower farm prices, lower income and greatly restricted production. I regard the defeat of this bill as a victory for the farmers in the state and the nation," he said.

Former Governor Norbert Tiemann, now president of the Coalition for Rural America said, "Either the Curtis or the Humphrey proposal is acceptable if it raises farm income. It was the southerners who defeated the bill. Our livestock people ought to consider that southern producers are increasing their livestock production at the expense of our grain producers. This is eventually going to hurt the livestock producers here."

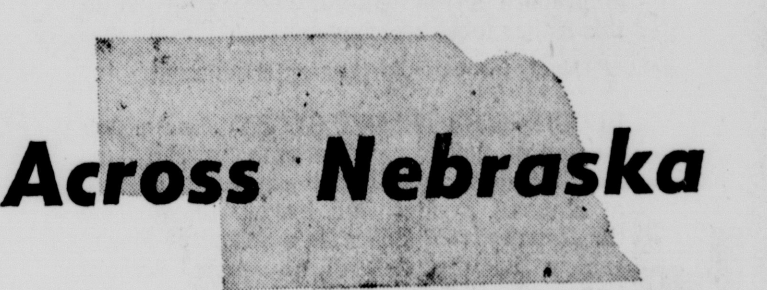

"It is about time Nixon came up with one of those surprises of his for farmers in an evening TV speech. Someone had better come up with something and they better do it soon," he said.

on a tour of the shops

When the weather outside is foreboding, a cozy home makes the nicest retreat. And now that social activities are somewhat limited, it is fun to spend time finding ways to make your home more inviting. Sometimes all it takes is the addition of a new accent piece to add a new flavor.

AT HARDY'S FURNITURE

We found an interesting coffee table that was shaped somewhat like a squatted barrel. Designed of southern hardwood, the barrel spokes supported a round glass top that is slightly tinted.

For those who prefer two small tables in front of the sofa to a large one, there are matching drum-shaped tables styled in the popular chrome and glass. These tables feature an original design of sculptured chrome that resembles a winding tie of ribbon. The round top is clear glass.

Ceramic chess figures that stand 30 inches high will make interesting conversation pieces. They are gaily decorated in hues of cream, pink, yellow and orange.

Elegance is yours with a gold-foiled compote. This piece can be used to serve many purposes, such as a planter or fruit bowl, but it also can be most eye-catching for many other functions. The compote might be accented by a bamboo magazine rack finished in gold.

Serving a three-fold purpose of lamp, table and room divider is a piece designed in brass and walnut. Three brass pole lamps are joined by rectangular flats of walnut that extend up from a rectangular table. The brass and wood design is repeated below the table to a walnut base.

Owls seem to be popular accent pieces these days, and they are available in all shapes, sizes and materials. We saw a ceramic owl sculptured in white that sits about two feet tall. There also was an owl of solid hand wrought brass that is designed to be used as a candle lamp hung from the ceiling.

One of our favorite 'fun' pieces was a fur covered mushroom that stands about two feet high and is 26 inches in circumference. This stuffed accessory can be used as a stool, a seat or merely as an accent for a room. It is available in brown, black or olive green fake fur.

Genuine sheepskin fur is used to cover

a small chrome armchair. Although there is a leather seat under the fur throw, which is attached by straps, all that peek out are the legs and arms of the chair.

Many people are selecting a new way to display their pieces of art by use of an easel stand. We saw a large stand of bamboo that was finished in gold, as well as smaller stands for miniature works.

AT LATSCH'S

For further accessorizing your home, we recommend a leather-covered wine decanter. Those found at Latsch's have warm color combinations. All are glass lined, and they come in several unique shapes and sizes. One outstanding decanter resembled a candle stick was held in a metal candle holder.

Adding leather to leather, we found an attractive leather nest with glass coasters nestled right inside.

Americans have discovered a true fondness for wine — in fact, many have become true connoisseurs. For the wine tasters, we found attractive and unusual wine racks of lucite — either clear or smoked.

Among the wooden bar accessories we found a delicately shaped wood case with a gold toned aperitif container and four dainty glasses.

For the bar, we recommend the owl-shaped pewtertone ice bucket — and also the knight's helmet which is an automatic bar jigger.

Despite the cold, snow days of winter, traveling is just as much in vogue as staying near the hearth in one's own home. Take, for example, the avid skiers who seem to thrive on this sort of weather. For them, the manufacturers have devised a way for them to feel at home away from home — with the portable bars and motel kits.

Most of the portable bars we found at Latsch's were cases made of molded fiberglass and most contained at least two bottles. Some were even outfitted with a variety of bar tools and glasses. And one of the kits with a leather case came complete with its own ice bucket.

The motel kit, also of molded fiberglass, contains a small percolator, coffee cups, spoons, sugar and coffee containers, and a few extras.

We Hear That

From Bremenhaven, Germany, this morning comes word of the arrival of young Miss Tonya Marie Kahler, who, we suspect, will have a special reason for celebrating New Year's Eve during her lifetime. Miss Tonya arrived on Dec. 31, 1971. The baby's parents are E.3 and Mrs. Ray A. Kahler, who plan to be back in the States next October, and her maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. L. Tracy Clement of Lincoln. Mr. and Mrs. Reuben A. Kahler, also of Lincoln are the paternal grandparents.

Abby: number of months not important

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Here is the situation. A man in his middle sixties and a woman in her early sixties have recently married. She was the town's most attractive widow for many years. The man's wife had been dead exactly 7 months to the day he remarried.

I always thought that out of respect to the dear, departed mate it was customary to wait a full year before remarrying. I would appreciate your opinion.

KNOWS BOTH

DEAR KNOWS: How one

treats his mate when he (or she) is living is the only meaningful way in which one can show "respect". And waiting one year (or 10) isn't going to make one bit of difference. Time is precious. And if two people feel they can find happiness together, who am I to count the days since their dear ones have departed? (And who are you?)

DEAR ABBY: A relative of mine, now widowed and in her late forties, keeps asking me to get her a date with a certain attractive eligible bachelor she knows I know.

I am absolutely positive that this man would have no interest whatsoever in this woman, but of course I can't tell HER that.

Don't suggest I have a party and ask him to "escort" her because if I asked him to pick her up and take her home he would consider it a dirty trick.

I suppose I should tell you that this woman is overbearing, overdressed, loud and aggressive, but she thinks she's witty, hip, friendly and the life of the party.

So what can I do when she says, "Just introduce me to him — I'll do the rest." Abby, I just couldn't!

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: You need not ask him to "escort" her, but you could invite them both to an informal gathering at your home. She will then meet him, and if he doesn't ask her out, she'll have had her chance. And you'll have her off your back.

DEAR ABBY: I have looked in every etiquette book I could find, and I can't find the answer to this question: When you invite someone to a party, is it proper for them to ask, "who else will be there?"

I would never think of asking such a question when someone invites me to a party, but I have had it put to me many times. Is it proper?

WANTS TO KNOW

DEAR WANTS: No. When extending an invitation, the thoughtful hostess mentions what kind of party she's having in order to clue the guests in on what to wear, but if she doesn't say who else will be there, it's impolite to ask. (One just goes and takes his chances.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO "THINKING IT OVER IN PALM SPRINGS": Be sure you think it over thoroughly. Money isn't everything. Sometimes it isn't even enough.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TOO EMBARRASSED FOR WORDS" IN SARASOTA, FLA.: Tell your therapist everything. The more he knows about you, the more he can help you. Besides, he has heard everything, and you won't shock him.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Anniversary Party

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Maseman celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary last Saturday, Jan. 22 — but not in Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. Maseman went back 25 years for the festivities, which were planned by their daughters, Mrs. Lloyd Roberts of Fairmont, and their son, Randy, and the celebration took everyone to Wilber and Sokol Auditorium where the wedding dance was held on Jan. 22, 1947 — following the wedding in Hallam.

The evening began with a reception, also at the Sokol Auditorium, at which Mrs. Roberts and her brother, Randy Maseman, were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Engelbart and their family; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Oltman and their family, and Miss Pam Schroeder.

B. Jay Becker

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	1 ♥	Pass
3 ♦	Pass	?	Pass

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠7 ♥J6543 ♦82 ♣KJ964
2. ♠J ♥K87532 ♦K863 ♣5
3. ♠Q63 ♥A974 ♦853 ♣762
4. ♠A94 ♥KQ875 ♦K72 ♣93

1. Four hearts. The value of a hand often changes as the bidding progresses. Thus when you responded a heart in this case, game prospects were rather blank, and in fact there was some question about the advisability of responding at all.

However, once you do respond and partner raises you to three, the outlook changes drastically. Your a n e m i c hearts take on a brand new value when North fills them out by jump-raising the suit. All four suits are now at least moderately under control, and the prospects of making ten, even eleven, tricks are very, very good.

2. Four notrump. This is a case where the number of tricks you can make depends entirely on how many aces partner has, and Blackwood should therefore be invoked. If North responds five hearts, showing two aces, you pass. If he responds five spades, showing three aces, you bid six hearts. If he responds five clubs, which in this sequence shows all four aces, you bid seven hearts.

Partner's point count is not the criterion. Once he guarantees four trumps by jumping to three hearts, the number of aces he has will determine how many tricks can be made.

3. Pass. It must be remembered that a jump raise is not forcing and merely urges you to continue towards game. It permits you to pass in the proper circumstances, and it is clear that, if you are ever going to pass, you should do so with this hand.

Had North been sure of ten tricks, the would presumably have bid four hearts, not three. He is asking whether you have that little bit extra needed for game — and the answer clearly is no. The winning bid, in the long run, is to pass.

4. Three spades. Game is certain, but the possibility of a slam should not be ignored. North may have which is not an unusually powerful hand, but you would surely want to be in a slam with it. The spade cuebid will help to get you there.

Footlights & Canvas

By PHYLLIS WOOLLEN

Good morning:

Snow-filled days such as these are good ones for thinking. It seems we get so caught up in the rapture of our everyday affairs, that little time is devoted to pure invention.

Days like this seem to lead to the past — both our own and days of those before us. We seem, somehow, more sombre today, more serious about what the future may be.

Lincoln has a wonderful past on which to build. The spirit of enthusiasm in the area of the arts can be drawn through the history books. Our thoughts wander to history this week on two counts. Next Friday, Feb. 4, the new community Playhouse will open its doors, and it is difficult to blink at the future without reflecting on the past.

Art history in Lincoln is called to mind with the publication of "The Nebraska Art Association, A History, 1888-1971." Kudos to author Fred Wells who is a great part of that art history.

Speaking of art, we understand that the Lincoln Artists' Guild will have an exhibit of selected works in the new Playhouse for the opening. The Guild has also donated monies to help promote the arts in the edifice.

Many exciting programs are planned for the next few weeks. There is broad incentive to prepare a full cultural calendar—even in this rather mean weather.

Now, for your further entertainment:

PUCCHINI'S CROWNING GLORY . . . a production of the opera "Madame Butterfly" on Feb. 2 through 5, will be presented in English at Kimball Recital Hall by top talent from the University of Nebraska's School of Music. Under the direction of professor Richard Grace, the tragic Japanese opera offers an evening of beautiful melodies. A charming stage setting is the work of skillful designer Dean Tschetter. There will be a double cast, and tickets are available through the School of Music. The curtain will rise at 8 o'clock.

A REVIVAL OF BROADWAY . . . "The Boyfriend" will be the first production at the new Lincoln Community Playhouse beginning Saturday evening, Feb. 5. This musical will bring back the days of the '20's—the Charleston and the flapper. John Wilson is director, and has been assisted by Beverly Miller as music director and Eldene Pershing as choreographer. Other performances are scheduled for Feb. 6, 11, 12, 13, 18, 19, 20, 24, 25, 26, and 27. The new Playhouse is located at 2500 South 56th St.

INTERNATIONAL EXHIBIT . . . Etchings and serigraphs by Italian artist, Ave Fornari, are currently on exhibit at the Sheldon Art Gallery through Jan. 31. Miss Fornari's works join those of 11 University of Nebraska art department faculty members whose works are shown in the Biennial Faculty Exhibition. On Feb. 1, Ed Handleman, an Omahan living in San Francisco, will display his work at Sheldon. Mr. Handleman will show quill work boxes filled with genre scenes of home life and sporting events.

CUBIST AND FUTURIST ARTISTS . . . an unusual print collection will be shown at Elder Gallery through Feb. 6 on the Nebraska Wesleyan University campus. The exhibit comes from the George Binet Gallery, and includes works by Braque, Dufy, Leger, Picasso, Villon, Boccioni and Severini. At Elder Gallery on Sunday, Jan. 30, there will be a presentation by the Elder Gallery Chamber Ensemble. The concert will begin at 3 o'clock, and will feature string, vocal and duo-piano selections.

SIX WIVES . . . A six-part television serial on the six wives of Henry the VIII is winding up on ETV, Channel 12. Episode five, "Catherine Howard" will be shown on Sunday, Jan. 30 at 8 o'clock, and episode six, "Catherine Parr" will be shown on Sunday, Feb. 6 at the same time. On Tuesday, Feb. 1, 25-year old classical pianist Lorin Hollander, one of America's finest concert artists, is featured on ETV on "Up Against The Wall" at 7:30 p.m. Hollander raps with 23 students from Philadelphia's Edison High, a hard-core ghetto school. They discuss creativity and music in a revealing session.

CURTAIN CALL . . . LINCOLN FRIENDS OF CHAMBER MUSIC . . . will present the Lincoln Chamber Players this evening in concert at the Sheldon Gallery Auditorium at 8 p.m.

MUD SLIM SLIDE PLAYERS . . . wind up the season with "Greatest Hits"—favorite melodramas of the season. The shows will be presented on Fridays and Saturdays through Feb. 19 at the Gas Light.

CENGAS EXHIBIT . . . paintings by Lincoln Artist Guild members Lenore Biggs and Emma Baegl will be on exhibit through Feb. 1.

Meeting

The state board of the Nebraska Dental Assistants Association will meet at the Bethany Medical Center, 65th and Holdrege Sts., on Saturday morning, Jan. 30.

The 11 o'clock event will include a pot luck luncheon and a discussion of plans for the state convention which will be held in Omaha in April.

AFS Is An Education

By LINDA OLIG

One most important aspects of the American Field Service (AFS) is education — both to the foreign visitors and to their hosts and host communities. AFS is a means of exchanging ideas on cultures, habits, and ways of life — as well as governmental and lawmaking procedures — of various lands. The host families and communities learn from their visitors, and the AFS students, both here and abroad, learn from their host families and the community's concerned citizens who take time to make their guests' stay more rewarding.

The eight AFS students residing in the Lincoln area have quite an educational itinerary planned for them during the next few months, according to Mrs. Audun Ravn, activities chairman for the AFS Central Committee.

The whirlwind of activity began on Wednesday, Jan. 26, when the AFS students at high schools in the Lincoln area were treated to a tour of the State Capitol — including a visit to the State Supreme Court; a meeting with Lt. Gov. Frank Marsh; an explanation of Unicameral procedures by Mrs. Richard Marvel — and a luncheon with Gov. J. James Exon and Mrs. Exon at the Executive Mansion.

Accompanying the AFSers on their Capitol tour and visit to the Mansion were Mrs. Ravn and Mrs. Albin Anderson.

On Wednesday, Feb. 2, the eight students will be treated to the University of Nebraska production of "Madama Butterfly" at Kimball Recital Hall which will be preceded by a dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ravn and a discussion of the opera by Dr. Larry Lust, professor of music at the university.

And then on Saturday, May 27, the group will be guests of honor at a picnic to be held at South Bend.

Pictured in the Unicameral chamber on Wednesday morning are, from front to back, AFS students Miss Chanjar (Jad) Nakaret of Thailand, who is a student at East High School and is residing at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Richard Bradley; Miss Asta Birkeland of Norway, who attends Lincoln High and is the guest of Dr.

and Mrs. Henry Holtzclaw; Johan Van den Eynde of Belgium, a Southeast High student residing at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Umberger; Jurgen Doring of Germany, a LHS student living with Mr. and Mrs. Armin Kumm; Miss Yasuko Okinaga of Japan, Southeast student residing with the J. Max Hardings; Rafael Ramirez of Guatemala, a Northeast High student who resides with Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Schmitz; Michael Stanic of Germany, a student at East who is making his temporary home with Mr. and Mrs. George Day; and Morten Ljosland of Norway, a student at Waverly High School and the houseguest of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Wieggers. Mrs. Richard Marvel, at far right, is explaining some of the bills being presented to the Legislature.

Weekend Square Dances Scheduled

The icy winds and bitter cold of the days and nights lead one to believe that this is foot-stomping weather—and what better way to warm one's body and soul than spending a winter evening square dancing with one's friends?

The Lincoln Round and Square Dance Council and its member clubs had just that in mind when four square dances were scheduled for this weekend.

On Friday evening, Jan. 28, the members of the Chix and Chasers group will be rushing from their warm cars into the warmer clime of Recreation Center No. 1, at 1225 F St. The calling will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

Precisely one-half hour before the Chix and Chasers begin their promenading, St. Paul United Methodist Church will be the destination of many petticoated gals and Western shirted guys when the Swing 'Em In Gingham group gathers for a dance which will begin at 8 o'clock.

The outfits and form of dancing will be much the same on Saturday evening, Jan. 29, but the groups will be composed of different personalities, when two more clubs meet at their appointed places for an evening of frivolity.

The Unitarian Church at 6300 A St. will be the site of a dance that evening. Gathering there will be the members of the Jay Makers Club. The appointed hour for the do-se-doing has been established as 8:30 o'clock.

Crossing trails at the Easterday Center, 61st and Adams Sts., on the same evening will be the group which is appropriately dubbed the Cross Trailers. The calling and merry making will begin at 9 o'clock and extend into the wee hours.

Square Dance Festival

The 12th annual Council Bluffs Square Dance Festival will be held on Saturday evening, March 18, at the Lewis Central School in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Calling the promenades and do-se-dos for the evening will be Keith Thomsen of Portsmouth, Iowa, and Lowell Schaaf of Elliott, Iowa.

Nearly 1,100 dancers and spectators have attended the past three festivals — and this year two halls will be used for the dancing.

Co-chairmen for the event sponsored by the Saturday Night Square Dance Club of Council Bluffs are Mr. and Mrs. Ron Whitecotton of Council Bluffs.

Program Meeting

"That Reminds Me" was the topic of the program for the Tuesday evening, Jan. 25, meeting of Chapter ES, PEO.

The event was held at the home of Mrs. Grant Reed who was assisted by Mrs. Bonnie Burdell and Mrs. J. R. London.

Snacks

"Snacks — The Fourth Meal," will be the lesson for the February meetings of Lancaster County Home Extension Clubs. The study will include information on the importance of choosing snacks which are nutritious, easy to prepare, and satisfying.

Training for lesson leaders will be presented by Extension Home Economist Esther Kreifels, at the Southgate United Methodist Church, 3509 Pioneers, on Tuesday, Feb. 1, at 1:15 in the afternoon and 7:15 o'clock in the evening; Wednesday morning, Feb. 2, at 9:15 o'clock; and Thursday, Feb. 3, at 9:15 o'clock in the morning and 1:15 in the afternoon.

Any interested homemaker is welcome to attend the training sessions.

Weekend Square Dances Scheduled

The icy winds and bitter cold of the days and nights lead one to believe that this is foot-stomping weather—and what better way to warm one's body and soul than spending a winter evening square dancing with one's friends?

The Lincoln Round and Square Dance Council and its member clubs had just that in mind when four square dances were scheduled for this weekend.

On Friday evening, Jan. 28, the members of the Chix and Chasers group will be rushing from their warm cars into the warmer clime of Recreation Center No. 1, at 1225 F St. The calling will begin at 8:30 o'clock.

Precisely one-half hour before the Chix and Chasers begin their promenading, St. Paul United Methodist Church will be the destination of many petticoated gals and Western sharped guys when the Swing 'Em In Gingham group gathers for a dance which will begin at 8 o'clock.

The outfits and form of dancing will be much the same on Saturday evening, Jan. 29, for the groups will be composed of different personalities, when two more of the meet at their appointed places for an evening of frivolity.

The Unitarian Church at 6300 A St. will be the site of a dance that evening. Gathering there will be members of the J. V. Traders Club. The appointed place for the dancing has been established as 8:30 o'clock.

Crossed Traders at the Episcopal Center, 61st and Adams Sts., on the same evening will be the group which is appropriately dubbed the Cross Traders. The calling and merry making will begin at 9 o'clock and extend into the wee hours.

Square Dance Festival

The 12th annual Council Bluffs Square Dance Festival will be held on Saturday evening, March 18, at the Lewis Central School in Council Bluffs, Iowa.

Calling the promenades and do-si-dos for the evening will be Keith Thomsen of Portsmouth, Iowa, and Lowell Schaaf of Ellettsville, Iowa.

Nearly 1,100 dancers and spectators have attended the past three festivals — and this year two halls will be used for the dancing.

Program Meeting

"That Reminds Me" was the topic of the program for the Tuesday evening, Jan. 25, meeting of Chapter ES, PEO.

The event was held at the home of Mrs. Grant Reed who was assisted by Mrs. Bonnie Burdell and Mrs. J. B. Loudon.

Snacks

"Snacks — The Fourth Meal" will be the lesson for the February meetings of Lancaster County Home Extension Clubs. The study will include information on the importance of choosing snacks which are nutritious, easy to prepare, and satisfying.

Training for lesson leaders will be presented by Extension Home Economist Esther Kreileis, at the Southgate United Methodist Church, 3500 Pioneers, on Tuesday, Feb. 1, at 1:15 in the afternoon and 7:15 o'clock in the evening. Wednesday morning, Feb. 2, at 9:15 o'clock; and Thursday, Feb. 3, at 9:15 o'clock in the morning and 1:15 in the afternoon.

Any interested homemaker is welcome to attend the training sessions.

on a tour of the shops

When the weather outside is foreboding, a cozy home makes the nicest retreat. And now that social activities are somewhat limited, it is fun to spend time finding ways to make your home more inviting. Sometimes all it takes is the addition of a new accent piece to add a new flavor.

AT HARDY'S FURNITURE

We found an interesting coffee table that was shaped somewhat like a squatted barrel. Designed of southern hardwood, the barrel spokes supported a round glass top that is slightly tinted.

For those who prefer two small tables in front of the sofa to a large one, there are matching drum-shaped tables styled in the popular chrome and glass. These tables feature an original design of sculptured chrome that resembles a winding tie of ribbon. The round top is clear glass.

Ceramic chess figures that stand 30 inches high will make interesting conversation pieces. They are gaily decorated in hues of cream, pink, yellow and orange.

Elegance is yours with a gold-footed compote. This piece can be used to serve many purposes, such as a planter or fruit bowl, but it also can be most eye-catching for many other functions. The compote might be accented by a bamboo magazine rack finished in gold.

Serving a three-fold purpose of lamp, table and room divider is a piece designed in brass and walnut. Three brass pole lamps are joined by rectangular flats of walnut that extend up from a rectangular table. The brass and wood design is repeated below the table to a walnut base.

Owls seem to be popular accent pieces these days, and they are available in all shapes, sizes and materials. We saw a ceramic owl sculptured in white that sits about two feet tall. There also was an owl of solid hand wrought brass that is designed to be used as a candle lamp hung from the ceiling.

One of our favorite "fun" pieces was a fur covered mushroom that stands about two feet high and is 26 inches in circumference. This stuffed accessory can be used as a footstool, a seat or merely as an accent for a room. It is available in brown, black or olive green fake fur.

Genuine sheepskin fur is used to cover

a small chrome armchair. Although there is a leather seat under the fur throw, which is attached by straps, all that peek out are the legs and arms of the chair.

Many people are selecting a new way to display their pieces of art by use of an easel stand. We saw a large stand of bamboo that was finished in gold, as well as smaller stands for miniature works.

AT LATSCH'S

For further accessorizing your home, we recommend a leather-covered wine decanter. Those found at Latsch's have warm color combinations. All are glass lined, and they come in several unique shapes and sizes. One outstanding decanter resembled a candle stick was held in a metal candle holder.

Adding leather to leather, we found an attractive leather nest with glass coasters nestled right inside.

Americans have discovered a true fondness for wine — in fact, many have become true connoisseurs. For the wine tasters, we found attractive and unusual wine racks of lucite — either clear or smoked.

Among the wooden bar accessories we found a delicately shaped wood case with a gold toned aperitif container and four dainty glasses.

For the bar, we recommend the owl-shaped pewtertone ice bucket — and also the knight's helmet which is an automatic bar jigger.

Despite the cold, snow days of winter, traveling is just as much in vogue as staying near the hearth in one's own home. Take, for example, the avid skiers who seem to thrive on this sort of weather. For them, the manufacturers have devised a way for them to feel at home away from home — with the portable bars and motel kits.

Most of the portable bars we found at Latsch's were cases made of molded fiberglass and most contained at least two bottles. Some were even outfitted with a variety of bar tools and glasses. And one of the kits with a leather case came complete with its own ice bucket.

The motel kit, also of molded fiberglass, contains a small percolator, coffee cups, spoons, sugar and coffee containers, and a few extras.

We Hear That

From Bremenhaven, Germany, this morning comes word of the arrival of young Miss Tonya Marie Kahler, who, we suspect, will have a special reason for celebrating New Year's Eve during her lifetime. Miss Tonya arrived on Dec. 31, 1971. The baby's parents are E.3 and Mrs. Ray A. Kahler, who plan to be back in the States next October, and her maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. L. Tracy Clement of Lincoln. Mr. and Mrs. Reuben A. Kahler, also of Lincoln are the paternal grandparents.

Abby: number of months not important

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: Here is the situation. A man in his middle sixties and a woman in her early sixties have recently married. She was the town's most attractive widow for many years. The man's wife had been dead exactly 7 months to the day he remarried.

I always thought that out of respect to the dear, departed mate it was customary to wait a full year before remarrying. I would appreciate your opinion.

KNOWS BOTH

DEAR KNOWS: How one

treats his mate when he (or she) is living is the only meaningful way in which one can show "respect". And waiting one year (or 10) isn't going to make one bit of difference. Time is precious. And if two people feel they can find happiness together, who am I to count the days since their dear ones have departed? (And who are you?)

DEAR ABBY: A relative of mine, now widowed and in her late forties, keeps asking me to get her a date with a certain attractive eligible bachelor she knows I know.

I am absolutely positive that this man would have no interest whatsoever in this woman, but of course I can't tell HER that.

Don't suggest I have a party and ask him to "escort" her because if I asked him to pick her up and take her home he would consider it a dirty trick.

I suppose I should tell you that this woman is overbearing, overdressed, loud and aggressive, but she thinks she's witty, hip, friendly and the life of the party.

So what can I do when she says, "Just introduce me to him — I'll do the rest." Abby, I just couldn't!

STUMPED

DEAR STUMPED: You need not ask him to "escort" her, but you could invite them both to an informal gathering at your home. She will then meet him, and if he doesn't ask her out, she'll have had her chance. And you'll have her off your back.

DEAR ABBY: I have looked in every etiquette book I could find, and I can't find the answer to this question: When you invite someone to a party, is it proper for them to ask, "who else will be there?"

I would never think of asking such a question when someone invites me to a party, but I have had it put to me many times. Is it proper?

WANTS TO KNOW

DEAR WANTS: No. When extending an invitation, the thoughtful hostess mentions what kind of party she's having in order to clue the guests in on what to wear, but if she doesn't say who else will be there, it's impolite to ask. (One just goes and takes his chances.)

CONFIDENTIAL TO "THINKING IT OVER IN PALM SPRINGS": Be sure you think it over thoroughly. Money isn't everything. Sometimes it isn't even enough.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "TOO EMBARRASSED FOR WORDS" IN SARASOTA, FLA.: Tell your therapist everything. The more he knows about you, the more he can help you. Besides, he has heard everything, and you won't shock him.

What's your problem? You'll feel better if you get it off your chest. Write to ABBY, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. For a personal reply enclose stamped, addressed envelope.

Anniversary Party

Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Maseman celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary last Saturday, Jan. 22 — but not in Lincoln.

Mr. and Mrs. Maseman went back 25 years for the festivities, which were planned by their daughters, Mrs. Lloyd Roberts of Fairmont, and their son, Randy, and the celebration took everyone to Wilber and Sokol Auditorium where the wedding dance was held on Jan. 22, 1947 — following the wedding in Hallam.

The evening began with a reception, also at the Sokol Auditorium, at which Mrs. Roberts and her brother, Randy Maseman, were assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Engelbart and their family; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Oltman and their family, and Miss Pam Schroeder.

B. Jay Becker

You are South, both sides vulnerable. The bidding has been:

North	East	South	West
1♦	Pass	1♥	Pass
3♥	Pass	?	Pass

What would you bid now with each of the following four hands?

1. ♠A7 ♥J6543 ♦82 ♣KJ964
2. ♠AJ ♥K87532 ♦KQ863 ♣5
3. ♠Q63 ♥A974 ♦853 ♣762
4. ♠A94 ♥KQ875 ♦K72 ♣93

1. Four hearts. The value of a hand often changes as the bidding progresses. Thus, when you responded a heart in this case, game prospects were rather blank, and in fact there was some question about the advisability of responding at all.

However, once you do respond and partner raises you to three, the outlook changes drastically. Your anemic hearts take on a brand new value when North fills them out by jump-raising the suit. All four suits are now at least moderately under control, and the prospects of making ten, even eleven, tricks are very, very good.

2. Four notrump. This is a case where the number of tricks you can make depends entirely on how many aces partner has, and Blackwood should therefore be invoked. If North responds five hearts, showing two aces, you pass. If he responds five spades, showing three aces, you bid six hearts. If he responds five clubs, which in this sequence shows all four aces, you bid seven hearts.

Partner's point count is not the criterion. Once he guarantees four trumps by jumping to three hearts, the number of aces he has will determine how many tricks can be made.

3. Pass. It must be remembered that a jump raise is not forcing and merely urges you to continue towards game. It permits you to pass in the proper circumstances, and it is clear that, if you are ever going to pass, you should do so with this hand.

Had North been sure of ten tricks, the would presumably have bid four hearts, not three. He is asking whether you have that little bit extra needed for game — and the answer clearly is no. The winning bid, in the long run, is to pass.

4. Three spades. Game is certain, but the possibility of a slam should not be ignored. North may have

which is not an unusually powerful hand, but you would surely want to be in a slam with it. The spade cuebid will help to get you there.

ASTROLOGICAL FORECAST

☆ By SIDNEY OMARR ☆

Forecast For Friday

Virgo can analyze and work plans which transform surprising situations into personal advantage. Once a Virgo individual "gets the scent," it is difficult, if not impossible, to throw him off the track. Natives of this zodiacal sign can take care of themselves and function extremely well in times of emergency. Some famous persons born under Virgo include Arthur Godfrey, Greta Garbo and Jackie Cooper.

ARIES (March 21-April 19): Home situation requires care, special attention. Be thorough in all you undertake—maintain steady pace. You may be misquoted. Correct errors. Don't take for granted that others will automatically understand.

Indians Seen As Trapped In 'Skid Row'

Omaha (AP) — Hundreds of Indians are trapped in a "skid row" existence in Omaha, unable to get decent housing, medical help and jobs, the Community Health Forum was told.

Six Indians and two others working in Indian-assistance programs discussed the problem of urban Indians at a two-hour meeting.

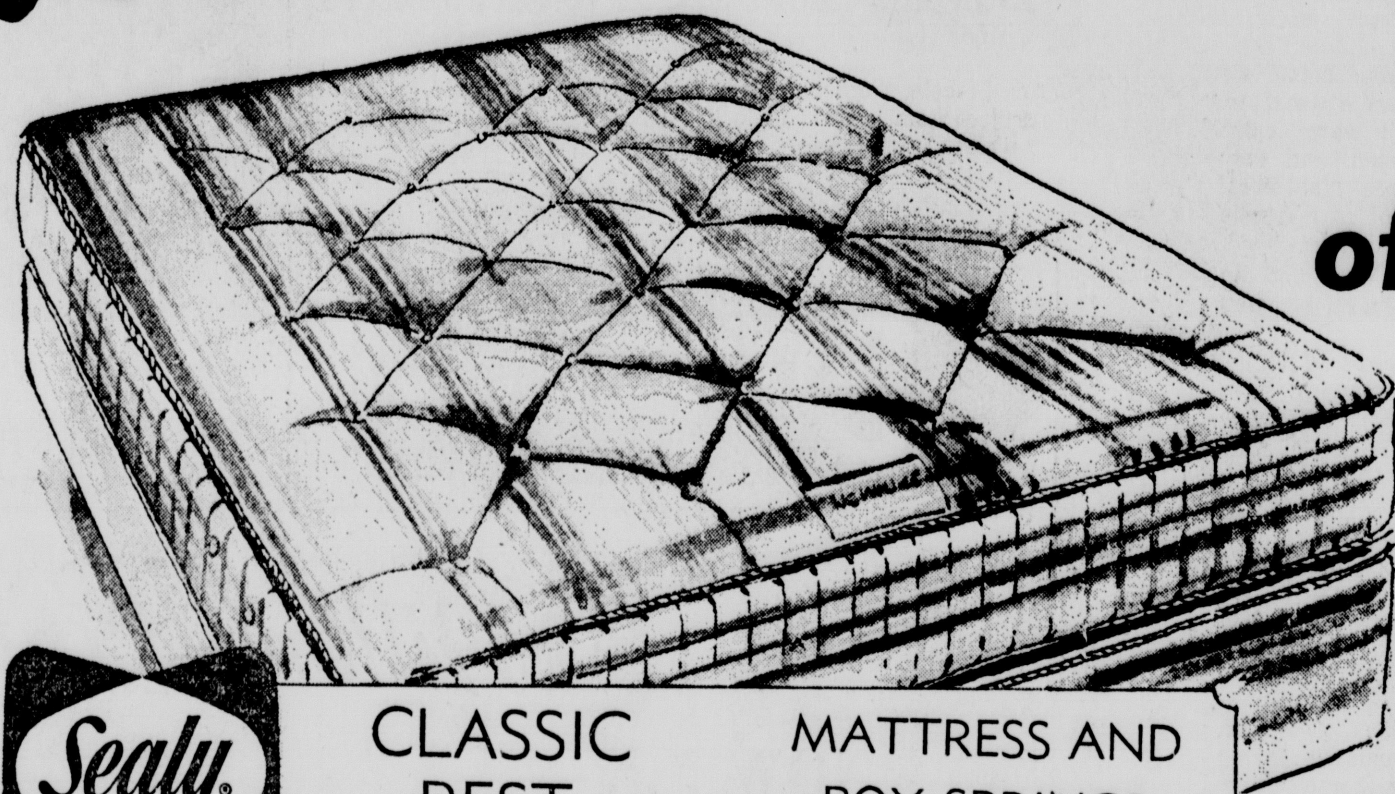

Most critical among the speakers was the Rev. Frank Love, who has directed an Omaha Indian center and soon is to become the United Methodist Church's Indian-affairs director in Nebraska.

He said Omaha has a "floating population" of about 4,500 Indians — those either living here or traveling back and forth from a reservation.

The Rev. Mr. Love said many are forced to live on the "skid rows of North 16th Street" and in "rinky-dinky" quarters which haven't been improved since World War II.

The Indians have found job and housing opportunities "nil," medical-dental costs "astronomical" and city leaders disinterested because Indians lack "political clout," he said.

POSTCARD by Stan Delaplante

Down to Perry's this rainy afternoon to give the foaming steam beer a vote of confidence.

It's a pub on swifty Union Street in San Francisco. At noon, a lunch spot. At night, a sociable drinking place. Admen, TV and radio people. Press agents and reporters. Parsons and playgirls. (Both unfrocked.)

Most work no set hours, so Perry's has a drifting population. The morning hangers seeking another bite from the dog. The night people whose muscle works best after dark.

On Friday, the bar is known as Allimony Row. The weekend hassle is about to begin.

He said: "So the judge set up visitation rights, OK? But when? Suddenly, my kid has a social calendar that would amaze Suszy Knickerbocker.

"Monday? He has singing lessons after school. Tuesday? This week his grandmother is taking him to the zoo. Wednesday he may be coming down with a slight cold. And so it goes up to Sunday when — I'm sorry, Joe. He's going to a birthday party. You simply must make appointments earlier."

Along Allimony Row you hear of the losers who sawed their way through the bars. (Perry's gets the ones who were walked out on — the ones who walked out are eating new home cooking.)

"So she got the house, she got the car, the children and a big slice of alimony. OK. He was making money. But then the market started to fall. Now he's in a $100-a-month walkup.

He said: "Now my six-year-old has an appointment book. How do you like that? I call up my ex on Monday. 'How about Saturday?' She says: 'You mean this Saturday?' I say: 'I don't mean six months from now.'"

"She says: 'Wait a minute. I'll have to consult his appointment book.' She says: 'It looks like he has choir practice on Saturday.'"

"I say: 'Well, Sunday,' She says: 'That's the day before school. He needs his rest.' I say: 'Suppose you tell me.' She says: 'If you're going to use that tone of voice, we simply can't discuss it.'"

All this is very good for Perry's on Friday afternoon (There is no more serious drinker than a person with the knife in up to the hilt.)

The Irish bartenders (who can tell a wounded man from the banshee wall) know just about what they'll get each day.

"Friday they groan. Saturday they curse. Sunday, the hangover. Monday, back to work."

By evening, the Row has cheered up. The inbetweeners have arrived: The losers, the winners. The repeaters, the beginners.

And so far into the evening. Copyright Chronicle Publishing Co. 1972

Local Action Programs Said Way To Slow Highway Toll

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Citizens and officials from 14 Southeastern Nebraska counties Thursday were urged to organize local county action programs aimed at reducing the accident and death toll on Nebraska roads.

Nearly 100 persons attended the Selective Localized Accident Prevention (SLAP) conference held in Lincoln, the second of seven scheduled to be held across the state by the Governor's Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee.

"We hope that SLAP is a blueprint for reducing traffic deaths," Gov. J. James Exon told the conferees, "but there's no assurance of success unless there is total dedication and concern for highway safety at the local level."

The conference was backgrounded against Nebraska's record high of 489 traffic deaths in 1971 plus 23,000 injuries and an economic loss of $110 million from traffic accidents.

While other ideas have been tried, Exon said, the "local action" program holds the most promise reducing traffic accidents by bringing responsibility for highway safety to the level where it is most needed."

Tom Ryan, SLAP coordinator and state accident records chief, said most accidents occur within 25 miles or less of the motorist's residence.

Thus, he said, traffic safety—in terms of geography and personal involvement—is one essentially of local concern.

Ryan also pointed out that the fatality rate is two times greater on rural and county roads than on state highway and urban streets when computed on the basis of vehicle miles traveled.

"If the traffic accident problem can be controlled on the county level," Ryan said in urging county-level safety action program, "the state toll will take care of itself."

Three possible organizational structures for the county programs were suggested.

Tom Carroll of the Nebraska Safety Council said the "quickest route" would be formation of a traffic safety coordinating committee of public officials.

Also suggested were citizen-sponsored county safety councils or a county traffic safety commission composed of both public officials and citizens.

Federal funds, Carroll said, can become available for well-organized and documented county action programs.

Stressing the importance of traffic safety at the county level, Carroll said problems and needs will vary from area to area.

Driver education is probably the highest priority, he suggested, but there is a variety of problems ranging from blind intersections on county roads, inadequate signing of road hazards and dangers, and road travel by farm equipment.

Merle Reiling, chairman of the governor's committee, said the county action groups are being asked to delve into all facets of highway accidents and attempt to find solutions.

If causes cannot be corrected at the local level, he said, then these groups can contact the governor's committee for help.

The state committee is composed of representatives of all state agencies concerned with traffic accident prevention.

Sarpy County Sheriff Loses Court Appeal

St. Louis, Mo. (AP) — The 8th U.S. Circuit court of Appeals here Thursday reversed the dismissal of a perjury conviction against Sarpy County, Neb., Sheriff Richard Whitted Jr.

Whitted was found guilty of three counts of perjury by a federal jury on Sept. 29, 1970, after he was charged with lying to a grand jury investigating gambling in the Omaha, Neb. area.

U.S. District Judge Richard Robinson of Omaha voided the convictions last March 23, saying the indictments under which the sheriff was charged were faulty.

The Circuit Court ruled that an indictment cannot be attacked once the defendant has been tried. However, the court agreed with Robinson in part, noting that "erroneous matter" had been presented by the government to the grand jury. This did not change the initial Circuit Court decision.

U.S. Dist. Atty. Richard Dier of Nebraska had appealed to the Circuit Court.

'Consumerism' Hurting Development

Omaha (AP) — A Chappell, Neb., woman claims "an emotional wave of consumerism which has degenerated into busybodyism" may hinder rural development.

Mrs. Haven Smith, who served as chairman of the Presidential Task Force on Rural Development in 1969 and 1970, made the comment Thursday while speaking to members of the Nebraska Chamber of Commerce Executives here.

Forced Closings Cited She said that consumerism and "hysterical talk of the environment" are leading to increased restrictions on business-forcing some businesses to close.

She said that business and industry must play the major role in revitalizing rural America and that will not be possible with the "strict rules" which she said are hobbling competitive business.

Marland To Hold News Conference

U.S. Commissioner of Education Sidney Marland will hold a news conference Friday morning at the State Capitol, it was announced Thursday.

The session will follow Marland's introduction to the Nebraska Legislature, scheduled for 9:30 a.m.

Flu Toll Up

Atlanta, Ga. (AP) — Deaths attributed to influenza have risen for the third straight week, the Center for Disease Control reports.

For the week ending Jan. 22, the CDC said, 920 deaths attributed to influenza or pneumonia were reported from 122 cities. Normally, the number of deaths in those cities would be 584.

Semitrailer Load Of Meat Reported

Omaha (AP) — A semitrailer containing 520 cases of meat valued at $38,740 has been reported stolen from the parking lot of a bowling alley on Omaha's South Side, police said Thursday.

Truck driver Eugene Crowley of Omaha told police he left the trailer at the lot about 8:30 p.m. Monday. He said he saw the trailer on the lot at 1 a.m. Tuesday. However, at 11 a.m. Tuesday the trailer was gone, Crowley told police.

The trailer is owned by Morris Ellis of Omaha and was leased to H-K Auto Supply, Inc., Omaha, police aid.

They said the trailer had been sublet to another firm.

The meat is owned by the American Refrigeration Co. of Fremont. Crowley, a driver for the auto supply concern, told police he was to have taken the trailer to Detroit Thursday.

Crowley told officers it was common practice to leave trailers overnight on the bowling alley lot.

Local Action Programs Said Way To Slow Highway Toll

By VIRGIL FALLOON
Star Staff Writer

Citizens and officials from 14 Southeastern Nebraska counties Thursday were urged to organize local county action programs aimed at reducing the accident and death toll on Nebraska roads.

Nearly 100 persons attended the Selective Localized Accident Prevention (SLAP) conference held in Lincoln, the second of seven scheduled to be held across the state by the Governor's Traffic Safety Coordinating Committee.

"We hope that SLAP is a blueprint for reducing traffic deaths," Gov. J. James Exon told the conference, "but there's no assurance of success unless there is total dedication and concern for highway safety at the local level."

The conference was backgrounded against Nebraska's record high of 489 traffic deaths in 1971 plus 23,000 injuries and an economic loss of $110 million from traffic accidents.

While other ideas have been tried, Exon said, the "local action" program holds the most promise reducing traffic accidents by bringing responsibility for highway safety to the level where it is most needed.

Tom Ryan, SLAP coordinator and state accident records chief, said most accidents occur within 25 miles or less of the motorist's residence.

Thus, he said, traffic safety — in terms of geography and personal involvement — is one essentially of local concern.

Ryan also pointed out that the fatality rate is two times greater on rural and county roads than on state highway and urban streets when computed on the basis of vehicle miles traveled.

"If the traffic accident problem can be controlled on the county level," Ryan said in urging county-level safety action program, "the state will take care of itself."

Three possible organizational structures for the county programs were suggested.

Tom Carroll of the Nebraska Safety Council said the "quickest route" would be formation of a traffic safety coordinating committee of public officials.

Also suggested were citizen-sponsored county safety councils or a county traffic safety commission composed of both public officials and citizens.

Federal funds, Carroll said, can become available for well-organized and documented county action programs.

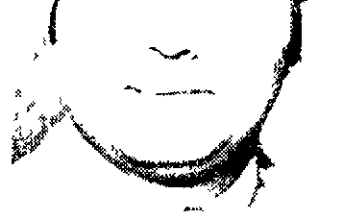

Stressing the importance of traffic safety at the county level, Carroll said problems and needs will vary from area to area.

Driver education is probably the highest priority, he suggested, but there is a variety of problems ranging from blind intersections on county roads, inadequate signing of road hazards and dangers, and road travel by farm equipment.

Merle Reiling, chairman of the governor's committee, said the county action groups are being asked to delve into all facets of highway accidents and attempt to find solutions.

If causes cannot be corrected at the local level, he said, then these groups can contact the governor's committee for help.

Sarpy County Sheriff Loses Court Appeal

St. Louis, Mo. (AP) — The 8th U.S. Circuit court of Appeals here Thursday reversed the dismissal of a perjury conviction against Sarpy County, Neb., Sheriff Richard Whitted Jr.

Whitted was found guilty of three counts of perjury by a federal jury on Sept. 29, 1970, after he was charged with lying to a grand jury investigating gambling in the Omaha, Neb., area.

U.S. District Judge Richard Robinson of Omaha voided the convictions last March 23, saying the indictments under which the sheriff was charged were faulty.

The Circuit Court ruled that an indictment cannot be attacked once the defendant has been tried. However, the court agreed with Robinson in part, noting that "erroneous matter" had been presented by the government to the grand jury. This did not change the initial Circuit Court decision.

U.S. Dist. Atty. Richard Dier of Nebraska had appealed to the Circuit Court.

Whitted won re-election to his post in the suburban Omaha county in 1970 following his conviction.

'Consumerism' Hurting Development

Omaha (AP) — A Chappell, Neb., woman claims "an emotional wave of consumerism which has degenerated into busybodyism" may hinder rural development.

Mrs. Haven Smith, who served as chairman of the Presidential Task Force on Rural Development in 1969 and 1970, made the comment Thursday while speaking to members of the Nebraska Chamber of Commerce Executives here.

Forced Closings Cited
She said that consumerism and "hysterical talk of the environment" are leading to increased restrictions on business-forcing some businesses to close.

She said that business and industry must play the major role in revitalizing rural America and that will not be possible with the "strict rules" which she said are hobbling competitive business.

Mrs. Smith said that small towns must be revitalized so that young persons will not have to move to cities to find good jobs.

Preference Noted
She said that some polls show that four out of five persons living in cities would rather live in or near small towns if there were jobs available there.

"There will be 100 million children born in the United States in the next 20 years," she said, "and our urban areas are not equipped to handle these people."

"Rural development," she said, "will help the entire nation. It's an idea whose time has come."

"Our cities—which have 75 per cent of the people jammed on 2 per cent of the land—are conspicuous failures."

Mrs. Smith said that "rural development means more jobs, better housing and the development of non-metropolitan areas. It means bringing a better quality of life to small towns and rural areas."

Flu Toll Up

Atlanta, Ga. (AP) — Deaths attributed to influenza have risen for the third straight week, the Center for Disease Control reports.

For the week ending Jan. 22, the CDC said, 920 deaths attributed to influenza or pneumonia were reported from 122 cities. Normally, the number of deaths in those cities would be 584.

Semitrailer Load Of Meat Reported

Omaha (AP) — A semitrailer containing 520 cases of meat valued at $38,740 has been reported stolen from the parking lot of a bowling alley on Omaha's South Side, police said Thursday.

Truck driver Eugene Crowley of Omaha told police he left the trailer at the lot about 8:30 p.m. Monday. He said he saw the trailer on the lot at 1 a.m. Tuesday. However, at 11 a.m. Tuesday the trailer was gone, Crowley told police.

The trailer is owned by Morris Ellis of Omaha and was leased to H-K Auto Supply, Inc., Omaha, police said.

They said the trailer had been stolen to another firm.

The meat is owned by the American Refrigeration Co. of Fremont. Crowley, a driver for the auto supply concern, told police he was to have taken the trailer to Detroit Thursday.

Crowley told officers it was common practice to leave trailers overnight on the bowling alley lot.

POSTCARD

Stan Delaplane

Down to Perry's this rainy afternoon to give the foaming steam beer a vote of confidence.

It's a pub on swingy Union Street in San Francisco. At noon, a lunch spot. At night, a sociable drinking place. Ad men, TV and radio people. Press agents and reporters. Parsons and playgirls. (Both unfrocked.)

Most work no set hours, so Perry's has a drifting population. The morning hangers seeking another bite from the dog. The night people whose muscle works best after dark.

On Friday, the bar is known as Alimony Row. The weekend hassle is about to begin.

He said: "So the judge set up visitation rights. OK? But when? Suddenly, my kid has a social calendar that would amaze Susy Knickerbocker. "Monday? He has singing lessons after school. Tuesday? This week his grandmother is taking him to the zoo. Wednesday he may be coming down with a slight cold. And so it goes up to Sunday when — I'm sorry, Joe. He's going to a birthday party. You simply must make appointments earlier."

Along Alimony Row you hear of the losers who saved their way through the bars. (Perry's gets the ones who were walked out on — the ones who walked out are eating new home cooking.)

"So she got the house, she got the car, the children and a big slice of alimony. OK. He was making money. But then the market started to fall. Now he's in a $100-a-month walkup.

"He went over to see the children on Christmas. His ex put him out on the porch with them for his two hours of allowance. They all had a shack — peanut butter sandwiches.

"Through the window, he can see the festive table set up! Glasses. Silver. Then her boyfriend goes to the wine rack. This guy had built up a great cellar. But it went with the house.

"The boyfriend selects a bottle of '45 something. You know, $50 a bottle IF you can find it. He uncorks it to let it breathe.

"The ex-husband put down his peanut butter sandwich and departed. 'I've seen the light,' he said. Next day he signed up with Aramco or something. He's in Saudi Arabia, moving so fast nobody can lay a hand on him.

"It was the wine bit that put him up the wall."

He said: "Now my six-year-old has an appointment book. How do you like that? I call up my ex on Monday. 'How about Saturday?' She says: 'You mean this Saturday?' I say: 'I don't mean six months from now.'"

"She says: 'Wait a minute. I'll have to consult his appointment book.' She says: 'It looks like he has choir practice on Saturday.'"

"I say: 'Well, Sunday.' She says: 'That's the day before school. He needs his rest.' I say: 'Suppose you tell me.' She says: 'If you're going to use that tone of voice, we simply can't discuss it.'"

All this is very good for Perry's on Friday afternoon.

(There is no more serious drinker than a person with the knife in up to the hilt.)

The Irish bartenders (who can tell a wounded man from the banshee wail) know just about what they'll get each day.

"Friday they groan. Saturday they curse. Sunday, the hangover. Monday, back to work."

By evening, the Row has cheered up. The inbetweeners have arrived: The losers, the winners. The repeaters, the beginners.

SPORT SIGNALS

Sports Editor, The Star

Would Like It On TV

If Nebraska basketball coach Joe Cipriano could change one thing about his Saturday engagement with Kansas — other than playing it in Lincoln instead of Lawrence — he'd put it on the Big Eight's TV Game of The Week.

And that's not just because he's thinking it would be nice if snow-bound Nebraska basketball fans could sit in front of their fireplaces and TV sets Saturday afternoon and watch the action.

"It seems like every time we've played Kansas, the game has meant something to at least one team or the other," Cipriano points out. "But it also seems like when we play them at Lawrence, it's a night game and when we play them in Lincoln, it's an afternoon TV game."

The reason Joe feels there's an advantage to playing a TV game on the road and playing at night when you're at home is the influence a home crowd has on basketball games.

Generally speaking, more people will come out to see a Saturday night game that is not televised than will go to a Saturday afternoon game that is televised.

Most coaches would agree with Joe that the ideal situation is to play before a sellout crowd if you're at home, but if you're on the road, the fewer fans there the better.

NU, Alabama Riding High

Seeing Nebraska and Alabama at or near the top of the standings in their respective Big Eight and Southeastern conferences isn't too unusual—in the fall, but in the winter?

The two schools, recognized as football powers, haven't found their name at the top of the basketball standings very often in the past half century.

But as of this morning, Nebraska is leading the Big Eight with a 4-0 mark and Alabama has won four straight in the Southeastern Conference and a win over Tennessee would put the Crimson Tide in the top spot Saturday night.

Two New Events Possible

Two new events are possible on the 1972 sports calendar with both likely being staged in May and both in Omaha.

Officers of the Nebraska Amateur Golf Association and the Nebraska PGA Section are putting their heads together in an effort to set up a Ryder Cup-type competition pitting the top Nebraska pros against the top amateurs.

Jack Fickler, director of the Midwest Golden Gloves, is toying with the idea of holding some sort of Olympic qualifying competition for area boxers in Omaha this spring.

Fickler began considering the idea after his efforts to persuade the National Golden Gloves organization to raise the maximum age for Golden Gloves competition this year to 29 failed.

"If there are some amateur fighters in the area, who are too old for the Golden Gloves, but who can beat our Golden Gloves champions, I think we should try to help them qualify for the Olympics," Fickler reasons.

Fickler would like to have the backing of the Great Plains Amateur Boxing Association for his idea and is hopeful that the group could pay expenses of area boxers, who would win in the Omaha qualifying to a regular Olympic qualifying site.

Offer For Stander Rejected

One source tells us that the owners of now-once-beaten heavyweight Ron Stander turned down a $30,000 offer from a group associated with Frank Sinatra before his recent loss in Denver.

Stander's scheduled Feb. 2 fight with Bill Drover at the Omaha Civic Auditorium, postponed after his loss to Reco Brooks, may be reset for Feb. 14 if Stander shows his backers he's now serious about fighting for a living.

Every coach or manager of a sports team would love to have a player, who never makes a mistake, could play every position flawlessly and knows more about the sport than any coach. We know a guy, who claims the world is full of such individuals, but he admits the only trouble is in getting him to put down his beer and hot dog and come out of the stands.

Fremont — Nebraska Wesleyan basketball coach Irv Peterson expects a tough game here Friday night with Midland starting at 7:30.

And he has good reason in spite of the fact the Plainsmen beat the Warriors, 106-87, in Crete at the pre-season Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference Tournament. Last year Midland took an overtime victory over NWU in Lincoln and then won here easily during the regular season.

And Wesleyan had defeated the Warriors during the pre-season NIAC meet last season.

Peterson is hoping history won't repeat itself but is cautious about the road game. "The conference is so balanced and it's been hard to win on the road," Peterson said.

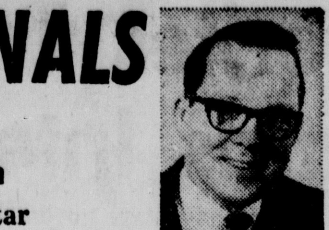

"We'll rely on our rebounding to help us since it has been so consistent this season."

Another factor which Peterson thinks has helped his league-leading team, 2-0, is the return of 6-10 Bob Beecham. "Bob has been able to relieve the starters and has done a good job while he's been playing," Peterson explained.

"We feel we're as strong as we've been all year but we'll have to play a good game to win on the road."

The Warriors have the NIAC's top scorer in Kermit Sweeney, who is averaging 17.8 points per game. Midland is second in scoring but last in scoring defense.

Also hurting the Warriors is the loss of guard Herschel

Gibron Elevated To Bear Head Coaching Job

Chicago (AP) — Abe Gibron, an assistant Chicago Bear coach since 1965, signed a multi-year contract as new head coach Thursday. He replaces Jim Dooley, who was fired after the Bears lost their five final games of the 1971 National Football League season.

Gibron, 46, a boisterous man who mingled freely with Bear players on and off the field, served as both line coach on offense and defense since joining the Bears in 1965 after five years as line coach for the Washington Redskins.

Owner George Halas, clearing the coaching decks before the start of the NFL player draft Tuesday, said that Gibron's contract was for an unannounced duration.

Gibron becomes the sixth different head coach in the team's 53-year history.

Bear coaching tenures were previously held by Halas on four separate 10-year stints, from 1920 to 1967; Luke Johnson and Hunk Anderson, co-coaches from 1942-45; Ralph Jones, 1930-32; Paddy Driscoll, 1956-57; and Dooley, 1968-71.

Dooley, also a Bear organization man, was fired by Halas shortly after the Christmas holidays. The entire coaching staff, except Gibron, was also given its walking papers.

Dooley's dismissal followed a disappointing 6-8 record after the Bears compiled a moderately impressive record at midseason. Gibron came up through Michigan City, Ind., schools and played one year of college football at Valparaiso. His professional playing experience included five years as an outstanding lineman with the Cleveland Browns from 1950-55 after a pro debut with the Buffalo Bills of the All-American Conference.

Gibron was with the Philadelphia Eagles and Bears for two seasons before he became an assistant coach of the Redskins.

"I've been sweating this thing out until last night when I officially learned I was head coach," said Gibron. "Hell, I'm down to under 300 pounds now."

Gibron, who transferred to Purdue after a year at Valparaiso, said he had been given a free rein in naming his assistants.

"I want six," he said. "Former Bear assistants will be considered if they want to come back."

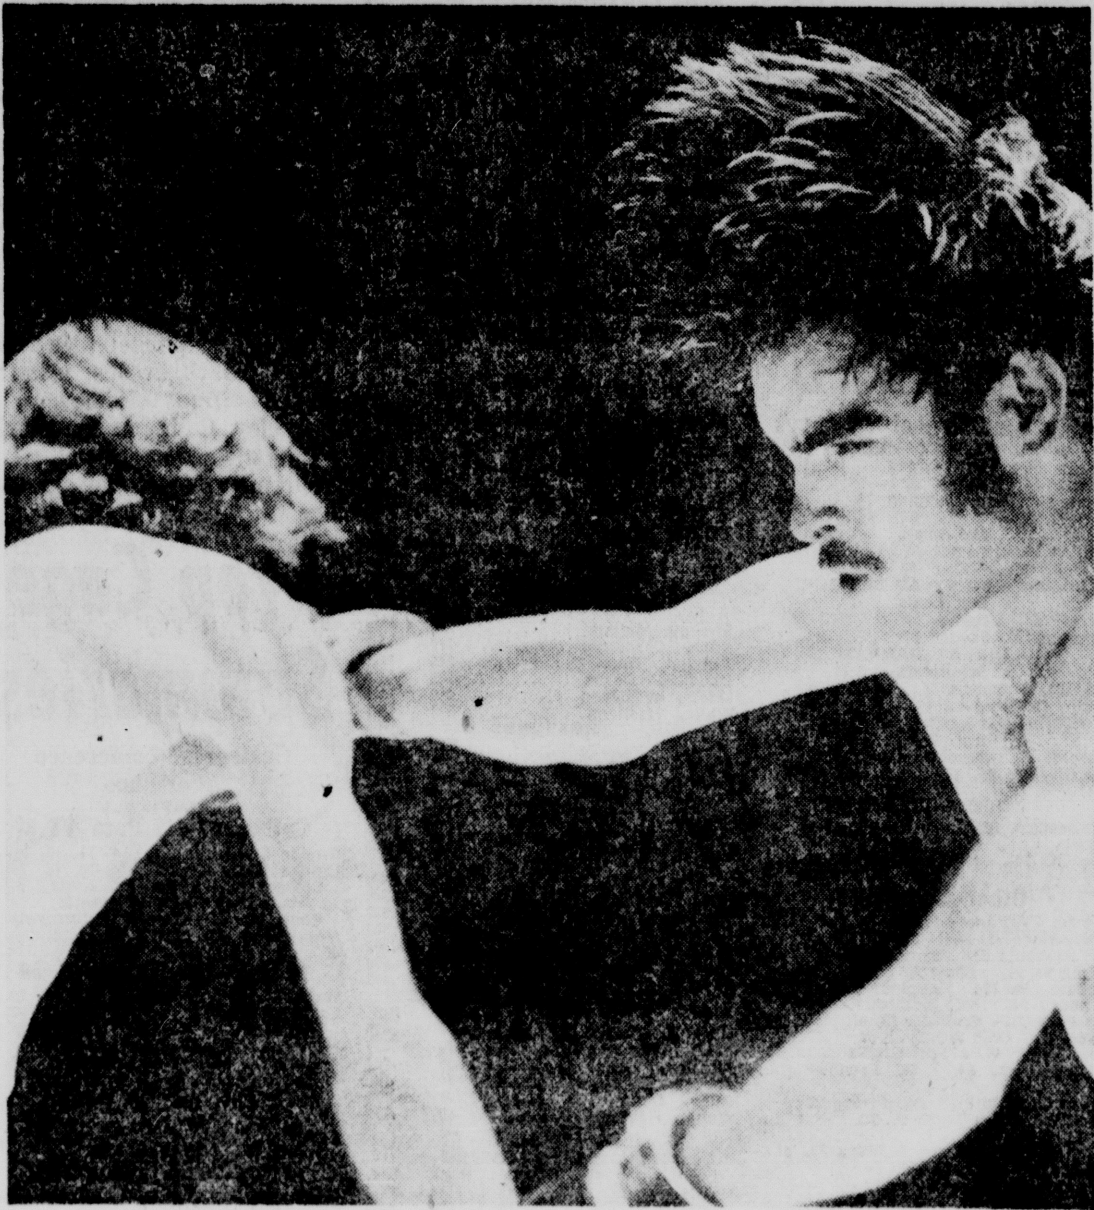

"We are going to have a motivated team—a physical team—a bunch of guys who go after people. The Bears always have had a good system but it has to be approached the right way. We will have a simple but basic Bear system."

"We are going to be a team," he added. "We didn't pull together as a team last year. I want our offense to grow up to know it can win like the defense does. With the personnel we have, and what we get in the draft, I think we can make a run for our divisional title this season."

Three-time Southeast District Golden Gloves champion Randy Nelsen won his fourth and final District crown Thursday night when he TKO'd John Ways at 1:52 of the second round at Pershing Auditorium.

"He (Stebbins) didn't make it to his weight class," Wilson said after the fight, "so he had to fight in mine. I hate to fight a guy I've been training with all year, but I'd hate to be awarded the trophy and title just because I was the only one in my weight class."

"This was a poor tournament," Wilson continued, "there just wasn't enough fighters to make it interesting. A guy can't really take pride in

Another former champion, Lonnie Crosby, 148, Branding Iron, won the 147-pound crown when he out-pointed stablemate Bruce Pearson and Monte Cady, 147-pound champion in 1968 and 178-pound champion in 1970, decided Fred Orduna, 151, Saylor Water Co., for the 156-pound crown this year.

Nelsen, who will miss the trip to the Midwest Golden Gloves in Omaha because of the age limit, has fought in eight district tournaments, winning the 1968 title at 156, and successfully defending the 165 title during 1970-71 and 1972.

"I'll keep fighting when I can," Nelsen said after coaching Saylor Water Co. to the team championship and collecting the winning coach trophy in addition to the 165-pound trophy. "I don't plan on hanging up my gloves now just because I'm 26-years-old."

Nelsen, 164, had nothing but praise for Ways, 166, admitting that the lanky Branding Iron fighter stung him a couple times during the fight.

"I have to give him credit," Nelsen explained. "He caught me with a left hook in both the first and second rounds that really hurt. I really underestimated him."

"I thought I could duck under the left hook and catch him with a left-right combination to the body, but his quickness surprised me. He's awful fast with that left hook."

Nelsen said he thought he lost the first round to Ways and was forced to change his strategy in the second round.

"Instead of going to his left, I went to his right and threw rights then duck away from his left hook. Even doing that, he caught me a couple of times."

Suddenly, midway through the second round, Nelsen floored Ways with a right cross then knocked him down again seconds later.

Then Nelsen changed tactics from his peek-a-boo stance and swarmed over Ways, connecting with left hooks, right crosses and a hard right hook to the body that sent Ways down for the third time, giving Nelsen the victory on the mandatory three-knockdown rule.

Chip Williams, 111, Saylor, undisputed champion.

Neil Wehlhelm, 115, Saylor, TKO'd Steve Kreifels, 120, Straight Edge, in 1:00 of second.

Mike Wilson, 131, Branding Iron, KO'd Kurt Stebbins, 131, Branding Iron in 1:43 of third.

Tom Graham, 135, Saylor, dec. Ray Menette, 136, Saylor.

Lonnie Crosby, 148, Branding Iron, dec. Bruce Pearson, 148, Branding Iron.

Western Tips Wyoming Club

Scottsbluff (AP) — Nebraska Western put on a strong second half drive to manage a 105-95 college basketball victory over Western Wyoming in Empire Conference play Thursday night.

Nebraska Western moved to a 4-1 league record. Western Wyoming, now 1-3 in the loop.

The visitors led most of the first half, but Nebraska Western managed a two-point lead at intermission, 49-47, then increased the margin to 10 points early in the second half.

The meet was originally scheduled as a triangular but Central Missouri State withdrew.

Host coach Gal Baum of Southeast says 105-pounder Skip Gist has been his most consistent grappler and the leading Knights' candidate for a T-N crown.

Northeast mentor John McIntyre, while echoing the feeling that East is the solid choice, has high hopes for 185-pound and heavyweight wrestlers Tom Henson and Ed McMeen for the Rockets.

"Henson has been sub-par because of a virus infection he can't seem to shake, but if he gets some of his zip back he could be a factor."

Northeast Tim Knight (145), should also be a threat in his weight class, McIntyre feels.

North Platte, the seventh member of the conference, is not expected to be a factor based on dual meet results from throughout the regular season.

East, LNE Tops City's Prep Tilts

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Two high school basketball games, featuring a quartet of teams from the top ten ratings, highlight the prep hoop activity in the Capital City Friday night.

Lincoln East and Northeast, fifth and sixth in the current Class A top ten, clash at Pershing Auditorium while No. 8 ranked Lincoln High hosts No. 4 rated Boys Town at Johnson Gym.

A second intra-city battle of the weekend is on tap Saturday night when Northeast and Southeast meet at Pershing Auditorium.

Three other games involving local teams are scheduled out of town over the weekend. Following its meeting with Boys Town, Lincoln High travels to Grand Island for a Saturday night contest, while Pius X is on the road both nights, journeying to Beatrice Friday night and Syracuse Saturday.

East will be trying to rebound from a 66-38 loss to North Platte in its latest outing, while Northeast will be attempting to extend a three-game winning streak.

Northeast is 6-2 on the campaign, losing its only games back-to-back Jan. 7-8 to Hastings and Omaha Benson. East is also 6-2, losing its opener to Southeast in addition to the North Platte defeat, winning six in a row in between.

The crucial clash appears a tossup. While Northeast topped Southeast by two — a team that beat East by one — a comparative of games against Lincoln High tips in favor of East.

The two have faced another pair of common opponents, East topping Kearney by 18 points, Northeast the same club by 17. They both beat Pius X by ten.

Lincoln High will be facing its ninth team in ten starts which is or has been in the top ten this season.

The two have met two common foes. State leader Omaha Westside edged the Links by seven points and beat the Cowboys by eight, while Boys Town has won a pair from Creighton Prep—by eight and 16 — while Lincoln High beat the same team by 12.

Centennial, Gretna Into Capitol Finals

... ELKHORN FALLS, 59-57, WAVERLY BEATEN, 79-73

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Hickman — Centennial High edged Elkhorn, 59-57, in overtime, and Gretna outscored Waverly, 79-73, in semifinal action at the Capitol Conference basketball tournament here Thursday night to gain berths in Friday night's championship clash.

Centennial, on eight consecutive pressure-packed free throws during the overtime period — six of them by Gary Sullivan — bumped Elkhorn, the No. 9 rated Class B team in the state.

The Gretna-Waverly struggle was equally close until the last minutes of the final frame when the winners' Loren Lamprecit, Ted Cox and Joe Lawry combined for eight straight points to stretch a one-point, 64-63, advantage into a nine-point bulge to ice the victory.

The Centennial-Elkhorn contest was never separated by more than six points, an advantage Elkhorn held at Haltime when the Antlers led 31-26. Centennial's biggest lead of the entire game, before the overtime, was just one point. The Broncos led 4-3, 5-4, 13-12, 38-37 and a final time at 49-48 just before the end of the regulation time.

Then Elkhorn's Dale Thiessen connected on a free throw to knot the count at 49-49 and send the game into the extra period.

Elkhorn's Dan Bull and Centennial's Marshall Bruns traded buckets to make it 51-51 before Sullivan started his free-throw shooting spree to give the Broncos their biggest bulge of the night.

His first four put Centennial in front 55-51 and the margin alternated between two and four points the rest of the way.

Gretna jumped out to a quick lead over Waverly, holding the upper hand, 25-11, at the first quarter break.

But the Vikings started a second-stanza spurt behind the sharpshooting of Fred Wenzel to edge out in front, 37-34, before Gretna's Larry Huetson, Steve Witulski and Cox combined to deadlock the score, 40-40, at halftime.

The count see-sawed back and forth until the middle of the final frame when Gretna put together its last flurry of points to produce the victory.

Field events are scheduled to start at 6:30 with the running events set for 7.

Coach Lloyd Caldwell's thinclads won both the mile and two-mile relays at the NAIA indoor meet last weekend at Kansas City and finished fourth in the team standings. UNO was also the top team at the Doane Open by winning five events.

The Maverick mile relay team ran 3:21.7 and the two-mile team ran 7:50.0 in Kansas City.

East, Islanders Battle For T-N Wrestling Title

By VIRGIL PARKER
Prep Sports Writer

Lincoln East and Grand Island rate as the team favorites for the Trans-Nebraska Conference wrestling tournament at Southeast High Saturday.

The daylong affair opens with first-round matches at 9:30 a.m., then continues with daytime sessions at 1 and 2:45 p.m. prior to the 6:30 consolation and 7:30 p.m. finals.

Coach Jim Holechek's East grapplers are the only Capital City team to defeat Grand Island in a dual match this season, claiming a 26-14 verdict last week.

"The kids were really up for that match," Holechek admits. "I'm sure it was our best overall effort of the season. It will take that same kind of performance to win the conference championship."

Spartan mat men Jim Schwarz, 105-pounder, Pat Arthur (132) and 133-pounder Joe Carr are expected to lead East's title bid.

"All three are unbeaten in 14 matches this year," Holechek says. "We have seven or eight boys who ought to place if they wrestle up to their potential. If they all come through we ought to win. If they don't, we could be in trouble."

Lincoln High mentor Mel Simpson points out that "if every tournament came out just as it is supposed to on paper, here wouldn't be any reason to conduct the matches. We could just award the medals and trophies and go home. But there are always some upsets and we're hoping to get our share."

Simpson feels that 155-pounder Randy Knaub, Tino Orta (119) and Jerry Bockoven at 185 have the best chance to capture individual titles for the Links.

"Some of the other teams, though they may not be able to beat East or GI, may have an important say in the outcome," Simpson says. "Hastings has fine wrestlers in each of the first four weights and one of the best in the state in 145-pounder Dean Pittman."

Grand Island's challenge of East is expected to be led by 93-pounder Leo McDermott and Gary Baldwin at 138.

Northeast mentor John

McIntyre, while echoing the feeling that East is the solid choice, has high hopes for 185-pound and heavyweight wrestlers Tom Henson and Ed McMeen for the Rockets.

"Henson has been sub-par because of a virus infection he can't seem to shake, but if he gets some of his zip back he could be a factor."

Northeast Tim Knight (145), should also be a threat in his weight class, McIntyre feels.

North Platte, the seventh member of the conference, is not expected to be a factor based on dual meet results from throughout the regular season.

Littler In Front By a Hair

VETERAN FIRES 66 AT WILLIAMS-SAN DIEGO

San Diego (AP) — Gene Littler birdied seven of eight holes in one stretch, fashioned a 66 and established a two-stroke lead Thursday in the first round of the $150,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open golf tournament.

The 41-year-old veteran posted his six-under-par total early in the day before chilling winds sent afternoon scores soaring on the 7,011-yard Torrey Pines Golf Club course.

Among the afternoon victims of wind and cold were pre-tourney favorites Jack Nicklaus and Lee Trevino. Nicklaus, seeking his sixth victory in seven starts, had a 73 and Trevino was two over par at 74.

Littler, who had failed to make the cut in his last two starts, led by two over club pro Paul Harney, Jim Colbert and a 27-year-old Japanese long-shot, Takashi Murakami, tied at 68.

A large group followed at 69. It included Tommy Aaron, Tom Weiskopf, Bunky Henry, Homero Blancas, Dale Douglas, Phil Rodgers, Hale Irwin and Bill Brask.

Of the leaders, only Brask, Colbert and Harney played in the afternoon when the winds kicked up and the temperatures dropped.

"It wasn't too bad when we went out," Littler, a resident of nearby La Jolla, said.

"It was just too damn cold," said Trevino, a notorious hot-weather player.

"The chill factor made it such that you just didn't have any feel on the greens," said Nicklaus, who missed 10 putts inside 15 feet.

Billy Casper, fighting a heavy cold, had a 73 and Masters champion Charles Coody could only match par 72. Defending champion George Archer, this season's leading money winner, withdrew because of the flu. Arnold Palmer is not competing.

Littler had no complaints about the early morning weather.

"It was just beautiful," he said.

The slightly built veteran, a former United States Open champion and a two-time winner last season, started on the back nine and took a three-pull bogey on the second hole he played.

Then he started his push, stroking an eight iron to within six feet for the first of five consecutive birdies on the 14th hole.

He ran in 20, 10 and 15-foot putts on the next three holes and just missed an eagle three on the 18th.

He parred the first hole, then birdied the second from seven feet and the third from 12.

"It's easily the best putting I've done in some time," said Littler, who needed only 28 strokes on the greens.

Nash Tops In NIAC Statistics

Fred Nash of Concordia has developed into the busiest and most proficient performer this year in the Nebraska Intercollegiate Athletic Conference.

The Bulldog leader is on top of one category in this week's stats, second in another and fourth in a third.

He is the loop's best free throw shooter with a .850 hitting 51 of 60 attempts through games of last week. He missed the scoring lead by a whisker.

Nash has a 17.7 mark with 177 points in 10 games. Kermit Sweeney of Midland has the lead with a 17.750 average on his 213 points in 12 games.

The Concordia flash is fourth in rebounds with 11.7 per contest. The closeness of the point race is evident in some other categories.

Wesleyan's John Strain is able to claim the best field goal percentage mark by a mere 2/1000th of point over Paul Thomas of Hastings. Bernard Brown of Doane is the top rebounder with 19.1 per game.

In team categories, only 10/1000th points separate the top four clubs in free throw accuracy.

Leaders include Doane in rebounds and scoring defense, Hastings in offensive scoring and field goal percentage and Data in that close free throw race.

PSI May Halt 'Haggle About Grades'

One of the co-developers of an individualized instruction system known as PSI said here Thursday that "haggling about grades goes away" in classrooms that have used the teaching method.

The "personalized system of instruction" was explained to University of Nebraska-Lincoln professors by J. Gilmour Sherman, a psychology professor at Georgetown University.

Sherman's talk opened a two-day symposium on the individualization of learning sponsored by the UNL Teaching and Learning Center.

Sherman told about 70 listeners that he believes "an enormous part of teaching time goes into haggling with students about grades" in traditional classroom settings.

"It's not very dignified," he said.

But he added that the adversarial relationship between students and professors disappears rapidly in schools which have instituted PSI, a system which requires that students work on their own to master all the subject matter before them.

Under PSI, he said, students are given study packets on one section of study at a time, and they are not allowed to go on until they have demonstrated mastery of the section through a quiz.

Errors are not penalized, he said, but students are required to get a near-perfect score before they are allowed to go on.

Help is provided to those students who ask for it by proctors who come from the ranks of the students taking the course, Sherman said.

And he added, the method leaves the professor total time to help those students whose questions or difficulties are too sophisticated or too hard for the student proctors to handle.

The proctors continually change, he said, since the 10 students who score perfect grades first on each section are appointed proctors for that section, and are given a packet designed to help them help others.

"Those who've been proctors learn more than anyone else," he said.

Grades, he said, are based on the amount of material the student masters.

Sherman told the UNL professors that PSI "is not the answer to all our problems by any means," but he said it has improved the learning atmosphere.

And he said it is being used in a variety of kinds of courses, from art to engineering to philosophy.

The symposium will end Friday after a day of panel discussions, workshops and presentations on topics ranging from contract grading to self-paced instruction.

The Teaching and Learning Center is a relatively new UNL enterprise designed to improve instruction on the campus.

Nebraska Free University Is Silently Expanding

Nebraska Free University has been silently expanding, both in scope and enrollment, apart from the hassles of student fee controversies, final exams and crowded bookstores.

Now in its fifth year at the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, NFU is offering courses ranging from "Kundalini Yoga" to "Wine Tasting."

If the NFU student doesn't want to fly in his mind through wine or Yoga, he can learn to fly with his body — in either the advanced private and commercial pilot ground school or the more primitive class on hot-air balloons.

If nostalgia is the student's interest, he could be captivated by a course on comic books.

If the student is the artsy type, macrame or introductory guitar might satisfy him.

Topical courses include

"Meanings in Black Theology," "Ecological Problems: Population, Pollution, Politics" and the "North American Indian."

One program is a combination of learning and practical application — the formation of a food cooperative for students and the university community.

Chris Harper, one of the NFU directors, estimates more than 600 students will provide input for the courses. Most of them will get back nothing more than the satisfaction of learning.

Credit is available in only nine of the 43 classes listed as of Thursday, and those are on a pass-fail basis (no grades).

Harper said the registration trends indicate the greatest interest is for the lighter courses such as wine tasting, wine making, comic books and introductory guitar.

He said there is also pre-registration interest in courses concerned with the mystic and the psychic such as Yoga (Kundalini and Ananda Marga), psychic science and "magic."

He added that the least interest seems to be for academic courses such as "Critical Thinking and Critical Writing" and "Utopian and 'Anti-Utopian' Novel."

Interestingly, these generally are the classes for which credit is offered.

Official registration for NFU courses will begin at 10 a.m. Monday in the Nebraska Union. Harper reports, however, the wine tasting class is already full, and others are nearly full.

The availability of credit for NFU courses is new. In the Free University catalog, Harper says, "The University of Nebraska provides several

NU Model United Nations Require Intensive Research By Participants

The University of Nebraska's Model United Nations has a tradition of bringing students with varied backgrounds together to discuss international topics in the framework of the United Nations.

This year's model U.N., the fifth annual session on the N.U. campus, involves about 300 participants mainly N.U. college student, working by the concept of "creativity within defined limits."

Under this concept delegates must be "aware which parts of his country's policies are open to negotiation and concession, and which parts are rigidly fixed," according to the model U.N. handbook.

This type of format can mean a lot of preparation for a delegate.

Sharon Baack, 16, an East High student on the delegation representing Guinea, said she had known nothing about Guinea other than it was located in Africa and had been a French colony.

She said her delegation started preparing by finding out where Guinea was and ended up in the public library looking through U.N. yearbooks to find out what Guinea delegates had said in the U.N. in past years.

Other delegates started with more information as they prepared to represent a country.

Ben Ahmadi, an N.U. student from Libya, is a delegate for another Arab country, Jordan.

He said he became involved in the model U.N. primarily to educate American students.

"Once they see both sides of the story they can see which side is right," he said. "But unless they get this chance they never get to see both sides."

The model U.N. began Thursday with resolutions being drafted in U.N. committees.

Some of the issues being considered are problems of the Middle East, the apartheid policies of the South African government, international control of drugs and conservation and ecology.

The session will end Saturday with an evening of international entertainment.

Couple Awarded $62,500 For O St. Property

A U.S. District Court jury Thursday awarded $62,500 damages to Donald and Mary Jane Huff in the government's condemnation of their 1527 O property for the site of the proposed Federal Office Building.

The Huffs contended the property's fair market value was $76,000 while an appraiser for the government placed its value at $30,500. The property was formerly occupied by a paint store.

Site of the proposed Federal Building complex involves two blocks between 15th and 16th, N and P.

The Huffs contended the property's fair market value was $76,000 while an appraiser for the government placed its value at $30,500. The property was formerly occupied by a paint store.

Chairman Of Black Studies At UNO Expects Dismissal

The chairman of the black studies department at the University of Nebraska at Omaha has said that although he has not been "formally notified of a decision not to retain me, this action is nonetheless in process."

"It is correct that actions are being taken to withhold renewal of my contract beyond its August 1972 duration," Milton White said in a prepared statement.

Last week, White had termed "technically correct" a UNO denial that he was to be fired, a charge made on the floor of the Legislature by Sen. Ernest Chambers of Omaha.

In the statement, however, White contended that the action is under way, as evidenced by what he described as threats of "negative consideration of my contract as it comes up for renewal in March" unless he cooperated with the UNO administration.

He said those threats were made by the dean for academic affairs.

Second Baptist OKs Budget, Seeks Pastor

The Second Baptist Church, 525 No. 58th reported a budget of $54,756 for the coming year, board chairman Jim Ekstrand said Thursday night.

Ekstrand said the church is still seeking a pastor for the church, but that they "expect a pastor shortly." He said they haven't selected a candidate yet.

Ekstrand said the major items in the budget were $22,000 for the board of trustees, which maintains the physical plant; $21,000 for the diaconate, which covers such items as the pastor's and secretary's salaries and the music committee; $7,300 for missions and $3,400 for Christian education.

Thompson Will Serve 1-Year Term On Housing Authority

Mayor Sam Schwartzkopf said Thursday he has asked Carroll Thompson, present Housing Authority chairman, to serve at least one more year on the Authority.

In a press release Schwartzkopf said Thompson met with him recently and both agreed to the one-year timetable.

"This will allow some orderly transition on the board. I have other appointments under advisement for the future," Mayor Schwartzkopf said.

He added that he asked Thompson to continue for another year since there are some present programs that Thompson would like to help accomplish before leaving the Authority.

Thompson has served nine years on the Authority and was elected chairman in January. Thompson, whose present term expired last June 30 and has been "serving at the mayor's pleasure since, said he would resign in February if he was not reappointed.

FBI Hasn't Interviewed Irving

The New York Times

New York — Martin S. Ackerman, Clifford Irving's attorney, said here Thursday that the novelist had not been interviewed by FBI agents although the lawyer had urged the agency to enter the case. "We haven't got the money and we'd like to see this thing settled," Ackerman said. The attorney said he had asked both the FBI and the United States Postal Service to enter the case. The FBI, he said, told him that any decision would have to be made at a "higher level." The postal authorities have made no response, Ackerman said.

Possible Fraud However, it was learned in Miami that postal inspectors were already working on the case from the standpoint of possible mail fraud. One check made out to H. R. Hughes, Irving has said, was given by him to a "trusted" Hughes aide — identified as George Gordon Holmes — in the Miami area. The endorsed check, for $325,000, was received in the mail by the Swiss Credit Bank in Zurich.

According to Irving, the two other checks, totaling $325,000, were given to Hughes by the author. They were deposited in the Zurich bank by the mysterious "Helga Hughes." She signed both checks in the presence of bank officials. Thursday, Richard Gerstein, the state attorney in Dade County, Fla., said, "We are cooperating with U.S. postal inspectors in this case."

"Today, we have made available to them records which we have subpoenaed," he said. "Our interest lies in finding whether or not any fraud was committed in Dade County."

Beachcomber Among the records, it was learned, were those of the Beachcomber Motel in Pompano Beach, where Irving and his researcher, Richard Siskind, said they stayed from last Aug. 28 to Sept. 10 and where meetings with Hughes allegedly occurred.

The other records were those from the Sonesta Beach Hotel in Key Biscayne, where Irving said he met with Hughes on the night of Sept. 23.

The records from the Beachcomber Motel show that Irving and Siskind made nine telephone calls, including two to Spain and one to Nassau. Hughes now makes his home on Paradise Island in Nassau.

The records show that the two calls to Spain went to the island of Ibiza where both men make their homes. One call cost $35.47, the other $21.12. Irving and Siskind also sent two telegrams to Ibiza during their stay at the Beachcomber.

Construction Date Is Slated For York General Hospital

York (AP) — Construction of the new 72-bed York General Hospital may get under way by March 1 if federal and state approval of bids accepted by the Board of Directors Wednesday is forthcoming. Apparent low bids for the hospital — which has been in the planning stage since 1967 — amounted to $1,932,161, or $474,835 less than the architect's estimate of $2,406,996. The project involves a Hill Burton Hospital grant of $600,000, approved last November, a low-interest federal loan of more than $1 million and about $1 million in local pledges.

Apparent low bidder for the general construction contract is Carmichael Construction Co., Hastings, with a bid of $919,984. Kinning and Reil, Inc., Norfolk, had the apparent low bid of $716,113 on mechanical work; and Holdrege Electric of Holdrege was apparent low with a bid of $296,064.

There were 28 bidders in all at the public bid opening — 10 on the general contract and nine each for the mechanical and electrical contracts.

FBI Hasn't Interviewed Irving

©The New York Times

New York — Martin S. Ackerman, Clifford Irving's attorney, said here Thursday that the novelist had not been interviewed by FBI agents although the lawyer had urged the agency to enter the case. "We haven't got the money and we'd like to see this thing settled," Ackerman said.

The attorney said he had asked both the FBI and the United States Postal Service to enter the case. The FBI, he said, told him that any decision would have to be made at a "higher level." The postal authorities have made no response, Ackerman said.

Possible Fraud

However, it was learned in Miami that postal inspectors were already working on the case from the standpoint of possible mail fraud. One check made out to H. R. Hughes, Irving has said, was given by him to a "trusted" Hughes aide — identified as George Gordon Holmes — in the Miami area. The endorsed check, for $325,000, was received in the mail by the Swiss Credit Bank in Zurich.

According to Irving, the two other checks, totaling $325,000, were given to Hughes by the author. They were deposited in the Zurich bank by the mysterious "Helga Hughes." She signed both checks in the presence of bank officials.

Thursday, Richard Gerstein, the state attorney in Dade County, Fla., said, "We are cooperating with U.S. postal inspectors in this case."

"Today, we have made available to them records which we have subpoenaed," he said. "Our interest lies in finding whether or not any

Lincoln Man Found Dead In Pickup Truck

A Lincoln man was found dead Thursday night in his pickup truck, which was parked in his garage at 1312 Pawnee, according to police detective Murry Shaeffer.

Shaeffer said Donovan Burton, 51, apparently parked his pickup in his garage, attached a garden hose to the muffler and put it through the driver's side window and let the engine run.

He was last seen early Thursday morning when he took his children to school.

fraud was committed in Dade County."

Beachcomber

Among the records, it was learned, were those of the Beachcomber Motel in Pompano Beach, where Irving and his researcher, Richard Suskind, said they stayed from last Aug. 28 to Sept. 10 and where meetings with Hughes allegedly occurred.

The other records were those from the Sonesta Beach Hotel in Key Biscayne, where Irving said he met with Hughes on the night of Sept. 23.

Construction Date Is Slated For York General Hospital

York (P) — Construction of the new 72-bed York General Hospital may get under way by March 1 if federal and state approval of bids accepted by the Board of Directors Wednesday is forthcoming.

Apparent low bids for the hospital — which has been in the planning stage since 1967 — amounted to $1,932,161, or $474,835 less than the architect's estimate of $2,406,996.

The project involves a Hill

Good Whisky, Good Women Said Healthful

Danville, Calif. (UPI) — Jack Hart, who attributes his longevity to good whisky and good women, celebrated his 100th birthday Wednesday.

"I was born in the stirrup and I'm going to die with my boots on," said the cattle puncher who was born on the prairie in the Oklahoma Territory.

Fellow residents at the Tamarack Manor residential retirement home held a party for him and gave him a plaque reading:

"To the oldest living cowboy in the world—Born Jan. 25, 1872. Three quarters Cherokee, one quarter barbed wire, 80 years a rodeo rider, 80 years a cowboy and 100 years of hell-raising."

Violations Jump

Vienna (P) — Narcotics violations in Austria — which until recently was relatively free of the problem — jumped by 263% in 1970 and totaled 963 cases, authorities reported.

The records from the Beachcomber Motel show that Irving and Suskind made nine telephone calls, including two to Spain and one to Nassau. Hughes now makes his home on Paradise Island in Nassau.

The records show that the two calls to Spain went to the island of Ibiza where both men make their homes. One call cost $35.47, the other $21.12.

Irving and Suskind also sent two telegrams to Ibiza during their stay at the Beachcomber.

Construction Date Is Slated For York General Hospital

Burton Hospital grant of $600,000, approved last November, a low-interest federal loan of more than $1 million and about $1 million in local pledges.

Apparent low bidder for the general construction contract is Carmichael Construction Co., Hastings, with a bid of $919,984. Kinning and Reil, Inc., Norfolk had the apparent low bid of $716,113 on mechanical work; and Holdrege Electric of Holdrege was apparent low with a bid of $296,064.

There were 28 bidders in all at the public bid opening — 10 on the general contract and nine each for the mechanical and electrical contracts.

The construction project, directly north of the present hospital, is expected to take about 18 months.

There is a practical little game that will give you a message every day. It is a number puzzle designed to "pull out" your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 5 or more, subtract 1. If the result is less than 6, add three. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left corner of the rectangle and check every one of your key numbers left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you right. This is a U.S. Patent Office.
